Will You Be There?

Out Where the West Begins

BY ARTHUR CHAPMAN

*Out where the handclasp's a little stronger,
Out where the smile dwells a little longer,
That's where the West begins;
Out where the sun is a little brighter,
Where the snows that fall are a trifle whiter,
Where the bonds of home are a wee bit tighter,
That's where the West begins.*

*Out where the skies are a trifle bluer,
Out where friendship's a little truer,
That's where the West begins;
Out where a fresher breeze is blowing,
Where there's laughter in every streamlet flowing,
Where there's more of reaping and less of sowing,
That's where the West begins.*

*Out where the world is in the making,
Where fewer hearts in despair are aching,
That's where the West begins;
Where there's more of singing and less of sighing,
Where there's more of giving and less of buying,
And a man makes friends without half trying—

CONVENTION CALLS YOU!

"Where there's laughter in every streamlet flowing"—that's where Pi Phi will play this June. Convention calls you to Estes Park. The West welcomes you!

Out in Colorado with its snow-capped peaks, with its mountain streams rushing and roaring through the canons, with its myriad wild flowers blooming near snow banks, with its fascinating trails leading into the heart of solitude—we will work and play and sing for our national fraternity. Five glorious days—and maybe five times five if you decide to spend the summer in the West!

ON THE PI PHI TRAIL

The facilities offered by the Stanley Hotel are alone sufficient inducement for a two thousand mile trip. Very remarkable rates are being offered by the management of the Stanley. Bring your families and come!

This convention is to be a real vacation convention where comfort and enjoyment will be uppermost. Can't you hear the voices singing around the bonfire at the big beefsteak fry? Or perhaps you can catch the notes of the Loving Cup Song which is always the crowning feature of the banquet.

Read carefully all of the convention information printed in the March ARROW as space does not permit us to reprint it here.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Pi Beta Phi mothers and daughters, we are counting on you to be with us. Mrs. C. W. Barrett (Lulu Alvord, Michigan A), has been elected delegate from the Chicago Alumnae Club and her daughter Helen Barrett, is the official delegate from Illinois Z! At the last Alpha Phi convention there were sixteen mothers and daughters in attendance. Can we surpass that record?

THINGS TO REMEMBER

- To bring as little baggage as possible.
- To bring a coat and sweater and be prepared for cold nights.
- To subscribe to the Convention Daily. 50c for five issues.
- To meet as many delegates as possible.
- To SING.
- To join the Pi Beta Phi Special Train.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

A charge of $1.00 will be made, extra, to those who are guests of the Hotel Stanley for the convention banquet. For those who are not regular guests of the hotel the charge will be $2.50.

The special transportation pamphlet giving full detailed information concerning the Pi Beta Phi Special Train and general matters of interest pertaining to transportation can be obtained from Nina Harris Allen (Mrs. Ford J.), 678 Park Blvd., Glen Ellyn, Ill.

Pledges may attend Stunt Night, Recreation Day and Model pledging and will enjoy mingling with the many fraternity members from every section of the country. If you have a pledge sister or friend urge her to come to convention.

OUR FOUNDERS will be with us, too. Mrs. Hutchinson (Clara Brownlee), Mrs. Grier (Ada Bruen), and Mrs. Libby (Fannie Whitenack), are among those who are hoping to attend. To meet and know our Founders is the greatest fraternity inspiration possible.

Five Michigan Betas are planning to buy an automobile and to come overland to convention!

ATTENTION—STRAY CONVENTIONITES

All persons coming to convention who are not able to join the Special Train, should plan to reach Denver the morning of June 25 in order to attend the big breakfast being given by the Denver Alumnæ Club at the Daniels and Fisher tea room, at Sixteenth St. and Arapahæ, and also the sightseeing trip around Denver as the guests of the Denver Cab Company.

As soon as the Special Train arrives at 7:30 A. M., at the Union Station, the Denver Cab Company will transport the travellers and their hand-baggage from the Union Station to Daniels and Fisher's store, free of charge. Plan to join the party at the tea room!! All Pi Beta Phis are to be the guests of the Denver Alumnæ Club. A charge of seventy-five cents will be made for breakfast for relatives or friends who are with the convention party.

After the trip around Denver, the busses will leave the Daniels and Fisher store from 10:00 A. M. to 11:00 A. M. for Estes Park.

A box luncheon will be prepared for every person desiring one for 50c and a stop will be made for luncheon in the canon on the way up to the Park.

The busses will arrive at the convention headquarters, the Stanley Hotel, Estes Park, Colo., at approximately 3:00 P. M.

There will be a Pi Beta Phi information desk near the Denver Cab Company's stand at the Union Station.

Make reservations for the breakfast and for your bus seat from Denver to Estes Park by writing to the Convention Guide if you are not a member of the Special Train party.

Don't fail to join the big crowd for the trip up the canon!!

POST-CONVENTION TEA AT BOULDER

The Boulder Alumnæ Club will entertain in honor of the Founders, members of Grand Council and all persons attending convention at a tea at the chapter-house, 1229 Thirteenth Street, Boulder, Colorado on the afternoon of July 3, from 3:00 to 5:00 P. M. Every Pi Beta Phi who can be present is cordially invited to come.

THE PI BETA PHI SPECIAL

ALL ABOARD FOR ESTES PARK

The Pi Beta Phi Special Train, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Ford J. Allen (Nina Harris, Illinois Δ), will leave the Chicago and Northwestern Depot in Chicago at 10:00 P. M., June 23. Pi Beta Phi headquarters will be found on the ground floor of the C. and N. W. terminal.

The official route of the Special is the Chicago and Northwestern railway from Chicago to Omaha; Union Pacific system, Omaha to Denver; and by automobiles of the Rocky Mountain Parks Transportation Company from Denver to Estes Park, Colorado.

Special Features: The Chicago Alumnae Club and Illinois E will be at home all day Saturday, June 23, to the Special Train visitors at the Hotel La Salle.

On June 24, 7:10 A. M., the Ames Alumnae Club and Iowa Γ will entertain the Special Train party at breakfast and ride over the campus of Iowa State College.

On June 24, 3:00 P. M., the Omaha and Council Bluffs Alumnae will meet the Special Train with automobiles for a drive around Omaha and tea at the Athletic Club.

At 7:30 A. M., June 25, the Denver Alumnae Club, Colorado A and Colorado B will be hostesses at breakfast and a drive around Denver.

The Denver Cab Company will carry all passengers and hand-baggage from the Special Train at the Union Station to the Daniels and Fisher store, without charge. The breakfast will be served in the D. and F. tea room.

After the tour of Denver, the busses will leave for Estes Park and a stop will be made in the canon for luncheon. Box lunches will be prepared for 50c.

ARRIVAL at destination, Stanley Hotel, Estes Park, June 25, 3:00 P. M.

The special train will consist of Pullman standard sleeping cars with compartments and drawing rooms. The girls will have the use of the drawing rooms at both ends of the cars. Dining cars, lounging car and special baggage car will also be provided. There will also be a large illuminated glass emblem on the rear of the train, bearing the name: PI BETA PHI SPECIAL.

The Chairman of Transportation will make all arrangements for the automobile trip from Denver to Estes Park for those who are in the Special train party only.

All persons going to convention who are unable to join the Special Train at any point between Chicago and Denver, should select the most direct route to Denver and meet the Special Train party there on the morning of June 25, 1923, in order to participate in the wonderful automobile trip from Denver to Estes Park, and they should write at once to the Convention Guide, for automobile and luncheon reservations.

Buy your round-trip ticket at the regular summer tourist rate (which is about one and one-tenth of the one-way fare), from your starting point to the farthest point you wish to go. If an extended western tour is contemplated to Yellowstone, California, or the Pacific Northwest, you must so specify when purchasing railroad ticket at starting point, naming final destination, as railroad tickets cannot be exchanged after starting on trip. Stop-over privileges are allowed anywhere going or returning, and the tickets have the usual summer tourist return limit of October 31, 1923. The return route is optional but to travel on the Pi Beta Phi Special from Chicago, tickets must read over the official route as given above, going to Estes Park.

BAGGAGE: Unnecessary baggage is always a nuisance. A roomy suitcase will hold everything essential for the convention and a comfortable trip. Twenty-five pounds of hand baggage is carried free on the automobiles from Denver to Estes Park but all excess baggage will be $1.25 per hundred pounds from Denver to Estes Park. Trunks will be stored without cost at Denver while party is in the Park. For particulars, call on the Agent of the Rocky Mountain Parks Transportation Company at Denver, on arrival.

Those living west of Chicago should join the Special Train at the most convenient point en route and should advise the Chairman of Transportation where they will join when making Pullman reservations.

Traveling on the Pi Beta Phi Special Train to convention will be one of the most enjoyable features of the entire trip. It will afford the opportunity to become acquainted not only with those who are going to the convention, but with many Pi Beta Phis who will meet and greet the train en route.

Make your own Pullman reservations to the point where you meet the Special Train and be sure to write to Mrs. Allen before June 10 for your reservation on the Special, stating where you will join the Special Train. Upper berth is 20% lower in cost than lower berth.

For any further information concerning the Special and matters pertaining to transportation, write to Nina Harris Allen (Mrs. Ford J.), 678 Park Blvd., Glen Ellyn, Ill.

For any other information relative to convention write to the Convention Guide, Lorena Accola Fitzell (Mrs. Grant R.), 1359 Race St., Denver, Colo.

CONVENTION GUIDE

When the curtain rises upon the Estes Park stage in June, one person will enact the rôle of general manager, scene shifter, lost and found supervisor, general pacifier—in fact she will occupy the center of the stage from start to finish. But she is capable of filling these rôles and more, too—Our CONVENTION GUIDE, Lorena Accola Fitzell of Colorado A.

Lorena Accola received her first college work at Christian College, Columbia, Mo., and while there was a member of Φ M Γ , national Class B fraternity. During her three years at Columbia she served on the Y. W. C. A. cabinet and in June, 1915, received the degree of Associate in Arts.

Wishing to get under a sky of different hue from that of Missouri she debated between Florida Women's College and the University of Colorado, finally selecting the latter.

In September, 1915, Lorena Accola entered the University of Colorado as a junior and a week later after a strenuous rush week found herself wearing the wine and blue. She was initiated into Colorado A on February 4, 1916, and although she had only a year and a half of active chapter life, has made a most enthusiastic and loyal worker in the fraternity of her choice.

Two months after she was graduated from Boulder in 1917, she married Grant R. Fitzell, ΣX , at the University of Colorado.

For two years Mrs. Fitzell served as secretary of the Denver Alumnae Club of $\Pi B \Phi$ and for the past year has given all of her time to making plans and arrangements for the coming convention.

If there is anything you desire to know about convention or anything you wish accomplished at Estes Park this June just send a radio to our Convention Guide!

SUMMER PARAGRAPHS

Anna Pifer, Colorado B, will have charge of recreation during convention and has at her finger tips, information concerning hikes, trips and all forms of amusement in the Rocky Mountain National Park.

In writing of a summer at Estes Park, Colo., Miss Pifer has selected the following paragraphs from a diary:

Ahead of the sun, which had not yet said "Good Morning" over the jagged summit of Teddy's Teeth, we reached the Gem Lake trail, fresh for the climb.

Grass, flowers and a level stretch through the pines, suggested no immediate difficulties. A ribbon of crystal water soon came into view. We had heard it singing but it surprised us after all as merry mountain things love to do.

Farther on a wee Colorado spruce tempted me to steal it from its natural habitat, but I discovered that young as it was, it was prepared to resist the elements and me for its roots were too deeply imbedded to be dislodged.

Slightly ashamed of my efforts, I strenuously resumed climbing. A forced stop and a hurried loosening of my heavy sweater brought the sudden realization that I was attempting to dash up a steep grade.

Through the vista of the trees, the fascinating outlines of the summit now appeared where the little lake lay hidden. Occasionally we had the thrilling experience of deciding which trail to venture—the old or the new. Sometimes the older, steeper, rougher trail brought us first to the fork and sometimes it was the new.

After climbing steadily for some time we were glad to stop for a rest on a broad flat rock and were quite unprepared for the panorama before us, for there facing us in absolute majesty was the range itself—a terrifying line of great mountain with the queen of them all—Long's Peak.

After our rest we again took up the trail at our feet and often made use of friendly pines to pull ourselves up over the rocks. Our heavy boots steadied our muscles and the rubber heels held us upright over stretches of smooth stone.

Rocks! Rocks! Rocks! What had hurled them down the side of the mountain and who had cupped out the pretty basin where so tranquil lay the pearl for which we had been searching: Gem Lake?

* * * *

"It's a perfect night to watch the beavers," said a young zoologist from the University of Chicago. "They will be busy at their new dam. The sky is clear, the moon is full and the foot-bridge will furnish an ideal lookout."

In a few moments we were on our way, wearing water-proof boots and rain-coats.

We crept stealthily down to the narrow foot-bridge which crossed Wind River, sat down on a log and waited and waited. There was no movement in the water; no crackling of twigs. Disgusted, most of the party left. Three of us, however, stayed.

We hid ourselves in the cold, wet underbrush at the side of the stream and kept absolutely still. After fifteen long, silent minutes something dashed across the pool and in another moment we beheld five beavers.

Filled with delight we watched these little creatures assembling the material for their house. They had previously cut down aspen trees, peeled off the bark, cut the timber the desired length and piled the logs together. Now with great skill they laid the logs down the path into the water. These beaver experts were no doubt graduates of the Estes Park School of Technology.

* * * *

My favorite horse was not noticeably handsome but we usually understood each other and so we both started out in high spirits with the crowd headed for Fern and Odessa.

We seemed to go miles through aspen groves and crossed several little streams which flowed into the Big Thompson. We counted the many varieties of flowers, some growing to a surprising height in the moist coolness. Then riding along high, rocky ridges we came at length to a spot near the headwaters of an interesting river where we beheld the Pool which carries a tradition of General Funston's visit.

A tent inn in this secluded spot was a welcome surprise and a cup of coffee and blackberry pie freshened our zest for the real climb just ahead of us.

Up and up the trail led through the thick timber. Here a long pine log had been carefully placed to make safe a perilous spot. Farther on the horse picked his way cautiously over stretches of rock.

GAZING AND GRAZING

Fern and Marguerite Falls, with the witchery of their mad descent in silver spray, called insistently but we deferred the joy of seeing them until our return journey.

The Lodge at Fern Lake breathed of winter sports with its deep fireplace, its snowshoes and skis and not far away the trail of the ski course leading down to the curiously green lake.

We looked up at the brow of the Little Matterhorn and started climbing once more for at its side lay that magic sheet of water, Lake Odessa. A little beyond it were the snow fields with brilliantly hued flowers blooming at the very edge.

A sudden shower did not disturb us in the least but a fallen tree across the trail necessitated a detour which brought us back to a difficult grade that led on up and up! Winding around a broad shoulder of rock we trusted our safety to our horses as they carried us slowly along the ledge where we caught sight of the glimmer of sunlight on the lake.

Dismounting, we followed the trail along the banks up to the glistening white fields. We took a run over the snow; a slide down a long snow-bank and jumped off near a stream where we finally rested and ate our lunch. Across the lake our horses contentedly munched the grain in their feed bags.

POST CONVENTION TRIPS

Denver, Colo., is the hub of many wonderful scenic trips which may be enjoyed on your convention trip this June. In addition to the splendid circle trip from Estes Park to Grand Lake, Lookout Mountain, etc., there are side trips which you can make as individuals or in groups. Mr. and Mrs. Ford J. Allen will chaperon a group on the Circle trip.

Mr. Warren E. Boyer of the Denver Tourist Bureau has supplied the following information and will be glad to answer questions concerning all phases of Western travel.

"One scenic road leads to the spectacular moving glaciers in the Boulder region, sixty miles from Denver, while still another highway leads to majestic Pike's Peak, seventy-five miles to the south. June? Yes it's an ideal time for combining a vacation season with with the $\Pi B \Phi$ convention trip.

"In addition to the many trips in the Rocky Mountain National Park a trip can be made from Denver to the Boulder glaciers at a cost of $15, while a night spent in the vicinity of Arapahoe glacier would mean an additional $5.00.

"There are countless rail trips into Clear Creek and South Platte Canyons, and to the crest of the snow-capped barriers of the Continental Divide. Information regarding these scenic trips of a day or less, as well as the auto sightseeing drives, will be furnished without cost upon request to the Denver Tourist Bureau, 505 Seventeenth St., Denver. Free literature, prices and advantages of these various trips are included in this free service that may be had for the asking.

SNOW IN JUNE

"The 65-mile circle auto trip through the Denver Mountain Parks, including a stop at the grave of Col. W. F. Cody, better known as Buffalo Bill, and requiring four and a half hours, costs $4. An inviting meal brings the total to $5.25. Extending the 65-mile circle trip further into the Rockies, the visitor reaches the shores of Echo Lake, in the shadow of Mount Evans. This round trip journey of 105 miles may also be made within a day, at a cost of $8 plus $1.50 for a noonday meal, if desired, nearly three miles above the level of the sea. Here cloud-swept heights are penetrated by the pulsating motors of the sightseeing busses of the Denver Cab Company and one feels the strange impulse of Indian mythical worship; the rushing, throbbing pulse of the gold-seeker, and also enjoys the strange experience of having been whisked within a few hours from temperate to near-Arctic climes. Heavy wraps feel comfortable in the higher altitudes on the hottest day.

"It is cool in the heights. But after the engaging sun has dissolved to all appearances in one of the many companion peaks, the summer night is not complete without the camp fire assembly. Linger before a roaring, spitting spruce log in the great fireplace is a comfort. There is a touch of the fairyland in it all, strange as it may seem.

"In the vicinity of the Denver Mountain Parks is Troutdale-in-the-Pines, which has all the distinctive delights that the name implies; also rustic cabins and cottages in addition to the straight hotel accommodations. Bendemeer has an appealing touch in the serving of meals, cafeteria style. Brook Forest, with its splendid table nestles near Evergreen. There are splendid cottages on Evergreen Heights, with every comfort of city life. In this type of resort the traveler receives exceptional service at prices ranging from $3.50 to $5.00 a day, with special rates based on a week or two.

"Denver has 252 hotels with varying prices. Colorado Springs likewise blossoms in summer as a tourist center. In Manitou, not far away, at the foot of Pike's Peak, there are countless cottages and cabins. Many people are drawn there because of the curative properties of the springs and the medicinal baths. Hot Sulphur Springs and Idaho Springs boast of radio-active baths. Ample accommodations prevail.

"The list is endless. Fine clothes may be worn by those who must live in a hotel that radiates exclusiveness; but there is a corresponding inexpensiveness elsewhere that appeals to the woman of moderate means. In either case the spell of the primitive hangs over the vacationist for days after the Colorado Rockies have been left behind in travel. Fairies dancing in the golden sun shafts in the heights live in memory forever."

THE CORNER CUPBOARD

BY CAROLYN HOSMER RHONE (Mrs. H. E.), Colorado B

Old Mother Hubbard,
 She went to the Cupboard
 To get her a cup of tea;
 When she got there,
 Said she, "I declare!
 Such eats I never did see!"

Madame Hubbard is only a prologue to my tale, and I do hope she is not too suggestive of an empty cupboard. You see, we advertise, "The Corner Cupboard is never bare!"

NEAR RHONE ROOST

Did you ever think that some day you might start a tea house? Or perhaps you've had a different sort of day dream. Have you ever thought that some day you'd like to take up a homestead of plenty of pine trees, a talking creek, and a towering mountain for stage properties? If you've ever had such attacks of imagination you may be interested in the Corner Cupboard and in Rhone's Roost in Kawuneeche Valley.

Most stories end with a honeymoon. Mine starts with one, an interrupted one. My husband and I had planned a honeymoon in Estes Park, but along came the war, and we snatched two or three days only, and then rushed off to Camp Custer to wait for overseas orders. You know all about it, for more than one $\Pi \Phi$ bride was hoping that those orders would be postponed just a little while longer. We held our breath for a year or two, the armistice restored us, and we entered upon those belated honeymoons. Although it was October (almost a year after the armistice) we went to Estes just as we had planned to do. The tourist season was over and we had the fall pageant of yellow aspen trees, crimson scrub oak, and purple Indian summer haze, pretty much to ourselves.

You'll think Estes a Paradise in June but you should see it in October. Everywhere we went we wanted to stay forever. One day we ventured over the half-completed Fall River Road and caught our vision of the country on the other side of Milner Pass. Right then and there we decided that we should stay forever.

CORNER CUPBOARD TEA ROOM
Grand Lake, Colorado

Investigation proved for us that there were few hotels on the "other side"; that there were only two or three ranch resorts, and no tea houses; that the completed Fall River Road would lure thousands of automobiles down over Milner Pass to Grand Lake, and on over Berthoud Pass back to Denver. All winter we planned, and planned. In the spring we went adventuring. We filed on 160 acres of mountain scenery in the Kawuneeche Valley, nine miles up the Fall River Road from Grand Lake, and a little over thirty from the village of Estes Park. That quarter section of scenery offered all the desired stage properties for an ideal homestead: the Rocky Mountain National park for a front yard; the Arapahoe National Forest for a back yard; plenty of pine trees to furnish romance and atmosphere and incidentally to build a log house; and two mountain streams. Baker Creek and the North Fork of the Colorado near its source, to furnish drinking water, mountain trout, or Nature's own music—whichever one's soul or body demands. With the site for our home selected, we turned our attention to business. We leased an old five-roomed shack called The Grand Lake Ice Cream Parlor, a half block from the lake on the Main Street of Grand Lake Village. That shack was surely hopeless, but the lake wasn't. You'll agree when you once see Old Baldy shouldering away the lesser mountains in order to see himself in the water; or the mountains of the jagged Never Summer Range standing on tiptoe to the Northwest, adding their reflection opposite to that of Baldy, or Echo Mountain reaching down to the waters edge, every pine tree discovering its double in the water's depth.

Now for the bare Cupboard. If you could have seen it three years ago you couldn't have doubted its past. Its joists fairly creaked with the memory of the days when it served for a hotel, when the country up our homestead valley was in the throes of a silver-mining boom, when scores of adventurers were flocking to the Never Summer Range in hopes of finding sudden wealth.

You see, it was built back in '81, two years before the historic murder of county officers referred to as "the big shootin'"; the soda fountain room was Grand Lake's first schoolhouse—but why go on with this ancient history? You want to know how we made a tea house out of it.

Layer upon layer of dirty wall paper with the dust of decades had to be torn from its cobwebbed moorings and replaced with plain gray paper. The accumulated dirt of years had to be scraped and scrubbed from floors and baseboards; literally gallons of clean gray paint were needed in the process of transformation. And even more white paint for the woodwork and cupboards. Such cleanliness prompted us to sudden extravagances. We ordered from The Denver Art Pottery a supply of blue pottery dishes, the most exquisite shade you ever saw; lavender shades of the columbines when they first open in the depths of aspen-covered hillsides are hidden in the blue of cup and teapot. Then cretonne for our windows. You'll think it a little dingy this year, and we can't replace it until next summer when we enlarge our dining-room and re-decorate, but three years ago it left nothing to be desired. Its blue, its yellow, its touch of rose, and its background of black did much to give an air to the old place. A Denver second-hand merchant rubbed his hands in glee when at one fell swoop he disposed of the old saloon tables he had expected to be white elephants forever. We covered them snugly with white sanitas of the breakfast room variety. A combination of oil paints and white enamel, stencil patterns and hours of work made them gay enough for any weather. Blue and yellow and black, the designs to harmonize with curtains and dishes.

But goodness, don't let me forget the kitchen. A second-hand hotel range, a whiskey barrel, an old store counter for a pastry table, and a genius to preside at the baking powder can.

Don't start a mountain tea room without some such combination. Why the whiskey barrel? Well, you see Mr. Husband, needed it for amateur plumbing. With rubber hose and handy pipe he connected it in some miraculous fashion to the stove, so that we could always have a barrel of hot dish water. In the first weeks of the Corner Cupboard, the barrel, still redolent of its racy past, gave forth an aroma that was distinctly and shamefully suggestive of the Cupboard's frontier youth. Mrs. Scott, the genius of the baking powder can, was sent by Providence in answer to an ad in a Denver paper. Providence does that sort of thing once only in a lifetime. If there is anyone in the world who can make chicken croquettes, or caramel spice cake, or butter scotch pie to equal hers I hope, seeing that you are Pi Phis, that Providence will send that person to you if you ever start a tea room.

Our sign was out, and a Kansas farmer, stopping his fivver with a rattle of brakes and gears, called out,

"Is dis Mr. Cubburd's place, Miss?"

And the Corner Cupboard was ready for guests. The oven of the range gave forth its own allurements, the whiskey barrel steamed merrily, and Mr. and Mrs. Cubburd turpented the paint off their hands and faces and sent forth cards of invitation to the people of Grand Lake to the opening of the Cupboard doors. Bits of rhyme such as this:

Little Jack Horner,
Sat in the Corner-
Cupboard, eating his pie:
He stuck in his thumb
And pulled out a plum,
And said, "How lucky am I."

were attached to the invitations. The summer cottagers around the lake, the homesteaders and ranchers, the villagers responded, and the career of the Corner Cupboard had begun.

In the beginning we planned to serve only tea and light lunches, but in answer to demands of hungry motorists we added a steak dinner to our menu. If you had driven all day over mountain roads you'd want something more than tea and cinnamon toast; you'd be much happier with a large juicy steak, a stuffed baked potato, a spicy tomato jelly salad, buttered peas, homemade rolls, piping hot, and fresh apple pie such as only Mrs. Scott can make. But if you were a cottager and your fire went out, you'd drop into the Corner Cupboard for a piece of fudge cake or assorted sandwiches and a pot of Orange Pekoe tea. And if you were attending a dance at the Community House across the street, or the clubhouse of the Yacht Club down on the lake shore, you'd rather slip in between dances for a coco cola or a lemonade or Peach Melba. You know, it's a marvel to me that all stomach specialists are not millionaires, when I consider the quantities of rich fudge cake with nut-filled oozy frosting I've baked in one summer.

That first summer would have come to a happy conclusion in a debtor's prison if we had depended entirely on Fall River Road tourists. There weren't any. The road wasn't completed. But the cottagers were kind to us, and the villagers weren't blind to us, and when on September 15, we repaired with a cookstove, a tent and a mattress to our homestead, we were already planning for the 1921 season.

The magic of September and October made camping on the creek bank pleasant indeed, except, of course, when one first shivered out of bed in the morning. Four forked sticks driven into the ground furnished a bedstead; some planks from an old sluice box used by some miner forty years ago furnished flooring for the kitchen corner of our habitation. Even the first snowstorm didn't cast great gloom over our household. A weighty matter, deciding upon the site for our cabin. The nearness of water, the farness of the view, and the shelter of a south-east hillside determined our choice, and "Mr. Cubburd," and a neighbor from down the valley started felling trees for the cabin. If you've never heard the trees come crashing down, the very trees that are going to be builded into your home, you've missed a thrill that nothing else will ever give you.

But I couldn't stay to see the completed cabin. My career, seconded by rather a flat purse, sent me back to South Denver High School, where I speak weightily of the influence of William Shakespere upon modern drama, and the modern tendencies in the short story. I'll wager I splash more red ink over more misspelled words in one winter than any $\Pi \Phi$ in these our United States. And in the meantime my husband carpentered, trapped, and studied in solitary activity. He snowshoed to the telephone, for an expensive chat now and then, and at last the winter passed.

June saw us at work again, plumbing, carpentering, and interior decorating with all our might. The whisky barrel, which by this time had lost its suggestion of a past, had to be removed to the side hill back of the kitchen and made self filling, with only a hot water faucet above the dish table to give evidence of our novel water system. The partition had to be removed between the two small rooms off the main dining-room, in order to provide a larger additional dining-room entered by an archway. Our miscellaneous assortment of furniture needed attention. Three or four dozen stout wooden chairs with a military past journeyed to Grand Lake, and presented themselves for beauty treatments. Three coats of black enamel, a blue line decoration, and a yellow and blue treatment of back panels, and you'd never know they once saw service in the army barracks at Fort Logan. The table legs beneath the white sanitas tops received the same treatment; a gateleg table was added to our collection, and decorated with a nasturtium design; and we ceased to look quite so much like an accident. We added pictures to give a homey look; bits of landscape gay with autumn coloring, a motto or two that one wishes to read more than once, a few fine mountain and lake photographs from Wilbur Wiswall's Color Shop up the street. Then we awaited the summer tourist with tragic expectancy. But the rains descended and the floods came. The new Fall River Road and the Berthoud Pass Road were sloughs of despond all summer long, and it was not until the Yacht Club held its annual August regatta at Grand Lake that we breathed easy again, beyond the fear of irate creditors. I add these little details to dispel the allusion that tea rooms are a source of pleasant occupation to artistic natures and an immediate and prolific increase to one's bank account.

Then came a repetition of the preceding winter with months of snowbound solitude for "Mr. Cubburd" and an equal number of red-ink ones for the Corner Cupboard Lady, as the village children call me. But just the same we bought the Corner Cupboard, with the two, fifty by one hundred feet lots upon which it stands. And last summer we attacked the exterior of it. I used to be so ashamed of that ramshackle old porch with its sagging roof. The pleasant interior was about as much consolation as a good heart is to a very homely woman.

Last summer we added a large well-built kitchen; a new porch with attractive windows the length of it; a main entrance with doors that no longer sag. We covered the whole building with slabs, so that its snug rustic exterior belies its past as much as its table filled interior, gleaming with tall pottery candle sticks and bright with yellow candles and flower filled pottery bowls, contradicts the memory of the Grand Lake Ice Cream Parlor.

When you leave convention for a trip to Grand Lake you'll be as thrilled as we were by your first glimpse of Kawuneeche Valley. I like to call it by its old Indian name, though the newer maps call it the valley of the North Fork of the Colorado. As you come down over Milner Pass you'll see a long, narrow, mountain-walled valley. Two peaks in the Never Summer Range across the valley are particularly distinct and snow-capped. Our homestead is at the foot of the nearer one, Baker. Your descent into the valley will be just one breathless hairpin curve after another, and you'll be a little relieved when you get safely down. You'll pass Squeaky Bob's ranch resort, and drive on down the valley. When you pass a sign reading "Baker Gulch Trail" you'll be directly opposite our homestead. You'll probably not be able to see the cabin because of the trees, for it is on the hillside a half mile from the road. You wouldn't think it much of a home if you did see it, I suppose. I wanted to call it Kawuneeche Lodge, but its size and location christened it immediately, "Rhone's Roost." But some day, when you have another convention in the Rocky Mountains; well, just you wait!

It's ours now, anyway, for last Christmas, Uncle Sam sent us a patent to it. Last fall, when the season was over, and we had returned from our horseback trip to Spirit Lake, we found Rhone's Roost waiting for us in all its fall setting of aspen hillsides and pine-tree background. An hour's trout fishing, after a half day of hard work clearing trails, burning brush, and building fire-breaks, gave us, I imagine, something of the pioneer's pride in providing his own food and eating it within walls erected by his own hands. There's a funny little thrill about it, anyway.

But to go back with you, down the valley. You'll pass Bowen Gulch Trail, and wonder a bit, at the similarity of the two peaks, Baker and Bowen. Perhaps your driver will tell you something of the mining boom of the eighties up the gulches. Or maybe he'll point out to you the location of a long-deserted mining town, Gaskel, where only sunken foundations mark the saloon, the cabin, the boarding house of frontier days. The trees hide the town-site from you, however.

If you stop, finally, at Grand Lake Lodge, you'll get your first glimpse of the lake and the village roofs a mile away from the wide porch of the lodge. Then when you make your first trip to the lake shore, you'll pass the very Cupboard doors on your way from the village street to the boat landing. Give the $\Pi \Phi$ whistle, and if I'm not fudging a cake or doing something from which I'm equally inextricable, I'll be right out, with a megaphone if need be, to point out to you "the scenic wonders of these, our Rocky Mountains." However, if cooks, waitresses, and dish-washers show no migratory tendencies on the eve of convention, I'll see you all in Estes Park the last week in June.

(Eloise Sterling, Colorado B, was born in Denver, Colo., and did her college work at the University of Denver. The College of Speech Arts in Denver and the Columbia College of Expression in Chicago gave her the inspiration and training for interpretative and dramatic work. For five years Miss Sterling taught dramatic literature in a high school and for the past two years has been Assistant Director of the Pasadena Community Playhouse Association, 83-85 North Fair Oaks Ave., Pasadena, Cal. The following article speaks for itself.—THE EDITOR.)

Pasadena, Cal., April 8, 1923.

Dear Pi Phis:

As Assistant Director of the Pasadena Community Playhouse, I am called upon to answer innumerable inquiries in regard to every phase of our organization, and it occurred to me recently that you active college girls and you alumnae concerned with things cultural, educational, social and pleasurable, might find some interest in hearing about what has come to be known as the model institution of its kind in this country.

The inception of our Playhouse as a Community Organization goes back to the fall of 1917, when a few courageous Drama Leaguers sponsored our first productions. It was real pioneer work; people were not converted to the Community idea; the word "amateur" called forth in the minds of most people, visions of the high school and college "horrors" in which they had once participated. The only available theater was an old burlesque house with every imaginable inconvenience; poorly heated, poorly ventilated, poorly located and with a shoddy reputation into the bargain. With these handicaps it is easy to understand why our first audiences were small; anywhere from eight to sixty shivering people in a house whose seating capacity is four hundred ninety. For with practically no funds for production expense, economy must perforce extend across the footlights. Heating the building became a matter of secondary consideration, but the most ardent audience will congeal by ten-thirty P. M. in a cold playhouse regardless of the play. Well do I remember our weekly trips when we installed and carried our own heating plant; a hot water bottle carefully disguised in a patriotic knitting bag, my partner and I sharing its comforting warmth by Acts; Act 1 to her, Act 2 to me, etc. . . .

The first influenza epidemic would have caused our sudden demise had it not been for a heaven-sent gift of two thousand dollars from a woman whose interest and faith were great. Credit and a bank account are a panacea for all ill it seems, and it was not long before our anaemic-looking enterprise grew round and ruddy. It seems preordained that all seekers and purveyors of Art must struggle. The way to glory is blocked many times; Dragons of Poverty, Public Opinion and Commercial Competition are to be met at every turn, but these all tend, finally, toward a solidarity that means much for permanent growth.

ELOISE STERLING, Colorado B

We are now closing our sixth year of uninterrupted activity; two productions every month, each running for one week, with one Saturday matinee. Occasionally a very popular play will run a second week but our program is so full that we cannot often take advantage of this "box office opportunity."

We are not an "Art" or "Little Theater," but a real Community Playhouse, striving to reach and interest every type of person one might find in any average American city. Our program for one year covers the entire field of Drama, ranging from gayest farce to blackest tragedy. Among our recent productions have been such plays as Clare Kummer's Good Gracious Annabelle; Salisbury Field's Wedding Bells; George Middleton's Polly with a Past; Shaw's Arms and the Man, and Androcles and the Lion; Pinero's Trelawney of the Wells and His House in Order; Sheridan's School for Scandal; Moody's The Great Divide; Gillette's Sherlock Holmes; Augustus Thomas' The Copperhead; Ibsen's An Enemy of the People; Galsworthy's Strife; Knoblock's My Lady's Dress; Hazelton and Benrimo's The Yellow Jacket; Dickens' The Cricket on the Hearth; Eugene O'Neill's Beyond the Horizon; Alcott's Little Women; Jerome's The Passing of the Third Floor Back, and Montague Glass' Potash and Perlmutter.

Our Shakespearian record is high. In our six years of work we have produced ten plays, each running from seven to fourteen performances. They are Twelfth Night, The Tempest, The Merry Wives of Windsor, The Taming of the Shrew, Much Ado about Nothing, A Midsummer Night's Dream, The Comedy of Errors, King Lear, As You Like It, and Love's Labours Lost. In the production of our Shakespearian dramas and all other plays for that matter, our audiences are seeing the best and newest things in stagecraft. Our King Lear was an example of what is being done abroad in startling expressionism, and while it brought down on our ambitious heads a great deal of local criticism during its eleven performances, it seems after all to have been the outstanding production of the year in so far as our national reputation is concerned. We are still receiving commendation from a wide variety of sources for our spirit in applying the expressionistic stage setting to the classic drama. Surely there is no better test. If there is anything of permanent value in these new ideas of stagecraft their application to a drama such as Lear ought to vivify the starkness of its tragedy.

Though we have never been able to increase the size of our stage, which is miserably small, sixteen feet deep and twenty feet wide, we have added year by year to our lighting and scenic equipment so that now we can and do produce "sets" that call forth unstinted praise, comparing favorably with the best that is being done in the experimental theaters all over the world.

Anyone who cares to, may act. We are rather up against it sometimes to find rôles for those who are sure they would have been "great actors," but eventually we find a place for everyone who longs for this manner of self expression. There are people who play the usual two times a year for us, who find their only emotional outlet through working in one of our casts. The size of the part makes no difference; it is just the doing it, the getting away from themselves and their routine employment that makes them live from one "show" to the next. The existence of our organization is justified entirely by the personal joy and freedom thus brought into the lives of these few.

Each play is cast with the help of the casting committee, members of which represent every class in Pasadena, social, professional, business and student. So it turns out that in every play one finds a group of people who would never in the wide world have gotten together under any other circumstances to work for the same end. Oak Knoll millionaires are frequently cast opposite bank clerks, stenographers, salespeople, mechanics or servants. Social barriers do not exist in our playhouse. There the make-believe of the play is the all absorbing thought, and a great spirit of comradeship and teamwork springs into being at the first rehearsal. After twelve or fourteen rehearsals and seven performances our casts are genuinely miserable over severing their associations and they close the play with eager hopes for a part in the "next show." It is easy to see how tremendous are the opportunities of a Community Playhouse as a socializing agency. The unseen workers on every production frequently outnumber the actual players, for there is always the committee on production, whose privilege it is to design the settings, attend to the choosing and rental of furnishings and the collecting of properties. Then there is the wardrobe committee (often very large where costume plays are concerned and clothes are to be made), whose duty it is to design the costumes, arrange the general color scheme, make or borrow costumes according to the type of play. A music committee provides overtures and intermission numbers. These three groups bring in hundreds of talented people who never appear before the footlights but without whom the play would never "get across."

To make professional actors is farthest from the purpose of our organization. Community Players are all amateurs in the best sense of the word, in that they play for the love of it rather than as a business. They all volunteer their services. The only ones receiving pay are the directoral and business staffs who give their entire time to the work. Nor are we trying to amass a bank account for the association. Self support is all we ask. Some months we break even, frequently we find ourselves on the red ink side of the ledger, but we hop over again with a popular play and go on our merry way rejoicing.

So tremendous has been the growth of this Community Playhouse idea throughout the country, and so numerous are the groups that are organizing, that it has given rise to a new vocation, that of community play directing. The usual commercial theater director fails, because he does not know how to handle amateur and volunteer service. A social welfare background is the great essential, with as much knowledge as possible of the theater added. To meet this great need we are conducting a six-weeks' summer course annually under the direction of the most able men and women available in the field of Community Drama.

The success of our own playhouse is due in a great measure to the never ending work and the unswerved from ideals of our director, Gilmore Brown. Through years of discouragement he has never lost sight of the great possibilities for entertainment, education, and spiritual regeneration which lie in this great community movement, and now his leadership in this field of creative work is nationally recognized.

Our greatest hopes, thrills and heart-throbs just now are for our new playhouse which we expect to open with a "smashing" big performance late in the fall. The deed for our lot is already tucked away in the business manager's pocket and the plans for our new home are completed. The building will be Spanish in type with a fifty-foot square patio, fascinating stairways, arcades, colorful dressing and lounging rooms, a stage that is a stage, with a rehearsal room of stage dimensions, and plenty of storage room for scenery, props and costumes. With these good dreams coming true, you may expect much of us in the future.

Will you not, dear Pi Phi, on your California trips, stop by and see if we are making good?

Sincerely yours,

ELOISE STERLING.

BASEBALL TRIP TO JAPAN

BY EDNA HATFIELD EDMONDSON (Mrs. C. E.), Indiana B(Continued from March ARROW)

This room was like the first except that the pillows were ranged around the room in regular order, in a sort of semicircle, and in front of each pillow was a table. These "tables" are more like small trays on stools than anything I know of. They are about a foot and a half square and a foot high. On these there was already placed the first course.

This first course consisted of a few slices of raw fish in a small bowl, with horseradish and sauce in another small bowl, a tiny dish of baked fish, and a small covered bowl of soup. There were only chopsticks to eat with.

The necessity for small dishes can readily be understood from the size of the tables and the fact that the dishes are not removed after each course. As it was, by the end of the dinner our tiny tables were overflowing onto the floor.

For the second course there was a covered bowl of stew containing as nearly as we could make out two or three squares of beef and three kinds of vegetables: potatoes, a rare vegetable resembling a mushroom, and a sort of greens like a bundle of diminutive spinach stalks.

The third course was rice and a bowl of cooked celery garnished with paprika; the fourth, a bowl of fish and soup; the fifth, rice brought in in "peck measures" of lacquered wood and served in bowls, and a dish of radishes and pickle; and the sixth, bananas. Sandwiched in between courses there were songs and toasts, my husband responding to the alumni welcoming address in his stocking feet without apparent loss of dignity. At the end of the dinner there were more Japanese games, an exhibition of the Maple Dance, and Japanese music—the whole lasting until almost eleven o'clock when we were escorted to our hotel.

Mr. Okada arranged to take the whole party to the government sericultural station, the silk experiment station, near Tokyo. We were met in the reception room by the director and members of his staff and after a little conversation were served the inevitable tea before being taken about. We received a sort of overshoe of brown canton flannel to slip over our shoes.

After we had been properly refreshed and shod we were conducted all over the experiment station. We saw the mulberry nurseries and learned something of the importance of the selection of the best variety of plants for Japan, methods of cultivation of the plants and diseases against which they must be guarded. We saw the silk worm eggs, trays full of worms in five stages of development, and jars of cocoons—white, yellow, pink, brown and green.

In the winding room we watched the girls sitting in long rows at tables, each with a small vat of hot water in front of her filled with cocoons from which the almost unbelievably fine silk thread was being unwound, threaded through a system of special harness above the girls and rewound on whirling spindles behind them. We were told that each cocoon furnishes about a half mile of thread so fine that we could scarcely see it with our naked eye. It is the business of the girls to tend the machinery at their particular places, to watch for broken threads and otherwise keep the process going. The experiment station serves as a sort of training school, and these girls, who discard their kimonos while at work for more practical costumes of white waists and skirts, come in from the outlying provinces to learn the newest and most effective processes to go back to teach others in their communities.

We were taken to the chemical and bacteriological laboratories, to the animal room where rabbits and other animals are kept for experimental purposes, and were shown and had explained to us, in so far as our understanding could follow, the entire scientific process of silk culture from the time the egg is hatched till the silk threads are wound and twisted into taffy looking hanks, and pressed into bales ready to be taken to the weaving factories in Japan or shipped by fastest trains and boats to foreign countries.

Our morning at Shiba Park was pitifully short for any sort of appreciation of the magnificent temples, shrines and mansolea there. A student of Keio University guided us along the winding paths, across the bridges, up the steps dug in the steep hillsides, through the trees and among the flowers, not only to refuse to take any remuneration for his service but to express his gratitude for the opportunity to talk with us and so improve his English! It was here that we saw the most gorgeous display of azaleas. We stood in one spot and counted ten different shades in white, pink, red, orange, lavender and purple. In addition there were delicate, wax-like camellias growing far above our heads and trellises of lavender wistaria.

Mr. Ishii and Mrs. Abè took us to the photographer to have our pictures taken in Japanese dress. For the men Mr. Ishii brought his father's black ceremonial robe, the "dress suit" of Japan, and for the women, Mrs. Abè brought one of her daughter's costumes. This latter consisted of a brilliant scarlet under robe, a rich, deep purple kimono, both of the most beautiful silk, and a wonderful obi (sash) embroidered in green and gold. The ties used to loop up the kimono and hold the obi in place were white, pink and scarlet.

We had great fun dressing. Mrs. Abè, of course, had to show us how and help us, and I do not know who was more interested—she in the American clothes we laid aside or we in the Japanese ones we put on. The Japanese shoes were decidedly uncomfortable to our unaccustomed toes, and we had considerable difficulty in getting down on to the floor to do our primping before the mirror in the regulation Japanese dressing table with which the room was furnished.

When we finally announced ourselves as ready and joined the men we found that having a picture taken in Japan is not a matter to be hurried. Our photographer, one of the best in Tokyo, spared no pains to have everything correct to the last detail. Sitting on pillows in Japanese style, sitting on chairs, standing this way or that, every fold of the kimono must be just so, the position of the ceremonial fan must not vary an inch. These pictures will be among our most prized possessions as time passes.

In order that we might see something more of the country than Tokyo and Yokohama, a series of games was arranged at Osaka under the auspices of the Osaka Mainichi, one of the most influential Japanese newspapers in the Empire. In this way we not only saw much of the open country, but visited Kyoto and Nara, two of the ancient capitals, and Kobe, one of the most important industrial centers of Japan.

On this trip we left Tokyo during the morning and finished the eleven-hour journey well after dark. The fields, laid out in tiny squares, were planted at this time in wheat, clover, barley, buckwheat, and mustard for the most part, although in some, vegetables were growing—chiefly onions and potatoes. Fields here and there were flooded with water where rice had just been sowed. Plants from these seed beds would later be transplanted to the surrounding fields after the present crops were harvested. The size and shape of the fields gave the whole country the appearance of a patchwork quilt. This effect was heightened by the alternating colors of the flowers—the white flowers of the buckwheat and the blue flowers of the barley, in contrast with the pink clover and yellow mustard, against the green of the wheat heads and the sheen of the standing water as a background.

Occasionally we saw a mulberry "plantation," and in the terraced hills we saw the women and children picking tea leaves from shrubs not much higher than their heads. It was drizzling rain and the workers in the fields had donned their grass rain coats. As we crossed into the mountain country we saw many beautiful clear streams and waterfalls furnishing power for cotton spinning, rice threshing and other industrial processes. We saw great aqueducts carrying water to irrigate fields miles away.

The houses, either standing alone or grouped in villages, were built back against the hills in order to take up the least possible valuable farming space. In contrast to the tile roofs of the cities, these houses were thatched with straw. Here and there the combs of the roofs were planted with iris, the green contrasting vividly with the dull brown of the thatch. Many of the foothills were wooded and we were told that further back in the mountains were great forests of ash, pine, cedar, and maple. In the low country were the bamboo groves.

As the sun went down we pressed our faces against the windows of the train to watch the gorgeous play of colors in the sky and their reflection in the water standing in the fields. No Japanese color print can exaggerate these colors. Against the background of gray shadows in the woods there was first brilliant scarlet, then rose, then lavender, then purple, then intense deep blue, and finally gray over all.

Our day of sightseeing at Kyoto was one of idle dreamy romance. The hotel at Osaka had packed our lunch in neat little boxes, and after visiting the Higashi-Hongwanji Temple and looking about the city of Kyota, Professor Abè took us to Arashiyama, where we ate in the park on the banks of the picturesque Hodzu River. After lunch Professor Abè chartered several long flat-bottomed boats with canopies overhead, and strong-armed boatmen poled us up the river some distance to the first hot springs. As we floated lazily back down stream we recorded lasting memory pictures of the deep green water swirling round great granite boulders lying in the bed of the stream, the dark densely wooded mountains in the background, the high banks on both sides of the stream with pine, cherry, and maple trees growing wherever they could find a foothold, and wistaria vines in full bloom hanging from the sides of the cliffs like wild grape-vines at home.

Another day Professor Abè took us to historic Nara. Here we took rikashas at the station to go through the Park and to reach the temples and shrines. In the Park we dismissed our rikashas for a while to wander among the gnarled old pine trees and clumps of brilliant azalleas. We bought strings of little brown cookies to feed the sacred deer so tame that at times we almost had to fight them off as they scrambled over each other for cakes and attention.

After a little while we met our rikasha drivers who had been instructed to wait for us to take us to the temples. We rode down long narrow avenues lined with moss-grown stone lanterns and tall pines from the very tops of which hung great ropes of wistaria. Everywhere there were the sacred deer, lying in the shade, wandering in and out among the lanterns, or standing in the roadway.

The scarlet lacquering of the temples and toriis here is especially brilliant. Most of the temples have roofs of wood thatch, some looking to be twelve to eighteen inches thick, and often just beneath the eaves hang long rows of the bronze lanterns so familiar in picture and story. It was here that Kipling's temple bells a-calling really became a part of us as we heard the wonderful big bell rung by a wooden beam swung against it. It sounded like the soft, deep-throated notes of a mammoth organ. In some places here the wistaria had been trained on trellises and I measured flower stalks a yard long studded thick with lavender blossoms hanging through the trellis-work.

Another day Mr. Isobe took us to Kobe to his beautiful home, half Japanese and half American in style, to meet his charming wife and sturdy five-year-old son. In the afternoon he took us to Maiko, on the seashore. In the park here we saw some of the finest examples of ancient gnarled and twisted pines so characteristic of Japan. After strolling along the beach we went to a tea house overlooking the sea where we could sit and watch the fisher folk—men, women, and children—set and haul in the sardine nets.

We stayed until after four o'clock when the great fleets of sail boats, looking like flocks of white gulls, put out to sea to fish all night and return the next morning. We returned to Mr. Isobe's home for a dinner, "not too Japanese, but not with all the Japanese taken out if it" according to Mr. Isobe's directions. After dinner Mrs. Isobe delighted us at her piano until time to return to Osaka to get a night's rest before returning to Tokyo to pack up for the trip home.

Three events at the time we were in Japan combined to fill Tokyo with great crowds of people. At no other time could we have seen such a number of types from all over the Empire.

The first of these events was the visit of the Prince of Wales. Wherever he went the streets were packed with people to see him. Often school children were lined up on both sides of the streets waiting patiently for hours to shout and wave little flags of the Japanese and British Empires as he passed. The streets along which he was scheduled to drive were always gaily decorated and were especially prepared for his automobile with a coating of very fine gravel. As pedestrian or jinrikasha bound on necessary business disturbed the smooth surface of the gravel, it was carefully swept back into place by workmen stationed there for the purpose.

Another event that accounted for the crowds in the city was the Peace Exposition at Ueyno Park. This exposition, corresponding to our world's fairs, was conducted for four months at a public expense of 5,000,000 yen ($2,500,000.00) we had too short a time to see much of the arts, crafts, and industrial products—mostly oriental—on display. It was here that we saw the famous cherry blossom dance in the theater.

But a greater attraction to the Japanese than either of these two events, because deep rooted in their national customs, was the festival season—the cherry blossom season—when people from all over Japan, young and old, rich and poor, gather in Toyko to worship at the temples or to celebrate with true Japanese abandon. We saw bands of pilgrims from remote districts in their "old-fashioned, backwoods" costumes elbowed aside by a group of gay, laughing young people, as we struggled to get through the crowds in the streets.

The traffic in the streets was a never ending source of wonderment to us. There were vehicles of all sorts—carts of many varieties, wagons, sprinkling boxes, bicycles, rikashas, and automobiles. It is the age of the bicycle in Japan and at times we occupied ourselves by seeing how many we could count in the street at one time. There are few automobiles in Japan, due to the purposely prohibitive license fee; 484 yen $(242.00) a year, the lowest fee, and ranging on up for the larger machines—more interesting than the kinds of vehicles themselves was the power which propelled them. At any one time on the Ginza, the principal street of Tokyo, we might see vehicles drawn by horse power, man power, woman power, ox power, cow power, gasolene and electricity, as our rikasha driver trotted along clearing the way in front of him by shouting "hoik hoik" and vigorously ringing his tiny bicycle bell.

We never tired of watching the life on the canals. The barge-like boats being poled back and forth were used not only for transportation but also for homes for families. Children are born on these boats and grow to maturity knowing no other home. Babies looking as though their little round heads would certainly fall off slept soundly, strapped securely and snugly on the backs of mothers who were doing their share in poling the boat or swinging the great oar attached to the back.

We spent one afternoon in Tokyo down at the Bay sitting on the dock watching the ferry. Officious looking little tugs plied across pulling the ferries loaded with passengers, bicycles, carts, and freight. There were occasional very heavy pieces of freight. As the workmen lifted these heavy pieces they chanted a sort of sing song on the lift reminding us somewhat of the darky deck hands on the Ohio river boats of days gone by.

Another evening we spent in a park in Osaka alongside the canals watching the pleasure boats which appear nightly with the first gray shadows. These pleasure boats—small-sized row boats—are used almost entirely by men and boys. Each boat is equipped with a Japanese paper lantern swung on a short bamboo pole in the bow; and as hundreds of them dashed back and forth, the lighted lanterns bobbing about and reflecting in the water, the effect was like a great swarm of fireflies.

Although our hotel was a foreign hotel (we of course being the foreigners) it was used a great deal by Japanese and gave us the opportunity to observe certain phases of Japanese life and customs. It was used by the Japanese especially for wedding receptions. Scarcely was there an evening on which there was not at least one such reception with its rustle and bustle and flurry of guests, and some evenings there were three or four. Our room was at the end of the hall down which the guests must pass and I confess to leaving our door ajar in frank curiosity. Sometimes the reception included guests from the official circles of Japan and we were often quite awed by the display of gold lace and the clanking of swords. One evening we had pointed out to us the very distinguished Admiral Kato and Admiral Yamajaki.

The entertainment provided at these receptions was often very elaborate and must have been very expensive. One evening we slipped into the back of the room where a dramatic performance was being given by some of the most celebrated actors in Japan. We were told that it was a most artistic presentation of the ancient drama but unfortunately we were not sufficiently familiar with Japanese drama to understand or appreciate it.

We estimated that about one-third of the Japanese men we saw in the larger cities—Yokohama, Tokyo, Osaka, and Kobe—wore European clothes. In our entire stay we saw only five Japanese women wear anything but the Japanese dress. Japanese women of refinement are beginning to wear much gayer colors in recent years but on the streets their clothes appeared rather dull to us. While the national dress is handed down from generation, there is beginning to be a hint of seasonal styles even for Japanese women. Especially is this true of color style. When we were there it was a lavender year, and as we looked through half-closed eyes in the silk rooms of the big department stores in Tokyo there appeared to be a lavender haze over all.

The preponderance of the Japanese national dress somewhat overwhelmed us. We found ourselves slipping from the moorings of our own ingrained sense of the proper thing and occasionally brought ourselves up sharply in sudden terror lest we find ourselves at the breakfast table in party dress! In our short stay the custom of leaving the dirt of the street to the street instead of bringing it inside with us took firm hold upon us. In the homes, in the tea houses, and small shops we took our shoes off before entering; and in the larger stores, theaters, and public buildings we were given the canton flannel overshoes. Only in railway stations and in the foreign hotels in which we stayed were we ever allowed to walk in with our "boots on." This is certainly one Japanese custom which would make a most important contribution to our American house-keeping methods.

Every foreigner is, of course, fascinated with the shops. The few large department stores are much like ours in America and our shopping in them was not much of a novelty. But it was the little shops which open right onto the street that held our attention most. There were the china shops, the print shops the ivory shops, the dry goods shops, the tea shops, the stationery shops, the shoe shops, the toy shops, the umbrella shops—separate shops to sell every sort of thing.

We were not in the country long enough to be converted entirely to the universal custom of tea drinking. When we went shopping in a party, we were served tea before we were shown any goods; when we visited Shiba Park we were served tea as we waited at the entrance for our rikashas; when we visited the government sericultural station we were served tea before being taken over the establishment. On the desk of the business man there was always the teapot. At the railway stations as the trains passed through, there were venders of tea each equipped with pots, cups, little bags of tea and big copper kettles of hot water. For ten sen (5 cents) we could get a pot of freshly made tea and a cup to take on the train with us. When we finished we put the pot and cup under the seat to be removed at the end of the journey, and distributed back along the line to repeat the process.

AN APPEAL FOR NEAR EAST CHILDREN

Jeannette Lemon Bestor (Mrs. Arthur E., Indiana A), wife of the President of Chautauqua Institution, at Chautauqua, N. Y., has joined the Woman's National Committee of the Near East Relief. The former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, is the chairman of this committee, which is aiding the Relief Organization to meet the extraordinary expenses arising from the enforced moving of 20,000 orphans from Turkey.

Mrs. Bestor says:

"In 1922 I had the unusual opportunity to travel through the Eastern Mediterranean countries and to see some of the relief work of the Near East Relief. There is an orphanage near Beirut, Syria, at Jebail, which I visited. A group of 600 boys are being taken care of there, very simply but kindly, healthfully and intelligently. They are alert lads, anxious to learn, willing and eager to work. I saw them at the noon hour. The band assembled to play the 'Star Spangled Banner.' Then all these 600 orphans filed into the old silk mill, made over into a dining hall, sang a Gregorian chant as their blessing and quietly sat down to their meal of rice soup and bread, bread which some of them had made in their own bake shop. This instance will show the result of the training they are receiving and the true character that is being developed in these orphans. In order to aid the expectant mothers and tiny babes who were coming into Beirut as refugees, these boys asked to give up their allowance of meat and to send the money to aid these homeless babies. And they had meat only twice a week at the orphanage!

"There were so many homeless and so much suffering there, I am stunned to think what must be the desperate conditions now since the Smyrna fire and the evacuations from Turkish territory. We have reason to be happy that through American aid the N. E. R. has been able to do so much toward relieving the distress of many thousands in the past few years. But we must realize that an emergency of great proportions has arisen during the last six months and the resources of the Near East Relief must be augmented to meet this crisis. Shall we not be glad that at this time we have the opportunity to show the true Chautauqua spirit of helpfulness by enabling the N. E. R. to relieve directly the misery of millions in the Near East.

"The organization is endorsed by President Harding, by the National Information Bureau, by churches of all creeds, by fraternal, civic, commercial, educational and social organizations. Since its inception it has saved more than a million lives. A large portion of these people are now self-supporting. Forty-four fully equipped hospitals have been established together with clinics and child-welfare centers. The greatest work of the organization, however, has been in the care of the orphan children whose parents have been massacred or deported. To-day there are 125 orphanages, the largest of which, at Alexandropol, houses 17,000 children. Within the orphanages, the Near East Relief aims to give the children a fundamental education combined with industrial training, stress being laid on the perpetuation of the native industries. These boys and girls under American care are developing into stalwart, self-reliant men and women, well skilled in those arts and crafts which alone can bring peace and prosperity to the long suffering Levant. They are the potential leaders of a new era in the Near East."

ETA PROVINCE PRESIDENT

It is the singular good fortune of Eta Province to welcome as its new president, Vivian White Scott (Mrs. John Terrell), Colorado A, of Colorado Springs.

Mrs. Scott was graduated from the University of Colorado in 1917, after which she returned to her home in Kansas City for a year. In June, 1922, she returned to Colorado and became the bride of Dr. John Terrell Scott, $\Phi \Delta \Theta$, and a graduate of Harvard.

After her initiation into Colorado A on February 14, 1916, Vivian White Scott became an enthusiastic and active supporter of all $\Pi \text{ B } \Phi$ interests and in the four years of her fraternity life perhaps no other figure stood out in the chapter so indicative of the force that personality can exert in the dominance of chapter policies. She was called upon constantly to serve on various committees and her unfailing good humor and total unselfishness made her a general favorite both upon the campus and in the fraternity.

She possessed an unusual gift for remembering names and faces and a happy faculty for putting everyone at ease by her sweet and gracious manner.

In 1918-19, she served on the Big Sister committee and later on the patriotic League committee and the following summer attended the $\Pi \text{ B } \Phi$ convention at Charlevoix. Upon her return from convention she was elected president of the chapter in which position her tactful administration of affairs made her an acknowledged leader and won for her a wide circle of friends.

Her rare tact, her happy disposition and her genuine kindness of manner have given her a well deserved reputation for popularity.

ALPHA PROVINCE HOUSE-PARTY

A most enjoyable house-party was held last summer by Alpha Province which included the following members: Marion Reid, Massachusetts A; Ruth Barker, New York A; Frances Pearson, New York Γ ; Ruth Kilbown and Jean McQueen, Ontario A; Marie Bateman, Dr. Edith A. Gordon and Jessie Starr McCormick, Ontario A, and Mary H. Smith, New York Δ .

The party was entertained on June 17 by the members of Ontario A and had an excellent opportunity to meet many of the girls. That afternoon we left for the summer home of Mrs. McCormick at Stoney Lake, in the heart of the Canadian wilds. The approach to the home was made through a series of small lakes, each of which was distinctly beautiful. The mainland was of lesser importance as most of the cottages were situated upon individual islands. Such an arrangement lent the privacy and isolation so desirable for a party such as ours.

"Star's Island," as the natives call Mrs. McCormick's home is especially attractive. The tall dark pines, the lapping blue lake, the low hung moon or the orange and violet sunset brought memories of a Maxfield Parrish or perhaps a Remington.

Most of the time was spent in swimming, canoeing, and picnicing. We had many strawberry hunts and luncheons on the shore. Always we went armed with citronella or some other abnoxious concoction guaranteed to ward off mosquitoes. Poor Frances and Ruth seemed to be especial prey to the beasts. The rest of us were more fortunate but those two afforded great amusement with their many bottles and bandages.

The whole party was delightfully informal. We just knew and loved each other every moment, and learned each other's points of view.

Ontario A has always felt that we in the States thought her different and could never understand why. I believe the week's associations convinced all of us that Canadian and American Pi Phis are all the same.

We found it very interesting to discuss how things are done in different colleges. We exchanged plans for rushing parties, songs, Panhellenic rules and problems and compared advantages of owning or renting a chapter house.

One morning Dr. Gordon talked with us about our Health Program and we gathered whatever information and suggestions we could give her. We discussed the possibility of having a $\Pi \Phi$ dietitian who would prepare lists of menus for use in the various chapter houses.

We left Stoney Lake on Saturday, June 24, after a most glorious week. Ontario A was kind enough to meet us again and I can say with sincerity that I have never enjoyed myself more.

Mrs. McCormick was such a charming hostess and Dr. Gordon such an old friend that the party could not help from being the greatest kind of a success. To me it was a real experience. I was able to bring back to New York Δ the appreciation of the lives and thoughts of other chapters and most of all the realization of the true $\Pi \Phi$ spirit and the feeling of fellowship that it must necessarily bring.

This at best is a rather sketchy account. So much time has passed that many interesting details have escaped my memory but the whole stands out as one of the very brightest and happiest spots.

It is the desire of the editor to make this a news department. Facts concerning Pi Phis who are doing interesting things will be greatly appreciated.—THE EDITOR.

EDNA HATFIELD EDMONDSON

Edna Hatfield Edmondson, the wife of Dean C. E. Edmondson of the University of Indiana, is the author of "A Baseball Trip in Japan" which appeared in the March ARROW and is continued in the June issue. Mrs. Edmondson accompanied her husband and the party of baseball men from the University of Indiana on their recent trip to Japan and as official reporter of the trip has given a very vivid account of the journey.

Edna Hatfield Edmondson was initiated into Indiana B in 1907 and has since then obtained the following college degrees: A.B., 1911; A.M., 1914, and Ph.D., 1917.

EDNA HATFIELD EDMONDSON, Indiana B

At present Mrs. Edmondson is assistant professor in extension at Indiana University, Bloomington; executive secretary of the State Parent-Teacher Association and also past president of that organization; executive secretary of the State Child Welfare Association; vice-chairman of Child Welfare Committee of the Indiana Federation of Clubs; a member of the Child Welfare Committee of the Indiana League of Women Voters; vice-president of Indiana Conference of Charities and Correction; vice-president, Indiana Indorsers of Photoplays; temporary chairman of Indiana Health Council and a member of the executive committee of the Indiana Committee on Social Legislation.

The thoroughness with which Mrs. Edmondson reported her trip to Japan is most characteristic of her work in every line, and she is a co-worker with her husband who is at present Dean of Men and Head of the Department of Hygiene of Indiana University.

WINIFRED HILL MAXFIELD

By ETHELYN HARDESTY CLEAVER, Pennsylvania Γ

A fraternity woman "in deed and in truth" is Winifred Hill Maxfield, (Mrs. B. L.), Massachusetts A, who has the unique distinction of having served within the last four years as president of three large fraternity organizations: namely, The New York Alumnae Club of $\Pi B \Phi$, the Panhellenic Association of New York City and the Association of $\Phi B K$ alumnae in New York, which presidency she now holds. Although $\Pi B \Phi$ loves to claim her for its own, in a sense she belongs to all women's fraternities because of the broad service she has rendered to them.

Mrs. Maxfield was born in Boston, Mass. Her pre-college training was obtained at the Holyoke, Mass., grammar school where she led her class and at the Somerville, Mass., High School where she graduated in 1894, sharing the honor of valedictorian with one other member of her class. She then entered Boston University, and became a charter member of Massachusetts A in 1896. Concerning her relation to Massachusetts A, a fraternity sister writes:

"She was one of our beloved founders of the chapter—staunch and true; always an actively functioning member—an anchor to windward in the storms of its early life. She was elected delegate to the Madison Convention but was unable to attend. After graduation she was one of the organizers of the Boston Alumnae Club."

Mrs. Maxfield graduated from Boston University in 1896 with the degree of A.B. Mathematics, Greek and Latin had been her major subjects. She subsequently did graduate work at her Alma Mater and at Harvard. Boston University had no chapter of $\Phi B K$ when she graduated, but her record in scholarship was such that in 1918—twenty years after graduation—she was elected to membership, together with the other members of her class who were entitled to the honor.

After graduation, Mrs. Maxfield taught in Rockland, Me., Kingston, N. H., Plymouth, and Watertown, Mass. A school principal of thirty-five years experience under whom she served, says that "For natural ability, loyalty and scholastic preparation, for executive ability, power to control and success as a teacher, I never had any one who was her superior."

But the teaching profession was to lose her. On July 29, 1907, she was married to Berton Lewis Maxfield, $\Phi \Gamma \Delta$, a New York lawyer, a graduate of Brown University (1901), whose attainments are given in the 1918 edition of "Who's Who in New York." They have one son, Berton L. Jr., a student at Erasmus Hall High School, which is comparatively near the Maxfield home at 3058 Bedford Ave., Brooklyn.

Soon after coming to Greater New York to live, Mrs. Maxfield was appointed secretary of the New York Alumnae Club of $\Pi B \Phi$, and in 1918 was elected president.

During Mrs. Maxfield's presidency of the alumnae club, at the suggestion of two members of the Grand Council, invitations to a Panhellenic tea were issued to the seventeen other women's fraternity organizations in New York City. This proved to be the beginning of the New York City Panhellenic Association. According to national Panhellenic rules, $\Pi B \Phi$ was entitled to the presidency, and Mrs. Maxfield fittingly became the first president. It was while she was president that $K K \Gamma$ proposed that a Panhellenic clubhouse should be built, upon which proposition a committee has been diligently working. Mrs. Maxfield is still serving on the Panhellenic board, being one of two delegates representing $\Pi B \Phi$.

The old saying "One thing leads to another," however, was again to be verified. In February, 1922, $\Phi B K$ alumnae were invited to meet at Columbia University for the purpose of forming an association. Mrs. Maxfield attended. A nominating committee was appointed. Soon after the meeting, she was asked to accept the nomination of president, her name having been proposed by a member of the committee, an A O II, who knew her from Panhellenic associations. Thus, somewhat reluctantly, for, as Mrs. Maxfield expressed it, she "had hoped to mark time for a while," Mrs. Maxfield became the first president of the Φ B K alumnae in New York, and has filled the position ably. She also has the honor of being a member of the executive committee of the New York State Association of Φ B K, formed for the promotion of scholarship in the secondary schools of the state.

In addition to the previously mentioned activities, Mrs. Maxfield belongs to St. Paul's Congregational Church of Brooklyn, Brooklyn Colony of New England Women, American Association of University Women, Battle Pass Chapter of Daughters of American Revolution, a Bridge club, and a Shakespeare club. Her pet charities are the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, the Blind Player's Club, and work among the Chinese of the city.

It goes without saying that the subject of this sketch leads a busy life. One of her greatest pleasures and one over which her husband is equally enthusiastic, is camping. They have had some delightful experiences during the many vacations they have spent in this way. Their favorite camping sites have been in the White Mountains and the woods of Maine.

OLIVE RATHBUN WILCOX

BY GENEVIEVE McSWIGAN, Pennsylvania Δ

Although Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, has piloted crews of daring adventurers into the frozen lands of the north, it is a member of our own fraternity who "pilots" Stefansson's books and magazine articles through the intricacies of the publisher's establishment and helps to bring the stories of the Land of the Midnight Sun to the reading American public.

Olive Rathbun Wilcox, (Mrs. Horace N.), Wyoming A, is the private secretary to this man of international fame and may be found at her office at the American Geographical Society, Broadway at One Hundred and Fifty Sixth St., New York City.

Olive Rathbun graduated from the University of Wyoming in June, 1917, and in the fall went to New York City where she obtained a position as secretary to Ivy L. Lee, a publicity expert who was at that time assistant to the Director of the American Red Cross.

After holding this position for a year, she went to Newport News, Va., to work with the Commission on Training Camp Activities.

After the war Miss Rathbun found herself out of a position and began to look about for something to do. A few weeks prior to this time, Vilhjalmur Stefansson had returned from a five-year expedition in the Arctic and was introduced to Miss Rathbun by a mutual friend. Very soon after that she became his private secretary.

When asked whether she went on the explorations with Mr. Stefansson, she replied:

"When Mr. Stefansson is not in the Arctic, he spends most of his time lecturing and writing books and magazine articles. Of course, he writes them himself but I have been able to relieve him of a great deal of detail in revision, verification of facts by library reference, and the detail of seeing a book through the hands of the publisher. Then I do the routine secretarial work such as taking care of correspondence, paying Mr. Stefansson's bills, etc.

"There has been quite a lot of traveling in connection with my work which I have enjoyed, though there have been no expeditions. My most pleasant experience was a trip to England in the spring of 1920. I spent about four weeks there.

"One of the things that I have enjoyed most about my work is the opportunity it has given me to meet interesting persons and to widen my circle of friends in a way that would not otherwise have been possible.

"Ever since I came to New York four years ago I have been a member of the New York Alumnae Club. It is a decidedly 'live' organization and I have enjoyed it immensely."

Olive Rathbun was recently married to Horace N. Wilcox, A T Ω , a graduate of the University of Wyoming and Oxford University, but intends to continue her work with Mr. Stefansson.

KATHRYN BROWNE

BY GENEVIEVE McSWIGAN, Pennsylvania Δ

Kathryn Browne, Illinois Z, who is a mezzo-contralto with the Chicago Civic Opera Company, made her debut into Grand Opera some time ago with Mary Garden.

Kathryn Browne graduated from the University of Illinois in 1917 and while attending that institution sang in joint recital with Evan Williams and did solo work with all university organizations. She was also prominent in university dramatic productions and was a member of Mask and Bauble, honorary dramatic society, M K A, honorary musical society, Athenian, literary society and others.

After graduation, Miss Browne sang with Herman Devries of Chicago and entered upon an extensive concert tour throughout this country.

In March, 1919, she sailed for Europe to give concerts in the American camps under the joint auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the Overseas Theater League. Upon her return to this country she was appointed a member of the Music Faculty at the University of Illinois.

In June, 1921, she received the Degree of Doctor of Music. Some of the operas in which this eminent fraternity member has sung are: Parsifal, Rigoletto, Butterfly, Walkure, Jewels of the Madonna, and many others.

It is of especial interest to Pi Phis to know that Miss Browne sang the songs for the $\Pi B \Phi$ Phonograph Record which was made by the University Records Corporation under the direction of the New York Alumnae Club.

THE ROMANTIC CULT OF SOLITUDE IN THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY

BY ALICE LOUISE BARNDT, Illinois Δ

(By special request Miss Barndt has written the following article, since as a Pi Beta Phi Fellow she has been doing research work upon the question of the relation of the Cult of Solitude to the Romantic Return to Nature in the eighteenth century and the relation of Solitude to the Romantic interest in the Medieval.—THE EDITOR.)

Few people in this day and age delight in hours of solitude, and those few are rarely found in the complex life of our colleges and universities. If a detached observer were to attempt to fathom the design which underlies the arrangement of our college life, he would doubtless conclude that its purpose was to save its members from the danger of being alone with themselves. Everyone's schedule is crowded with classes, activities and amusements—which are all shared with other people.

The thought of spending a few hours with one's self was not always so distasteful. There have even been times, strange as it may now seem, when solitude has been praised as the ideal state. Among those who have recommended solitude are the poets of the Romantic Movement. In tracing the beginnings of Romanticism in the eighteenth century, it can be seen that a love for solitude and for a particular type of solitude was one of the distinguishing marks of the early Romantic poet. The Romantic idea of solitude was different from that conception which had predominated in the preceding centuries, for instead of spending the hours in solitude in philosophic contemplation and self-improvement, the Romantic poets enjoyed pensive day dreaming and solitary communion with nature.

The desire for solitude on the part of the early Romantic poets came largely as a reaction against the busy city life of the eighteenth century. Tired of the strenuous and elaborate etiquette of the city, they sought peace and freedom by retiring to the country and to solitude. This preference on the part of some of the early Romantic poets for retirement in the country rather than participation in city life, was in decided contrast to the attitude of the majority of the people of the eighteenth century. The conventional man of the period was an obstinate lover of the town.

ALICE LOUISE BARNDT
Illinois Δ

He took delight in coffee-houses, the crowded city streets and the conversation of the drawing room. He regarded anyone who lived in the country as being out of track with all that was worth while in life. Like Dr. Samuel Johnson he believed that "after one has gathered the apples of an orchard, one wishes them well-baked, and removed to a London eating house for enjoyment."

Some of the poets of this time, however, found more pleasure in the solitude of an orchard, than in the society of a London eating house. Retirement to the country afforded a refuge from the activity and noise of the city, for this London that some were beginning to dislike was a busy place where everyone hurried about, intent upon his own affairs. It was noisy, too, for the crowded streets gave forth a babel of sounds made up of the town-criers, the ballad-singers, the coaches rumbling over stone pavements and the shrill voices of the people. This "vain ardour of the crowd" with its accompanying noise was unpleasant to those who longed for quiet and peace in some place of retirement:

'Mongst Paths so lost and Trees so high,
That the world may ne'er invade.

There they might daydream, undisturbed by noisy intruders coming to relate the trivial news, as the Countess of Winchilsea expresses it, "of who's Deceas'd, or who's to Wed."

Solitude offered freedom from the restraints of conventional society. In the city a great deal of importance was placed upon outward behavior and the members of society were expected to conform to the general standards—not all, however, cared to cultivate the affected manners of the time or to ape the fashionable men of the period, who took pains in such minor matters as the graceful motion of his arms, the manner of putting on his hat and giving his hand. The art of "graceful dolling in a coach" and "genteel stepping in and out" was admired in a man by the "nicer ladies," along with such other qualities as "the smooth Dancing of a Minuet, the making a Love-song, the meat carving of a Fowl, or the thin paring of an apple." Those who were tired of this stress upon artificial manners and were "fatigu'd with form's oppressive laws" found relief in some rural retreat, where they need no longer follow the formal etiquette of the city, but could express their true feelings, confident that they would not be hampered by:

Restraint's stiff neck, Grimace's leer,
Squint-eyed censure's artful sneer.

The early Romantic poets disliked the corrupt men and women of the city for the polished, witty courtier with all his scrupulous attention to fine manners, was at heart often insincere and immoral. The "beau" of the town prided himself on being able to conduct intrigue with a flourish of fine manners. Sophistication of manner was admired in women, as well as in men, in the city life of the eighteenth century. The men considered woman as a creature that might be admired sometimes, but never adored. Perhaps the woman in society circles of that day, whose hours were occupied with "dress, parties, adulation" did not deserve veneration. Drinking, as well as smoking and snufftaking, was indulged in by many women. "Perdita" Robinson, one of the minor Romanticists of the period, mentions in her Memoirs that her schoolmistress often resorted to drink to drown her sorrow. She also suspected her sister-in-law of the same weakness, for although not more than twenty years of age, this young lady had "a countenance somewhat more ruddy than was consistent with even pure health." That it was society that had so corrupted man was the belief of the early Romantic poets and they attempted to return to the "natural man" by retiring to solitude where man might guide his life by the laws of nature, rather than by the laws of society.

While it was largely, I believe, a hatred for the city and its artificial life that prompted the early Romantic poets to turn to solitude, they soon found that the quiet retreat afforded other advantages than as a haven from the city. They came in closer contact with nature and could better appreciate its beauty and sublimity when removed from the worries of worldly affairs. Their poems show a love for the beauties of nature, discovered, for the most part, on solitary walks. Nature seems more beautiful when one is alone with her, some of the early Romanticists believed, for they declare that in solitude "roses brighter bloom" and fountains purer flow. If alone on a country walk, the involuntary impression of the charms of nature upon the mind is not impaired by the "continual comparing of notes on hedge-rows and black cattle" that is common when one has a companion.

Solitary communion with nature brought forth religious fervor to some poets, as well as a love for beauty. In nature was seen the handiwork of God, and the poet who sang the beauties of nature was in a way praising God. Virtue was easier to acquire in solitude, away from the trials of the city. Many of the Romanticists agreed with Goldsmith, who declares in the Deserted Village that that man is blest "who quits a world where strong temptations try." In disliking the strenuous activity of overcoming vice, the early Romantic poets were like William Beckford's Vathek, who said to those who wished him to visit their city: "I beg you will let me be quiet for I am not overfond of resisting temptation."

Solitude also afforded the melancholy pleasure of brooding upon one's sorrows. This was a real delight to the Romantic poets who were in a way in love with their own grief. Thomas Chatterton's Elegy beginning "Joyless I seek the solitary shade" is typical of this desire of the Romanticists for a gloomy retreat to accord with their pensive mood.

After the early Romantic poets pointed out the charms of solitude, there was a gradual change in the attitude of the people toward retirement. Solitary life was praised in preference to city life, and it became the fashion for men to retreat to rural solitudes and to build hermitages on their country estates. At the present time we are much like the conventional man of the early eighteenth century in our attachment for city life and for contact with others in all our activities. But even now there are a few modern poets who praise the life of solitude, among them Lew Sarrett, who in his poem Let Me Flower as I Will shows a spirit of revolt from the restraints of conventional city life and the hope of finding relief in solitude. The poem begins:

God, let me flower as I will!
From too much living I am ill
Oh, weary of the waxen bloom
Of orchids in the city gloom;
And weary of the pruning knife
That shapes this prime decorous life,
Of clambering trellises that hold me,
Of flawless patterned forms that mold me. . . .

It is interesting to speculate whether this strain of revolt against city life, which results in a love for solitude, will continue throughout our poetry until the modern writers, attracted to the idea themselves, may be as successful as the early Romanticists in turning men's attention from society to the pleasures of solitude.

NEWS FROM LITTLE PIGEON

An outstanding feature of the past year at the Settlement School has been the installation of a moving picture outfit. This was mentioned in Miss Bishop's April letter to alumnae clubs but her account of the initial performances of the movies deserves permanent record.

A SOCIAL EVENT IN GATLINBURG

If I should tell the tale of the first movie !!! I never will forget it and I don't think anyone in this house will. For a whole month we had planned for pictures and the boys and girls did want them so much. At last, after telegrams, letters and everything that we could think of, we completed a schedule for the latter part of March, April, May and June. Films were to come from Atlanta, Chicago, University of Indiana and some from the University of Tennessee.

We had had to give up pictures for the close of school as it took a whole week for a telegram to get to Atlanta and a reply back here. The next movie was scheduled for March 31 and as there were two weeks for the film to get here we thought everything would surely be all right. Saturday came and we could scarcely wait for the mail to come in for Mr. Mattil and Estel Huff wanted to try out the machine and have a little experience putting in the films. But, alas, no films came. I was nearly sick. Just as Walter was going out with the mail I dashed down our lane and told him to meet the next two trains in Sevierville and if the films came to bring them right on up here. I thought that by four-thirty or five o'clock he would be here and that there would then be plenty of time to make fires in the schoolhouse and get ready for the entertainment.

By noon there were quite a good many boys and girls in the Burg and by four o'clock nearly all the school children had arrived, for all were to have free admission that night. I told them that unless they saw Walter come in by five o'clock there would be no use for them to wait but they stayed just the same and at six o'clock the schoolhouse was full. What to do we didn't know. It had been a strenuous day for all here and we thought we never could manage a social that night, especially on such short notice, but some thing had to be done. While we were eating supper Estel came in with word that Walter had come with the films. It was then between six and seven and the schoolhouse freezing cold but over we went. In spite of weather and inexperience in running the machine we had movies and had all six reels. Nearly everyone stayed for the whole show and between reels would flock into the hall around the fireplace and visit until time for the next one. It was ten-thirty, mighty late for Gatlinburg, when "The End" was flashed on the screen.

The second movie night was not so strenuous. Our films came a day or two ahead of time and Friday night the family and Estel Huff went to the schoolhouse for a very select movie. Mr. Mattil has taught Estel to run the machine splendidly and with both of them there they manage quite an expert show. Government films do not allow for admission so a collection was taken that nearly paid express charges.

The house was full and several stout people were sitting on the kindergarten chairs and I am glad they are made good and strong. People came Saturday night that hadn't been in the Burg for weeks and I find that movies are going to mean a social time. Aunt Lizzie had seen all the pictures Friday but Saturday night went again and came back with word that she had visited folks she hadn't seen for years. Whole families walked anywhere from one to six miles and back that night.

Everyone says that the machine is a beauty, even those who operate it, and they are usually apt to be very critical. I know movies are going to be a great success here.

Provision for an adequate cottage dormitory system is one of the problems which our school is facing. Mrs. Dowell who served as a volunteer worker at the school for a portion of last year has been a regular member of the staff this past season with headquarters in the Mary Pollard Cottage where she has acted as house mother for the little girls who lived there in addition to teaching sewing. Her careful conscientious work has been of great benefit to the girls.

A COURSE IN PRACTICAL HOUSEWIFERY

Another year of school has passed and it sometimes seems that we have accomplished very little, but when we compare the beginning with the closing of the year we think several things have been accomplished. This has been more noticeable in the sewing classes, perhaps, than in the regular school work.

Five girls in the sixth grade and one in the fifth grade completed the year's work and one who entered after the Christmas vacation, completed the preliminary work. They learned stitches for sewing, finishing, embroidery and hemstitching; seams, hems, patching on plain, check and striped material; darning on dress goods and stockings; made aprons, gowns, bloomers, teddys and one or more dresses. The work was excellent for girls from twelve to fourteen years of age who had never done any sewing before.

There is one thing these people are loath to do and that is to take anything out when it is not done right. When I insisted they always did it but with very poor grace. You should see their faces shine when they finally got it right for they knew just as well as I when it looked right. The habit of "any way'll do" and "what difference will it make" practiced by mother and grandmother for generations is not easily broken. The patching and darning was the most difficult as such things are simply not done in these parts. If a dress or stocking gets torn they draw it together with some thread, the color does not matter in the least, and let it go at that and after a week or two throw it away and buy new. I have tried to show them that this was extravagant and wasteful when they had so little to begin with, but they couldn't or wouldn't see it that way.

The older or rather more advanced class from the high school from twelve to nineteen years of age, had had a little experience in sewing in the homes and after the preliminary work cut and made gowns, teddys, slips, aprons, kimonos and dresses, made lunch cloths and dresser scarfs in embroidery or appliqué work. They were very ambitious and wanted to make many things too difficult for first-year pupils even with the experience in sewing in the home. Two of the older girls dropped out at Christmas, one to get married and the other to attend a school a little more conveniently located for her.

We had six girls in the Mary Pollard Cottage this year and there were some lively times. One girl was full of fun and mischief while most of the others were not able to take a joke so at times the atmosphere would be somewhat thick for May did love to tease and the others were not able to "come back" at her.

The work was so arranged that two did the cooking, two the dishwashing and two the sweeping, changing each week. They were told at the beginning that they must get up in the morning without being called and have breakfast in time for the dishwashers to get to school. We nearly always ate breakfast at six o'clock but several times they were through eating before five. These people get up just when they awaken and many have breakfast at four or four-thirty. Even on Sunday mornings breakfast at four o'clock is no unusual thing. They go to bed at dark so are ready to get up early and I will say it is a very good practice, once you get used to it, for you get your work done so early and then can "set and think or just set" as many of the women do when their little bit of house work is finished, after a fashion.

It is just as hard for the girls to do the housework right as it is the sewing and if they scrub the floor in the center what difference if the corners and back of the stove and cupboard legs are missed. Rinsing the dishes and washing the dishtowels when through is of no use whatever. "Can't see no sense in bein' so particular about things, no how."

Three of the girls were good cooks and the others were good helpers. They prepared breakfast and supper and I was responsible for the noon meal as they were busy in school up to 12 M. They, however, washed the dishes. Three of them helped with the noon lunch at school one day a week so during the year they learned "quite a bit" about cooking, dishwashing and cleaning. If they will just do the work in their homes as they have learned to do it through the year we will feel well repaid for the effort put forth.

ANNA DOWELL.

School lunches which were inaugurated a year ago to meet a very real need among the children have been carried on the past season under the supervision of Irene Linkous whose major duty, however, was the teaching of weaving which is a very popular and important course as now given at our school.

LUNCHEON AT TWELVE

Schools in all parts of the world are waking up to the fact that children need something hot for their lunch. The Pi Beta Phi School, realizing this need, has something to supplement the children's lunch each day.

Our lunch room equipment consists of an oil stove, a sink, two tables covered with white oil cloth, four benches and necessary cooking utensils borrowed from the Pi Phi Cottage. At present we are using the basement of the schoolhouse for a lunch room.

It was impossible, with all the arrangement of classes, for any of the older girls to help with the cooking, so it was necessary for us to use the five girls in the sixth grade and all of the fourth grade girls. They were all small but applied themselves to their work wonderfully well.

At eleven-thirty each day two fourth grade girls and one from the sixth grade quietly left their room and went to the basement to prepare lunch. One is surprised at the amount of responsibility children can assume when it is necessary. When, for any reason, it was not possible for me to be in the lunch room at eleven-thirty, one of the girls would go to Miss Burton's room to find how many children there would be for lunch. They would set the table, put water on the oil stove for dishes and wash the cooking utensils. After the children had lunch the girls would clear the tables, clean the oil stove and wash the dishes. Two children appointed each day from Miss Burton's room swept the floor. Once or twice the children had almost the entire responsibility of the lunch and they did it very well.

At twelve o'clock anywhere from eight to twenty-five children filed down the stairs to lunch and found their places at the table, each taking turn as host and hostess. When everyone was seated they bowed their heads and, with Miss Burton, said Grace. We did not supply a whole luncheon, just a bowl of soup, some scrambled eggs, or something hot to supplement what they had brought. We tried each day, except on those days when they had soup, to give each child a glass of milk.

During these three months the children learned some table etiquette they would not have learned otherwise. One incident that always amuses me came from teaching them table manners. I had asked the children not to talk when they had food in their mouths. They found it very hard to remember and quite often someone would forget. It was suggested that all those who forgot should sweep the lunch room floor. Five-year old Maisie Whaley was visiting school that day and heard the suggestion and it evidently "sank in." Several days later, when she was again visiting school, her older sister forgot and spoke when she had food in her mouth. Quiet little Maisie, who never spoke or in any way made you aware of her presence, beamed and bubbling over with excitement exclaimed, "Oh yes, you have to sweep."

The persons acting as host and hostess asked for the children to be excused, when all had finished their lunch. Near the close of school the "cooks" went up Mill Creek for a picnic and had a wonderful time. They talked picnic so much the younger children became thrilled and felt they too must have a picnic, so promptly after school some of the boys went to Miss Evelyn and asked her for a picnic. Of course Miss Evelyn couldn't refuse and it was decided that the next day would be the best time.

The following day was wonderful for picnicing, so at eleven-thirty, with our baskets on our arms, we started. This picnic was like all others in the respect that we ate and played but it was different in that every member enjoyed every minute of the time. I don't think I ever saw children enjoy a picnic more.

It would be hard to say who enjoyed, or got more from the school lunches, those who prepared them or those who ate.

IRENE LINKOUS.

The annual Mountain Workers' Conference held in Knoxville, Tenn., is an event of great importance to all who are devoting their lives to a solution of the problems of mountain people and their communities. This year our school was represented on the program by our resident nurse whose excellent and comprehensive paper has been sent to THE ARROW by our Head Resident.

NURSING IN THE MOUNTAINS

Nursing conditions in different localities vary, but on the whole different mountain sections have more in common than mountains and cities, hence I should have been utterly at sea on coming into the mountains had it not been for the nurse at Hindman whom I visited as I came South, and who went to no end of trouble to tell and show me everything that she thought would be useful, and also Miss Rich whom I visited in North Carolina after I had been in the mountains six months and who helped me straighten out some of my problems, got my head above water and gave me fresh inspiration.

A highly developed city nursing association, with the network of allied organizations, abundance of doctors, hospital and clinic facilities, above all its telephone communication and well developed spirit of coöperation and group methods is a far cry to no facilities, no organization at all, no telephone and a firmly rooted individualistic and independent spirit.

The people had as vague an idea of a nurse as I had of what comprised nursing in the mountains. Their experience was limited to a few private nurses, so a nurse to them meant someone who would make an indefinite stay and relieve the family of all responsibility—a short visit resembled the doctor's—consequently as a Public Health nurse I was neither fish, flesh, fowl, nor good red herring; being variously called the doctor, the nurse, the cook or the waiter—and since I wouldn't diagnose and prescribe, or go and spend weeks with a typhoid case the people were much puzzled to know of what use I could really be.

I have tried all along to let the people take the initiative and send for me rather than to hunt them up; in that way I feel they really want what we have to give. So far as possible we want them to feel the need and then try to meet that need rather than force it on them. For example: we haven't accommodation for more than one emergency case or so, but of late there have been several inquiries as to whether we would take in patients, several obstetrical patients would like to have been cared for in the hospital, several feeding cases, etc., and eventually we hope to take in such, but the demand is coming from the people.

My education has progressed, if not the people's. I soon found the people weren't used to hurrying, and that it takes a long time of patient waiting and general conversation to find out what they have really come for, or to get a history of the cases when making a visit. I have had to get used to getting most of a woman's symptoms from her husband, and not having heart failure when a messenger comes with the news that so and so is "bad off"—"about to die" or "got the fever." Also I am not as sensitive as I once was about always being asked, for months afterwards if I was with so and so who died. I used to resent the implication that I had hastened their departure.

I was warned not to have my district too large, consequently I try to keep within a five-mile radius; when I have to make calls outside of it one visit will often take all day.

In the first three months about fourteen nights were spent away from home, but gradually the people are getting more accustomed to the idea of my going in, showing them what to do and returning. Later on it may be possible to emphasize more of the preventive and instructive work, but at present my work is largely care of the sick, and the people are usually sick, too.

Infectious diseases are apt to be severer than one finds in the cities; for instance diphtheria gains fearful headway before any attempt is made to get help and the antitoxin is seldom given early—if at all. As to small pox vaccination, they would much prefer the disease.

Coming home after dark one night I found a call to see a baby that the father thought had membranous croup. It was about the farthest place in another community. Taking all the emergency antitoxin I had, one of the teachers drove me as far as possible in a Ford, then we walked through the woods to the house and gave the antitoxin by the help of a smoky lamp and a flashlight. The end of the gladd syringe broke on inserting the plunger and I was petrified, as the child needed all I had but fortunately we didn't lose any. The child couldn't have lived till morning so there was no waiting to get a doctor—the nearest one couldn't have been gotten under six or eight hours provided he was home when called.

In the above cases I charged about what the doctor would as I didn't want them to feel I would make a practice of giving antitoxin. And the question of fees is a problem that we have still not been able to solve and the longer I stay the more complicated it becomes.

The people are not well equipped for caring for the sick. The patient must invariably be cared for in a double bed, the light is apt to be poor (hence a flashlight is one of my most treasured possessions), the question of giving a bed bath in winter is a momentous one. They seldom have the utensils and materials for preparing food for the sick, nor does the patient always take kindly to a new, even if more digestible dish.

The food question is one of the great problems. There is not enough variety in the diet—too much starchy food, corn, potatoes and beans, soda biscuits not well cooked, sorghum and eggs. In the season of plenty they are apt to get too much of a good thing. One of the doctors was called to several cases of honey poisoning. The men had robbed some bee gums, eaten a pound or two each and been knocked unconscious where they stood. "That's what they call 'eating a mess'" added the doctor.

The school children are careless about bringing lunches—they hide the lunch along the way rather than carry it to school, consequently they have nothing from before daylight till after dark, so school lunches require oversight. The growing children are apt to have an insufficient supply of milk, due largely to lack of proper feed for cows—and the lack is filled with coffee. They are conservative about trying new vegetables and if they do grow them they don't know how to prepare them. One woman told me about raising squashes and having the vaguest idea of what to do with them.

They seldom can enough during the season of plenty—for the most part some jars of peaches, blackberries, tomatoes and pickled beans used for company—though in marked contrast was a home (consisting of husband and wife) where there were three hundred cans of fruit and vegetables to be moved out of the room we decided to use as an operating room.

During the apple season (which doesn't happen every year) children from a few months up, eat quantities a day, green and otherwise, accentuating sores and intestinal disturbances.

Being distressed over the lack of vegetables in the diet I wrote our Representative for a variety of vegetable seeds for about fifty school children. He and the Government were nothing, if not generous. To my utter horror and amazement on returning after a few days' absence, I found two mail sacks full of seeds had been dumped out in the back of the store. The school horse was hitched to the buggy and I am not sure the envelopes were not shoveled in, for the buggy was full to overflowing, including the space under the seat, and we filled wash tubs, waste paper baskets and dish pans and gave out seeds to everyone we could for several years. I have never heard that anyone learned to like carrots or peas in consequence, and now I am patiently waiting for the department of agriculture to vary the planting of beans and corn and the domestic science department to cultivate the taste for vegetables new and untried.

Gradually we have evolved from a few bandages, a roll of adhesive, a box of boric acid and a corner in the head resident's office to a four-room cottage, divided into an office, workroom, bathroom and emergency operating room or bedroom, equipped with running water, oil stove, electric light and our own linen supply—a loan cupboard for the people, and an ever increasing stock of medicines on which the doctors are coming to rely more and more. It saves them carrying a good many and also saves the people trips as I keep a list of the medicines they are getting and can re-fill without bothering the doctor. We have a microscope and some simple laboratory equipment: some instruments for lending when a doctor is away from home and runs on an unexpected case.

The cottage was planned as a place for treating office cases, holding clinics, such as tonsil and adenoid, dental, etc., and taking care of accident cases, but in the last four months two and one-half have been spent there, two with a small boy who had a badly infected compound fracture of the leg and who came from a one-room log cabin. It was such a remote place that the doctor felt the leg would have to come off unless he was where it could be dressed daily. Then we had an emergency appendectomy not long ago.

These cases have necessitated some member of the school staff staying with the patient while I made whatever trips were necessary, consequently we hope to find some woman who can be trained to help with the cleaning and putting up of supplies and who can stay with a patient and perhaps go into the homes as a practical nurse when needed. This may help to solve the problem of having regular office hours and of being able to do satisfactory school and lecture work. At any rate it remains to be seen.

I have practically three sets of equipment, one for office use, one for my saddle bags and one for the obstetrical bag which I found necessary to acquire a year ago, as sometimes it is impossible for the people to get a doctor in time. I have made it a rule not to go in place of a doctor and have only once broken my rule—at the urgent request of a mid-wife who wanted me to care for her daughter. I had a month or six weeks of such worry that I learned my lesson, and though the problem of caring for the greater number of obstetrical cases is still unsolved I never go unless they have attempted to get a doctor.

One man wanted to know if I couldn't take obstetrical cases if I had a prescription and after racking my brains to know what he meant I found he had reference to my sending a man for the doctor and to his bringing back a note in which he told me he couldn't come and wished me luck.

First, last, and always, there could have been no running without the loyalty, support and help of the doctors. It was they who, while not living here, came into the district when called, who paved the way for a nurse, have stood firm and strong for everything done and have taught me much that belongs to the sphere of a doctor because they felt there would be emergencies to be met when they weren't there. In short when I see one coming up the lane I have much the same feeling I would have if it were my best friend.

Nursing in the mountains may sound like nothing but problems and difficulties but the compensation more than makes up for them. First, the people themselves are wonderful to work with and for; so are the doctors—and nowhere does one find such people and such scenery as in the mountains, and the longer one stays the more fascinating the work becomes.

The following bibliography has been prepared by Dorothy K. Cleaveland, librarian of St. Lawrence University, at the request of the Settlement School Committee. It is based on the bibliography compiled by Alice Matthews in the early days of our work and on others issued in connection with mountain work in other places. The entire manuscript has been revised and brought up-to-date so that Pi Phis may now have a guide for reading on this subject so interesting to us all and a fund of information available for Settlement School programs.

PI BETA PHI SETTLEMENT SCHOOL

HELMICK, ELIZABETH CLARKE. History of Pi Beta Phi. Chapter on Settlement school.

ARROW of Pi Beta Phi, 1912 to date. Nearly every number has an article about the school and its work and needs.

Pamphlets published by the fraternity on the history and work and needs of the school.

LIVING MOTION PICTURES

The Washington Alumnae Club decided to invite the public to its annual Settlement School Meeting. Since we have so often asked the public to support our card parties, sales, etc., we wanted them to see our school just as it really is.

The meeting was held in the chapel of our largest Presbyterian Church.

Miss Kate Miller, chairman of the Settlement School Committee, outlined in a few words the connection of $\Pi B \Phi$ and the school at Gatlinburg, then said that as she told the story of the school, living moving pictures would show what really had happened.

ACT I. Scene 1. Shows the original committee meeting called by Emma Harper Turner on a Sunday afternoon in February, 1910. The meeting is the result of a great urge to do something for others, latent in the hearts of all but active first in the heart and mind of Miss Turner, a former Grand President.

To this little group of Washington Pi Phi comes the happy inspiration of our own Appalachian Mountains with mountain boys and girls waiting for someone to bring to them education. After discussion the little group feels that this is too big a thing and that it must be presented to the entire fraternity.

Scene 2. Emma Harper Turner presents the plan to Swarthmore Convention (using active college girls as delegates to convention. Ribbons across their breasts show the chapters from which they came.) The Grand President presiding, recognizes Miss Turner who then lays the Washington plan before convention. She is greeted with instant enthusiasm. Michigan A says she'll give a year as teacher. Texas A gives money. Vermont B asks to go as a nurse, etc.

Scene 3. Grand Council meets to decide on location of the new school. A large map is put up and finally Gatlinburg, Tenn., the location having the fewest schools for the population in the United States, is chosen.

ACT. II. Scene 1. The Pi Phi go to Gatlinburg and find: A typical mountain cabin. One room with crude fireplace, old four-poster. Spinning wheel, tow wheel, whiskey jug, old quilt and baskets. Grandmother is smoking. Two girls slovenly dressed are doing nothing. Mountain boy comes in with gun and rabbits. Everything disorderly and "down at the heel."

Scene 2. The spirit of $\Pi B \Phi$ enters and takes in the whole scene, then beckons to those outside. First comes the teacher with books, then the industrial worker who starts the loom and spinning wheel and teaches the people to make baskets like the one by the fireplace. The nurse enters and holds a clinic for the two "puny" children on the bed.

Then follow lessons in canning and carpentry. The scene has gradually changed so that the room is neat and attractive; girls with clean dresses and combed hair are all busy with their work.

Next comes the $\Pi B \Phi$ agent who buys their rugs, baskets and "kivers" and takes them to Washington so that the money may be used to change other mountain cabins.

After this the slides of the real school are shown and a splendid display of Gatlinburg handiwork.

HELEN HARRINGTON COMPTON, Ohio P.

CAMP PANHELLENIC

Many fraternity women have shared the summer's joys of Camp Panhellenic on picturesque Washington Island, Wis. Gladys Dixon, Wisconsin A, 1244 Stone St., Chicago, is the director of the camp.

The following song dedicated to Camp Panhellenic by Olga Achtenhagen, $K \Delta$, expresses the spirit of its associations:

I can feel the cool lake breezes from the harbor blowin' free,
 I can hear the tent flap flappin', and it's there that I would be;
 Where the campin' grounds a-callin', I can hear it callin' me—
 To Wisconsin's island forest, to Michigan's blue sea,
 Come ye north by road and sail,
 Follow north the same old trail—
 You will see the sky blue water dance and toss itself to spray—
 Oh, the breezes laugh and play,
 O'er the harbor, lake, and bay,
 And the dawn comes up a promise o'er the lake at break of day.

I can see the campfire flicker, I can hear the banjo strum,
 I can see the stars a-shining through the pine trees one by one;
 I can hear the sound o'singing, and the chorus comes to me—
 "We've come north to Camp Panhellenic—we are one fraternity."
 Oh, whate'er our emblems be,
 We are one fraternity—
 We are going to work together just as well as we can play
 While the breezes laugh and stray,
 O'er the harbor, lake, and bay,
 And the sun goes down a glory o'er the hills at close o'day.

CAMP MORTAR BOARD

Summer does not seem so far off, and already vacation plans are taking shape. After the long year in the rush of city life the longing comes for the open country and a chance to play—a need which is best answered by camp living.

On the rocky shores of Big Bay de Noc of Lake Michigan is Camp Mortar Board, directed by three Pi Phis: Ruth Siefkin, Kansas B, ex-'18; Martha Gray, Michigan B, '16, and Katharine Harrington, Illinois Δ, '19.

From late June to early September, college girls, active and alumnae throughout the country, will gather for the exhilaration and rest of out-of-door living. The long days of warm sunshine are filled with sports for which provision has been made and instruction provided. The horseback riders canter along the bridle paths, logging trails of long ago; hard clay courts invite the tennis enthusiasts; the hikers go off to tramp shores and to explore the smoke-blackened caves of their predecessor campers, the Noquet Indians, who it is said, left behind them buried treasure when they followed their valiant leader, Black Hawk, southward in search of further conquest in 1678.

Twice daily a merry crowd of bathers cuts through the woods to the sheltered southern harbor of Sac Bay, with its shining white sands and clear calm waters; there's a bathhouse, a fine level beach, gently sloping and for the more capable swimmers, a diving raft in deep water. Near by is the boathouse with canoes. Overnight trips are provided for the proficient paddlers, that means camp fire cookery and a good sleep, rolled in blankets under the pines.

The rustic Lodge high on the cliffs fronts westward toward the waters of Big Bay de Noc, and the wonderfully brilliant sunsets of the north country. Each evening as the fire leaps in the big stone fireplace, the campers gather for dancing, dramatics, or stunt parties, or perhaps the moonlight invites a corn roast down on the shore. After such a day one is very ready for the comfortable beds in the semi-screened cabins, which combine the advantages of out-of-door sleeping with the protection against stormy weather. Then—taps, and rest comes from the healthy fatigue of energies well spent. (For information, address, Ruth Siefkin, Camp Mortar Board, Fayette, Mich.)

BOOK REVIEWS

BY DOROTHY CLEAVELAND, New York Γ

Western Birds, by Harriet Williams Myers. 1922, Macmillan, 8vo. 400 p. illus. $4.00.

Western Pi Phis who are nature lovers will be especially interested to have Western Birds, by Harriet Williams Myers (Mrs. W. R.), Iowa Z, which Macmillan has recently brought out. The book describes about two hundred of the more familiar song birds and their allies found in the Pacific Coast states and, to a lesser degree, the interior western states. Valuable first-hand information gained through many years of bird study is supplemented by that from the best scientific sources. The book will also prove a valuable guide for eastern bird enthusiasts traveling in the West, for many eastern birds—typical of their genus—are described and so used as the basis for comparison with the western species.

The author's descriptions are clearly and entertainingly written and a great deal of interesting and valuable information about the birds is given, interspersed with delightful narratives of personal experiences. Any bird lover will delight in browsing through it or in reading at random in it, though the birds discussed may be unfamiliar. Many of the illustrations of birds and their nests and young are from photographs taken by the author.

A complete index, giving scientific and common names of birds, and all references to authorities cited adds to the value of the book for reference. The descriptions are arranged according to the classification of the American Ornithological Union.

Mrs. Myers is well fitted for writing such a book, for she has been a careful observer of bird life for many years. She is vice-president of the California Audubon Society and chairman of birds and flowers in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and has also contributed numerous articles on bird life to magazines.

Merry O, by Ethel Hueston. 1923, Bobbs-Merrill. Illus. $2.00.

Merry O, Mrs. Hueston's latest and best story, is a light and entertaining romance which girls in their teens will find delightful and older readers also will enjoy as a pleasant relief from the disagreeable realism of so much of our modern fiction. In this book she depicts the same charming, wholesome type of girl which her readers already know, and in addition she has here a plot of adventure, spiced with a mystery that holds the attention to the end. Mrs. Hueston is Ethel Powelson-Hueston-Best, Iowa A.

OUR SOUTHERN HIGHLANDERS

Our Southern Highlanders, Horace Kephart. Revised edition with new material. The Macmillan Company.

Many readers of THE ARROW are familiar with the first edition of this book which has long been a standard work on mountain problems. Nine years have passed since that volume appeared and the effects of the World War are felt even in farthest Appalachia. The new edition places emphasis on the new aspects of the old problem of moonshining in the light of the attempt at national prohibition and contains three additional chapters which like the older material in the book are intensely interesting.

Mr. Kephart writes after eighteen years of intimate association with the southern mountaineers. As he says he has chosen to write about those features which seem to him most picturesque and "The narrative is to be taken literally. There is not a line of fiction or exaggeration in it."

The volume will make interesting reading for everyone—it is almost invaluable for those seeking material for Settlement School meeting programs as selected readings from its pages will furnish a trustworthy and fascinating background for a consideration of our own mountain work—SARAH POMEROY RUGG.

BOOK NOTES

Glenn Frank, husband of Mary Smith, Missouri A, and editor of The Century, is the author of the series of articles, "An American Looks at His World," now running in The Century.

Mr. and Mrs. Theiss have written another of their interesting articles on gardening—this time on insect pests. It is "Fighting Men of the Garden" in Good Housekeeping for February, 1923, by L. E. and Mary B. Theiss. (Mrs. Theiss is a Pennsylvania B.)

Among the recent Altemus books are Jack the Giant-killer, and Jack and the Beanstalk, each in ballad arrangement for young children and beautifully illustrated. Reginald Wright Kauffman, husband of Ruth Hammit, Pennsylvania B, is the author. There is also an article by him, "Pennsylvania: Still a Keystone," in the Nation for March 7, 1923.

"The Vagabond At Home" in the April Good Housekeeping was written by Ruth Hammitt Kauffman (Mrs. Reginald Wright), Pennsylvania B.

"Kindred" by Harriet Maxon Thayer (Mrs. Gilbert), Wisconsin A, is included in Edward J. O'Brien's, The Best Short Stories of 1921.

Mrs. Thayer who attended the University of Wisconsin and the School of Journalism, Columbia University, has written fairy tales for the Philadelphia North American and the Guide, Milwaukee. During 1918 and 1919 she served in France with the American Red Cross canteen.

WITH PI PHI POETS

NORTHWESTERN HYMN

BY DOROTHY ALDERTON KELLAR, California A

Where the great primeval forest
Swept the sand along the shore,
Where Lake Michigan's deep water
Heard the red man's tribal lore,
Now we hearken to thy wisdom,

Alma Mater, and before
 We, too, pass beyond thy portals
 Hear us sing, as those of yore:
 "Hail, Northwestern, evermore!"

Hail the purple of thy banner,
 Royal in its splendid stream!
 Look to us that in no manner
 We may tarnish its bright gleam!
 Hail, Northwestern, Hail, Northwestern,
 Hail, Northwestern, Evermore!

SONG

 Has hours twenty-four;
 You tell me so.
 I do not know.

The world's away
 A thousand years and more
 When you speak low,
 When you sing slow.

TO THE SISTERS OF THE ARROW

L. EVELYN SLOCUM, New York Γ

To the bow of your determined effort
 Fit the gold arrow of Pi Beta Phi,
 And then, with all your heart and mind alert,
 Speed that arrow straight unto the mark.
 For it, the glory of attaining a high mark—
 For you, the joy supreme of drawing the bow.
 Higher! Send the golden arrow higher!
 Each new attainment means an added strength
 To choose and reach an ever higher mark.
 Farther! Send the golden arrow farther!
 A wide, fair range to cover is its due
 And your reward. Its glory is your own.

Let not your arm grow weak, the bow decay,
 The shining arrow tarnish with disuse.
 Be their employment your most cherished care.
 So shall you know that joy which only comes
 With fair achievement—not for self alone,
 But for mankind and for his great ideals.

IN MEMORIAM

TALBERT, HELEN, Colorado A, died January 30, 1923, in Boston, Mass. She was initiated into Colorado A at the University of Colorado, September 29, 1920. In the fall of 1922 she went to the Prince School in Boston where she was enrolled at the time of her death.

BELL (Mrs. Harry), EDITH ADAMS, Michigan A, died at her home in Tulsa, Okla., February 17, 1923. She was initiated into Michigan A in 1911, and is remembered for her loyalty of spirit to the best things of life. She is survived by her husband and one son.

CRANE (Mrs. J. B.), CHERRIE FRENCH, Maryland A, '01, died February 10 at her home in Locust Farm, Somers, N. Y. She was initiated into Maryland A, December 10, 1897. Pi Beta Phi extends deepest sympathy to Mr. Crane. At the time of her death, she was a member of the New York Alumnae Club.

THORNTON (Mrs. Frank, Jr.), LETTIE WOOD, Missouri A, '08, died at her home in Pittsburgh, Pa., March 6, 1923.

After leaving school she taught home economics for several years prior to her marriage in 1916 in St. Joseph, Mo., where she lived. After her marriage she made her home in Pittsburgh and also in Mansfield, Ohio, where she was active in the alumnae chapter. Her many friends deeply mourn her loss.

STRAIGHT (Mrs. Merton), LENORE ALLEN, Illinois E, 1911, of Pi Beta Phi, died at the Methodist Hospital, Des Moines, Iowa, on February 25, 1923, after a brief illness.

She received her B.A. from Northwestern in 1915 and a Masters from Columbia in 1916. Following her graduate work in Columbia, she spent one year at Whittier Hall taking special work in the university and doing social settlement work. Part of this work consisted of giving the Binet Test in psychology at Russell Sage Foundation. Her ability as a student was marked, and her originality and charm linked with her sound scholarship made her a valuable asset to the community which was fortunate enough to receive her.

LENORE ALLEN STRAIGHT

This community was Adel, Iowa, where after her marriage on September 12, 1917, to Merton Tanner Straight, Illinois, $\Phi \Delta \Theta$, she made her home, with the exception of one year, until her death. During this year Mr. Straight was in the service and Mrs. Straight was with, or near him at various camps, principally Miami, Fla.

Besides her husband, she leaves her parents, two brothers and two sisters, one of whom, Thurma Allen Evans, is also a member of Pi Beta Phi.

Mrs. Straight was a member of the Des Moines Alumnæ club, P. E. O., Monday Musical Club, Woman's Club, Des Moines Fortnightly Musical Club, and the Wakonda Country Club at Des Moines.

In every phase of community life, she was active and interested. Her loss will be felt in music, in clubs, in fraternity, and in every forward looking movement that a town may devise.

EDITORIALS

CONVENTION DELEGATES should come to convention with open minds, ready to weigh carefully the problems which will come before them. Information and details will be presented from the convention floor with which individual chapters are unfamiliar and it is therefore unfair to your delegate to instruct her beforehand concerning her vote. You have carefully selected the girl who is most capable of representing your group and you should rely upon her judgment and accept her decisions.

THE FRATERNITY BADGE is not a license for asking special campus privileges or favors. It is not a pass into social circles. Nor is it a ticket to higher grades without due effort.

The fraternity badge is the outward profession that you have become a member of an organized group and are willing to assume responsibility. It signifies that you are no longer a free and individual unit. Instead, you are an important part of the chapter and you have acknowledged that you are willing to strive constantly to uphold the standards of the fraternity by self-improvement and self-advancement. If you are not willing to accept responsibility and to be liable for your actions then you do not belong in a fraternity and you had better take off your pin.

Do not feel that as a Greek you are entitled to special campus consideration. Life in your chapter house and the friendship which comes of close association more than compensate for your fraternity membership. University favors and special college privileges are the rewards of individual effort and accomplishment and should never be sought or expected simply on the strength of a jeweled or golden badge bearing Greek letters.

ALUMNÆ, if you are interested in increasing the efficiency of your chapter follow the example of the alumnae of Maine A, who recently presented a portable CORONA to their chapter. The gift of a typewriter of any standard make would be a splendid thing.

PI BETA PHI extends sincere sympathy to our Founder, Libbie Brook Gaddis, Illinois A, in the loss of her husband, John H. Gaddis, on February 15, 1923, at the University Hospital, Augusta, Ga.

WHEN WRITING to fraternity officers do not use the addresses in old issues of THE ARROW, but take a few moments to hunt up the last issue as the addresses are constantly changing. A few moments spent in getting the correct address will save several days or a week lost in having mail forwarded.

WILL SOME fraternity member please loan $7,000 for a second mortgage on a $30,000 chapter house? This is a most dependable and worthy chapter. If you are interested please communicate with the Grand President, Amy B. Onken, Chapin, Ill.

THE PHI DELTA DELTA, national publication of Phi Delta Delta, women's legal fraternity, has just made its appearance in the world of fraternity journalism. Under the direction of Lois Gates Gorman, editor, Volume I, Number 1, has been most ably and creditably prepared.

ATTENTION has been called to the fact that various pictures of interest to $\Pi B \Phi$ have appeared in the pictorial section of the New York Times. Among these were: a picture of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge (Grace Goodhue, Vermont B), assisted by Sally La Fevre of Washington in directing the addressing of the Christmas mail; Esther McDonald, Illinois E, of Northwestern University, an enthusiastic member of the Rifle Team of the university and head of the Y. W. C. A., who recently received the highest number of votes in a beauty contest among the colleges of the Mississippi Valley; and Harvey W. Wiley, Jr., and John Preston Wiley, sons of Dr. and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley (Anna C. Kelton, Columbia A), who have been brought up on a gospel of health in diet and exercise.

GOLDEN WEDDING. An invitation sent to Pi Beta Phi by one of our Founders is of exceptional interest.

Reverend and Mrs. Thomas B. Turnbull request the pleasure of your company at the Fiftieth Anniversary of their marriage on Tuesday evening, April the twenty-fourth from eight until ten o'clock
Twenty-two twenty-nine North Fifty-third St.,
Wynnefield, Philadelphia

Dear Editor:

I wish in this way to convey my thanks for the telegrams and kindly greetings received on my birthday from many active and alumnae chapters, and from individual members of our dear fraternity. I greatly appreciate all their kind remembrances and good wishes.

The alumnae chapter here in Yakima will observe Founders' Day with a banquet. We have a membership of twenty or more and meet the last Saturday of each month. We have such good times together you would think we were just girls in college. My hair is white but my heart is still young though it is fifty-six years since the day I first wore the golden arrow. I trust that the companionship and friendships formed in your colleges may prove as sweet and lasting as those of us girls of 1867—a tie that will bind you close together and be an inspiration to each of you to achieve the highest and best in life.

Yours in Pi Beta Phi,
FANNIE WHITENACK LIBBEY.

Dear Editor:

As your founders, we take this opportunity to express our appreciation of the thoughtfulness of the alumnae and active members of Pi Beta Phi in sending Christmas greetings, also in remembering our birthdays. "We all have 'em. Some subtract" but rest assured ours are added. We also appreciated most heartily the lovely roses on Founders' Day.

BROWNLEE SISTERS.

Initiation, at the home of Kathleen McConnell, was followed by a cooky-shine with the alumnae. The initiation banquet and annual dance were held at the King Edward Hotel on March 1, when a large number of alumnae came back to meet the freshmen.

A mothers' tea was held most successfully about the middle of March at the chapter rooms.

The various teams for raising money for the Settlement School and other altruistic purposes have worked faithfully and energetically, and in addition to raising money, the girls have helped at the university settlement in the downtown section of the city.

Evelyn Durham, '25, quite startled the chapter by appearing after Easter with a $\Theta \Delta X$ pin next her arrow.

Panhellenic conditions at Toronto have been fairly good this year. Under considerably revised rules for next year the girls hope to overcome many of their difficulties. A rule framed by residence fraternity women embraces a more reasonable and liberal rule regarding residence freshmen who may not be entertained until their second year, and along with slightly fewer parties and a definite limitation of campaign expenses, is to be given a trial. Besides such routine work, Panhellenic took a step toward more constructive work by inviting Dr. Edith Gordon to outline her health program at one of its meetings, and promised its support in her work among the women students.

At the recent elections, a number of Pi Phi were chosen for office in various organizations and activities. Considerable interest has been aroused by the decision to have separate class executives for the men and women, and present indications point to a marked success for the new system.

The whole university has watched with intense interest and a certain pride the development in its laboratories of Dr. Banting's remarkable discovery of insulin for the treatment of diabetes. It is hailed as one of the outstanding achievements of the age, and the Ontario government is planning to establish a chair of research for Dr. Banting to enable him to continue his work.

As the end of the year approaches, Ontario fully realizes the loss she will sustain in the graduation of eight of her strongest and finest members. The year has been one rich in valuable experience for all; of pleasant and helpful coöperation with the alumnae; and though difficulties have arisen, they have been eventually surmounted. The results of the annual fraternity examination show a gratifying improvement over last year, and testify to the chapter's desire to adhere closely to the standards of $\Pi B \Phi$, and worthily to represent her in the life of the university.

For the present, the girls are directing all their efforts toward making a creditable record in the approaching finals. In the interval between examinations and Convocation, they are anticipating the annual house-party which is to be held from May 25 to June 4 on the shores of Georgian Bay. After that all thoughts and energies turn to Estes Park.

The University of Maine is in the midst of an active memorial campaign, the funds of which are to erect a memorial gymnasium-armory to the Maine men who gave their lives in the World War. The student body has pledged $100,000 as the goal and at this time are gathered in a celebration as never before in the history of the college. The alumni are conducting a similar drive.

The initiation in March was held at the home of a patroness. The following evening the annual banquet was served at the Bangor House. The formal dance was a great success with many alumnae present.

Maine A is well represented in college activities. Ruth Bessey was elected from the student body as a delegate to the student government convention at Lynchburg this year and returned with interesting news from the $\Pi \Phi$ chapter at Randolph-Macón.

Two girls will represent Maine A at convention. To those fortunate enough to attend, this chapter sends sincere wishes for the best convention ever held.

Many alumnae returned for the initiation ceremony and many more were present at the banquet, which was held at the Addison Hotel, as in past years.

In the Middlebury endowment fund campaign which is well under way, every alumnus is asked to give or raise two hundred and sixty-two dollars for his college. The president, Paul Dwight Moody, has been making extensive tours through the country speaking to the alumni of Middlebury in many of the large cities of the United States. One of the largest recent undertakings has been the cafeteria supper given by the home economics club on March 14. The proceeds are to be used to obtain a vocational speaker from the home economics field, who will give a lecture to all the women students, faculty, and town's people interested. Ruth Cowles, '24, had entire charge of the buying and the managing of this supper, at which two hundred fifty people were served; Muriel Long, '23, had charge of the ice cream table; Helen Stone, '25, was in charge of the salads. Many Pi Phi worked on committees.

Two members of Vermont A, Muriel Long and Dorothy Newton, '23, have received the honor of Φ B K. Helen Lingham, '24, has been elected vice-president of the Y. W. C. A. for the coming year and Dorothy Tillapaugh, '25, treasurer. Ruth Cowles, '24, is on the junior play committee. The junior class will give Believe Me, Xantippe, by Frederick Ballard. Helen Stone, '25, has been appointed house chairman of the Homestead, the home economics practice house.

This year has been a happy and successful one for all of Middlebury College as well as Vermont A. Miss Weaver's visit early in March was a great help to the girls, she was so constructive and encouraging. Vermont A has been well represented in the activities on campus this year and the inter-fraternity feeling has been very fine.

Two members of Vermont A are anticipating convention and all the wonders that will go with the trip.

Vermont B was especially happy to entertain Miss Weaver, Acting Province President. Her suggestions were most helpful and her visit was an inspiration to all members of Π B Φ .

At Kake Walk this year $K \Sigma$ won the prize for the best stunt and $A T \Omega$ received honorable mention. $\Sigma \Phi$ carried off the cake for the best couple. Initiation was held during Kake Walk and many alumnae were present. The girls' department staged its first winter carnival, which was very enthusiastically attended.

W. A. A., of which Florence Farr, '23, is president, introduced a posture week. Something novel was planned for each day to keep good posture before the girls. S. U. S. became the slogan: Stand Up, Sit Up, Straight. Correct shoes were demonstrated and prizes awarded for posture songs and poems. At the end of the week the town girls, the girls who eat at Grasse Mount, and those who eat at Robinson Hall marched before judges, who voted the Robinson Hall girls the winners. The two losing teams will entertain the other at a W. A. A. rally to be held soon after the spring recess.

W. A. A. is planning to give a banquet to the players on the basketball teams. In the games, played off before Easter, the seniors won the silver loving cup. $\Pi \Phi$ was represented by three players on the junior team, two on the freshman team, and one on the sophomore team.

Polly Goodwin, '24, has been elected chairman of sub-freshman day. At this time the senior girls of the high schools in Vermont are the guests of the women of the university.

At the try-outs for the junior week play which were open to any college students, Grace Killam, '26, was chosen for one of the four women's parts.

Several girls besides the delegate are hoping to attend convention.

Vermont B will celebrate Founders' Day with Vermont A at Burlington.

Initiation was held at the home of Eleanor Daboll in Newtonville. There followed a somewhat unusual banquet held at the Boston Art Club. The walls of the banquet hall were hung with beautiful pictures, making a dignified background for the banquet.

The most noticeable feature of chapter life this year has been the university coöperative spirit. The chapter is small, as befits a commuting college with its difficulty of assimilation. But all have worked together with the common aim of building up chapter life, and strengthening friendship. Massachusetts A has successfully tried several ways of earning money. The chapter cleared over twenty-six dollars from the sale of stockings. Another method was to divide the group into four teams, making each team responsible for earning twenty-five dollars. If rumor is correct they will clear over a hundred dollars.

The annual stunt night for the girls' athletic association was held April 9. Pi Phi's stunt was Wooden Soldiers.

House-party is coming! Definite plans are not yet formulated, but much excitement is in the air. The chapter feels that house-parties do more than anything else to cement fraternity friendship.

The college student in Boston has some wonderful opportunities if he cares to take advantage of them. The Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Art Museum, the multitude of historically interesting places, theaters, and lectures, make student life in Boston fascinating. The Shakespearian lectures of Professor Kittredge of Harvard, open to the public this winter, are good examples of what is offered in the way of evening lectures. The problem is to adjust these culturally educative things to the more formalized studies of college in such a way that neither will suffer from neglect. "Not to allow college to interfere with one's education" is a special problem in Boston.

Boston has a unique feature in the students' clubs, organized by the various students of Boston, for the benefit of the one hundred or more colleges represented in Greater Boston. These offer companionship to students from all over the country. They feature weekly hikes out into the country, with occasional trips to places of historical interest. The stranger in Boston is often surprised to find that there are so many truly beautiful woods and open stretches of country within a short distance. One club holds a forum on Sunday mornings where live topics are discussed, and in the evening especially good speakers, men of note, are introduced. Besides this, the club has a debating society, a dramatic club, bowling club, and musical club within it.

All told, student life in Boston is a very complex and busy existence.

The remainder of the college year promises to be a busy one for New York A. The chapter is planning a joint celebration with the alumnae on Founders' Day to be held at the house. The annual benefit for the Settlement School will be a dance to be given in May. New York A hopes to reach the one hundred mark.

On March 2, the alumnae club entertained the juniors and their freshman daughters at the home of Adelaide Sherwood. Many previous graduates also returned for initiation and banquet, which were held on March 10. Eleven new members entered the chapter.

Miss Weaver visited the chapter just before Easter. With an organized system of entertainment by each class all were able to become personally acquainted with her. She inspired the girls to attend convention; besides the elected delegate New York A hopes to be represented by two other girls. How all would like to go, but Estes Park is too far away for that!

Spring elections were held March 20. Dorothy Coleman, '24, was elected president of W. S. G. A.; Geraldine Ridings, '25, rifle representative on the athletic governing board; Bernice Bohlman, '24, was chosen for $\Pi \Lambda \Theta$, honorary pedagogical society, and Katharine Conrow, '23, for Boar's Head, a dramatic society.

The entire university was saddened by the sudden death of Ex-Chancellor Day on March 13. The college to-day stands as a lasting memorial to his leadership.

New York A loses a large class of representative seniors this June but with the new members it will strive to carry on the ideals and aspirations of the fraternity.

The women's student government association, after overcoming many of the difficulties confronting such a new organization, is at last functioning effectively. Under its auspices Dr. C. C. Croff of the New York State Board of Health, is delivering lectures to the women students on the subject of health and hygiene.

The college has also enjoyed several talks on economics. Mrs. Armstrong of the Industrial Relation Department, spoke of the personnel work in the Eastman Kodak Company, and also on the subject "The College Man in Business." B. M. Anderson, Jr., economist of the Chase National Bank of New York City, also addressed the college on economic problems.

The varsity basketball team concluded a successful year by winning the game which decided the championship of northern New York State. The women's basketball team, on which $\Pi B \Phi$ has two regular players and one substitute, won five of the seven games which it played.

Several debates have been held by the varsity debating team, on the question of the cancellation of the allied war debts.

Charley's Aunt, the college mid-winter play, made successful trips to many of the surrounding towns. The last performance of this farce is to be held in Canton next week.

Dorothy Bullen has been elected to $\Phi B K$, and in view of her excellent scholarship and general fitness, she has been honored by the faculty by being appointed one of the speakers at Commencement this June.

New York Γ has had the pleasure of entertaining Miss Weaver. During her visit the chapter had a "dress-up" cooky-shine, to which they invited the initiates. The girls divided themselves into groups, each of which put on an impromptu stunt.

Initiation and initiatory banquet were held February 23 and 24. Two delegates were present from New York A. The chapter was also glad to have Miss Carpenter and many of its own alumnae present. It introduced the initiates to the college world as Martha Washingtons.

New York Γ is making plans for the informal house-party, and preparing to entertain the girls of Π N E, a fraternity of the domestic science school, and then the Canton high school girls.

As is the custom, the initiates will present an original musical comedy to the chapter and alumnae on Founders' Day.

Since so much pleasure was derived last year from the unique methods employed in earning money for the Settlement School, each member of the chapter has again pledged herself to earn one dollar for the school this year.

Short visits from various Π Φ sisters have given New York Γ a broader insight into fraternity life. Just now all are talking about convention, for it will bring this group into closer communication with many sister chapters, and will help all toward a bigger, better, and broader Π B Φ.

The past year has been a successful one for New York Δ. In September the chapter rented a large new house facing one of Ithaca's most beautiful gorges, and has found it so satisfactory that, finances permitting, New York Δ is going to buy it for its permanent home. Every year the chapter is endeavoring to add more furniture and china and silverware to the house. The class of 1923 gave the chapter a living-room suite.

It has been delightful to have Miss Louise Case, New York A, this year as hostess, and the chapter hopes that she may be able to be with it next year.

New York Δ is well represented in college activities. Beatrice Ecks, '24, has been elected president of the Cornell women's dramatic club and is next year's president of the local Panhellenic association. Eleanor Gage, '25, has been elected to Raven and Serpent, junior honorary society, and is the assistant women's business manager of the Cornell Daily Sun. Evelyn Ihrig, '23, and Elizabeth Worman, '23, have important rôles in If I Were King to be presented by the dramatic club in April. Evelyn Ihrig and Mary H. Smith, '23, have been elected to II A Θ . Edith Klenke, '24, is women's editor of the Cornell Daily Sun.

In order to raise money for the Settlement School the chapter gave a most successful benefit bridge party, which it is planning to repeat annually.

New York Δ has been fortunate in having visits from fraternity officers and members of other groups, among them Sophie Woodman and Verna Weaver, whose advice was very helpful.

The chapter is anticipating the Founders' Day cooky-shine and the spring dance.

Combined effort to place the chapter high in the esteem of the faculty, fellow students, and town people has met with a gratifying degree of success. Chapter members have been congenial, and they are closing the year happy in the bonds of the wine and blue.

Pennsylvania A regained its old place of leader in Swarthmore scholarship in mid-years. It has determined to hold fast to the top for finals at the end of this year.

Initiation was charming, and was followed by a delightful banquet in Swarthmore village which the chapter hopes to continue yearly. The initiates entertained with songs and poems of their own composition.

The second Swarthmore annual prom was held February 21 in the large dining-rooms of Parish Hall. The girls were glad Washington's birthday was the next day, and there were no classes!

The English Club sponsored a creditable performance of As You Like It. Later in the year the club held a tea for Professor Schelling of the University of Pennsylvania, who spoke on the "Unity of the Arts." The English Club is having Lomax, the cowboy poet, lecture and read to the college sometime after the spring vacation.

Pennsylvania A held a rummage sale in Chester, a town not far from Swarthmore. The alumnae came to the chapter's aid, and clothes and shoes of all descriptions made it possible to clear the hundred dollar pledge for the Settlement School.

The annual dance, April 22, will be held at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, and is the last of the women's fraternity dances of the year.

Pledging was held before Easter this year instead of in June, as has formerly been the custom, and the change has proved most desirable. The pledges, Irene Bell, Marion Coe, Grace Cooley, Betty Griffiths, Betty Haslam, Rachel Heim, Eleanor Kitlowski, Dorothy Locke, Eleanor Lotte, Maria Salisbury, and Ida Sloan, were entertained by the active members in the Cameron House on March 21, at the annual pledge banquet.

Shortly after Christmas the chapter entertained B K chapter of Φ M, as an expression of its welcome to this new national fraternity at Bucknell.

A successful Valentine's dance was given early in February, followed by next day, by a card party for the benefit of the Settlement School. In addition to the money raised in this way, each girl is earning a dollar as her contribution to the Settlement School fund.

Pennsylvania B is anticipating a visit from Miss Woodward, the Province President, in the near future, and is glad that she has fully recovered from her recent illness.

Arrangements are being made to celebrate Founders' Day with the alumna, and the freshmen are busy preparing entertainment for the occasion. Several of the girls are planning to attend the annual Founders' Day luncheon given by the Lancaster alumnae club at the Penn-Harris in Harrisburg.

Every Π Φ at Bucknell is greatly interested in convention and nothing would be more pleasing to the chapter than to be able to attend en masse. However, those who cannot go are depending upon the more fortunate actives and alumnae to bring back the inspiration of the convention.

This year the chief interest of Bucknell students and alumni has been directed toward the stadium, and drives in Pittsburgh, New York, and Philadelphia have already raised half of the $500,000 necessary for its erection. The university has enjoyed a very prosperous year, and there are many indications of its continued expansion and progress.

The spring semester has been a busy one. Initiation was held early in March, a cooky-shine followed which was enjoyed by all the chapter girls and the alumnae present.

The annual formal dance was held on March 17. Guests were invited from the three other girls' fraternities.

Inter-fraternity feeling is very good this year. Through the efforts of Panhellenic and good will on the part of the girls the coöperation has been splendid.

Several Pi Phis have been chosen for parts in the Commencement play, also for leading parts in the glee club operetta. Betty Chambers has a solo part in a cantata which is to be given soon before the student body. The women's glee club makes its first trip, to Mt. Alto, in the near future.

The chapter is planning to attend the annual Founders' Day luncheon which is given by the Lancaster alumnae club in Harrisburg.

The Province President, Dorothy Woodward, is planning to pay a visit to the chapter.

Plans are being made for the fraternity Commencement luncheon, for which it is hoped that many alumnae will be able to return.

The basketball season has just closed very successfully. Dickinson's center was selected as the second best of the eastern college teams. The baseball season opened with a victory over Franklin and Marshall. Extensive plans are being made for track and tennis.

Many improvements are being made in the college buildings, including the repainting of the women's dormitory.

Dickinson has been chosen as the site for the Y. W. C. A. Conference, the first of its kind to be held in the East, at which twelve colleges are to be represented. It is to be a technical training conference for new cabinets.

The chapter is pleased with the idea of a committee on social exchange, and feels that it will prove of benefit to all chapters.

Several of the girls will go to convention. The thoughts of those who can't go will be with the convention, hoping that it will be better than ever before.

A multitude of interests upon the campus is claiming the attention of the members of Pennsylvania Δ . Chief among these are the plans for a Pitt week, which is an innovation at the University of Pittsburgh. Migratory dancing in the different fraternity houses, inter-fraternity races, and May Day exercises are important features of the celebration. Eleanor Matthews and Ruth Trimble have been appointed on the committee in charge of the arrangements. W. S. G. A. has made a forward step by introducing a more formal system of voting at the annual elections. By holding primary elections before the general elections, the association has succeeded in arousing considerable interest among the women students.

The Panhellenic situation, which at times was somewhat threatening, has been aided by a conference held April 4-5. Mrs. Robson D. Brown represented $\Pi \Phi$ as speaker upon the subject "Fraternity Criticisms," and Bertha Prichard was in charge of a round table on "Personal Rushing." A charter has been granted by Mortar Board to the local honorary activities fraternity $\Lambda \Lambda \Lambda$.

The initiation service for Doris Lindbom and Margaret McConahey was held in the new chapter rooms the night of March 23. Pennsylvania Δ has recently pledged Nellis Hemple, one of the second semester freshmen.

During Easter vacation two of the chapter's patronesses entertained the girls and a few of the alumnae at a party. The dean of women of the university, Miss Amos, was the guest of honor. At present the alumnae and active chapter are planning for the Founders' Day luncheon. The annual Panhellenic dance was held in the Hotel Schenley on April 13.

With the various publications on the campus, and the recent organization of a girls track team and class swimming teams, members of $\Pi \beta \Phi$ at Pitt are finding their way into activities.

The close of college will bring with it many regrets, especially since it will mark the end of Miss Evans' year in Pittsburgh. Her suggestions and assistance have been of untold value to the chapter.

Initiation, held at the home of an alumna, was unusually beautiful and effective because of the spacious living-room in which it took place. Dorothy Armstrong, having made the highest average, was initiated with the chapter honor pin. Following initiation, dinner was served at the Colonial Hotel, at which the alumnae were hostesses.

The chapter is practicing for the annual Skit Show, in which various women's fraternities and organizations take part. The name of the $\Pi \Phi$ skit is Tut-Tut-Tut-Ankhamen, with the scene in the king's tomb. In fifteen minutes' time there will be solo dancing and singing, and a grand finale on Fate.

Convention is being discussed, and several of the girls are quite enthusiastic about the trip to Estes Park. If all could only be there, what a glorious time there'd be!

The spring dance was novel, a Gingham Dance; all the girls wore gingham, and the programs were of gingham, sunbonnet-shaped. The grand march could not have been more effective; the couples stepped to the tune of Old Fashioned Girl in a Gingham Gown.

In the election of officers for women's league recently, Lucille Nazor, vice-president this year, won the presidency. Several of the chapter who are on the staffs of the school paper and magazine have made contributions the entire year.

In March the chapter suffered the loss of the oldest patroness, Mrs. Kathryn Ellis, the widow of a former president of Ohio University. She was a woman who was keenly interested in $\Pi \Phi$ and the chapter will always keep this memory of her.

The alumnae and active chapter will unite the last of April for the celebration of Founders' Day, and they are anticipating making it as successful as it has been in past years.

The women of Ohio State University are putting forth every effort in preparing for the first national convention of the Women's Self Government Association which is to be held at the university, May 2-5. Christine Yerges, a member of Ohio B and president of Ohio State University women's council, is president of the middle-western association, and will preside at the convention. All the women's fraternities are planning entertainment for their members who come as delegates. The May Day breakfast, a campus tradition, is to be held while the delegates are here.

At the Ohio B formal dinner dance, held at the Elks' Club, April 6, the chapter was delighted to have five members from Ohio A as its guests. It also invited representatives from the other women's fraternities at the university.

Ohio B is beginning to have hopes for the Panhellenic scholarship cup next year. Many of the grades were exceptionally high last quarter.

The active chapter is planning a candy sale soon for the house fund, and it is going to join the alumnae club in a rummage sale for the same purpose. The fund is growing and plans are being formulated so that Ohio B is hoping to be able to begin to buy a house soon.

Margaret Arnold, a pledge of Ohio B, was elected secretary of women's council for next year.

The celebration of Founders' Day, one of the most anticipated events of the year, will be a formal dinner with the alumnae club.

The fraternity spirit on the campus was greatly enlivened by the girls' inter-organization basketball tournament, with a silver cup as the goal. $\alpha \Delta$ won the coveted prize; but $\Pi \Phi$ was not left out, since two members made the varsity team. Track, tennis, and baseball are now holding chief places in the realm of sports.

A new constitution for Panhellenic has been adopted. It has dispensed with the two weeks' membership campaign at the beginning of college, and sets the date of pledge day sometime during the eleventh week of the first semester.

The chapter was more than delighted to have Francese Evans, Grand Secretary, at the initiation ceremony and banquet held at the chapter house February 24. The girls enjoyed every minute of her visit and are endeavoring to profit by her criticisms and suggestions.

Preparations are rapidly being completed for the annual spring formal, May 5, a dinner dance, given at the Mont Chateau Club, which is situated in the heart of the famous Cheat Mountains.

This year it was decided to have a definite Settlement School drive, for which each girl has pledged to earn her share of money. The house has become a place of varied industries, with everyone earning a few dollars for the school.

The law building begun a year ago is rapidly nearing completion. Y. W. C. A. is at the head of a campaign to arouse interest and enthusiasm for a new gymnasium building.

The chapter has just elected Elizabeth Reed as convention delegate and other members of the chapter expect to go. Let us meet at Estes Park!

Between semesters Maryland A had the pleasure of entertaining Mrs. Arthur Brinkley, Gamma Province President. Many of the chapter were deprived of the opportunity of meeting her because of the holiday but those who remained in college profited by being able to know her more intimately and informally than might have been possible otherwise. Her advice and influence have been most helpful in college and fraternity problems.

Grace Lewis again offered to contribute an equal amount in the name of Maryland A if the chapter would earn fifty dollars for the Settlement School before April 1. The money has been raised by selling stationery and Christmas cards.

One of the most significant events in Goucher's $6,000,000 campaign was a rally in the Lyric Theater on April 6. Nine hundred students in cap and gown almost filled the first floor of the theater and a large and enthusiastic audience was greatly impressed. College and campaign songs were sung informally before and during the program. Katherine Harmon, college cheerleader, and Rachel Payne at the piano contributed toward the success of this part of the evening. The meeting was not only an assurance to those who have put their faith in Goucher in the past, but also a security for the materialization of a better and greater Goucher.

In the most important of commencement activities, senior dramatics, the class of '23 is attempting a difficult feat in the production of Twelfth Night. Bernice Scheuer is leading lady and three II B Φ seniors are in the cast. Doris Gherky, '23, and Roberta Ennriken, '24, are in charge of the proms of their respective classes to be given on April 27 and 28.

Founders' Day will be celebrated with the Baltimore alumnae club at a dinner in the fraternity rooms. Plans for the annual spring house-party at Sherwood Forest will be discussed.

Elizabeth Dorsey, Helen Gregg, Grace Harris, Helen Hanford, Edna Kilpatrick, Mary Louise Lemon, Virginia Rea, Marguerite Smith, Sophia Waldeman and Ruth Williams, the new pledges, are planning a musical comedy to be given in honor of the chapter early next month.

Of four members in the Sphinx honor society this year, two are Pi Phis. Columbia A holds the vice-presidencies of the freshman, sophomore and senior classes in Columbian College as well as senior president in Teachers' College. The chapter is represented on the basketball team, rifle team, and the publications staff.

Interesting plans are afoot for Founders' Day banquet on April 28, to be held at the Grace Dodge Hut with the alumnae.

The few more busy weeks are filled with plans for May day, field day, and the annual Founders' Day banquet.

The year 1922-23 has seen the completion of the student building, and the beginning of a new dormitory on the campus. This will increase the student body next year by one hundred twenty-five.

In the triangular debate between Agnes Scott, Sophie Newcomb, and Randolph-Macon, Randolph-Macon defeated both of her rivals.

Randolph-Macon was honored March 12 by having Vice-President Coolidge make the Founders' Day address. Mrs. Coolidge accompanied her husband to Lynchburg and several members of the chapter had the pleasure of meeting this distinguished $\Pi \Phi$ at the college reception given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge. On account of the shortness of her stay in Lynchburg, the chapter did not have the privilege of entertaining for her.

The visits during this year of Miss Evans, Mrs. Brinkley, Province President, and Mrs. Scott, Eta Province President, have meant a great deal to Virginia A. They have brought a wider, clearer viewpoint, have made the chapter realize more fully the importance of $\Pi \Phi$ as a national organization, and have pointed the way to improvement and progress within the chapter.

During this year $\Pi \Phi$ has been represented in every college activity. Members of Virginia A have been on the student committee, the Y. W. C. A. cabinet and executive board, the debating council and teams, the Sock and Buskin Club, the staffs of the college publications, and in all the athletic meets. Next year the chapter hopes to live up to this standard and surpass it by doubling its efforts to improve the chapter and the college.

This year has also seen the installing of a new system of membership campaigning by the local Panhellenic which has abolished many evils and brought many good results. The chapter is delighted that this welcome change took place while one of its members was president of Panhellenic.

Now comes the call to convention which will supply the source of ideas and the inspirations for greater achievements next year.

Of course, Miss Evans' visit was delightful and all too soon ended for Virginia B. Her influence was most stimulating and succeeded in bringing about a veritable epidemic of resolutions and reforms.

Hollins has taken a big leap forward this month, in that the Little Theater drive has gone over the top and at last the college will have its own little theater, a modern gym, and a pool next year. The alumnae responded to the plea generously and made it possible for $\Pi B \Phi$ to do its share in bringing this new joy to Hollins.

Members of $\Pi B \Phi$ have been going into dramatics with exceptional enthusiasm. Beulah Taylor, '24, who coached the junior play and also took part in it, was highly praised by the dramatic board. Dorothy Griffis, Ruth Millikin, and Lucy Poulnot made their debuts in the freshman play. Rosalie Weill, '25, is manager of the student play to be taken on the road for the benefit of the theater fund.

In the elections for next year, Elizabeth Clack, '24, is president of student government; Ann Milton, '24, is editor-in-chief of the Spinster; Beulah Taylor, '24, is editor-in-chief of the Magazine; Rosalie Weill, '25, vice-president of athletic association and Lillian McMurdo, '26, secretary and treasurer. Virginia Cody, '25, was also reelected to the Spinster staff.

All are anticipating an enjoyable banquet in May and hope to have many alumnae present.

This year has been a step in the creation of a greater Hollins and it is with an increasing interest in the growth of her Alma Mater that each $\Pi \Phi$ at Hollins sees this year end.

The Province President, Mary Rayner Brinkley, paid the chapter a visit, just after initiation and in time for the annual initiation banquet. She brought a real inspiration especially through her interest in the Settlement School and the Washington alumnae club meeting. She left many helpful suggestions to be carried out next year.

Florida A is glad to welcome back as an active member, Marie Wray, a music graduate of last year, who is assisting in the music conservatory.

Sometime ago, the chapter gave its annual mothers' and patronesses' tea. This year it was a Valentine affair with decorations, favors, and refreshments in keeping. Guests were entertained by several original stunts from the pledges.

At Easter, the combined glee clubs of the university gave The Crucifixion, in which several Pi Beta Phis took part. As usual, the basketball team won the state championship, with three Pi Phis earning a Stetson "S."

The chapter is anticipating convention and hoping several members will be able to go.

The beautiful initiation service added eleven splendid girls to the chapter roll. A banquet followed the ceremony, with many appropriate toasts, songs, and good things to eat.

On March 21, Florida B pledged Mary Burke, '26, DeFuniak Springs, Fla.; Polly Gillette, '25, and Priscilla Toomer, '25, Jacksonville, Fla. The pledges of this year gave the chapter a new set of furniture for the chapter room.

The chapter has recently adopted a point system. Sides have been chosen and each girl receives a point for every college activity in which she takes part. The winners will be entertained by the losing side at the close of the year.

The responsibilities of the following offices have been assumed by Florida B: treasurer of sophomore class, secretary of freshman class, athletic manager of freshman class. Five girls are members of the larger cabinet of Y. W. C. A., one on the smaller cabinet, Y. W. commission, and freshman commission. In the baseball interclass tournament six Pi Phis were on the various teams.

Dr. W. H. Rogers is one of the new professors of English this year; his wife is a $\Pi \Phi$ alumna of Randolph-Macon. She recently entertained the chapter at her home.

Reba Harris, an alumna, who is working with the State Board of Health, secured a prominent nurse to talk on health to the chapter last month. Gladys Morris, '22, brought a group of Leesburg High School girls here to take part in the State High School Track meet held April 6 and 7. All welcomed her.

Two new local fraternities have joined the group of Greeks on the campus. $\Pi B \Phi$ is glad to welcome ΦE , petitioning $Z T A$ and $A \Theta$ petitioning $K A \Theta$, because there is a need for more chapters here.

Mrs. Arthur Brinkley, the new Province President, visited the chapter April 3. Florida B enjoyed her visit and received a great deal of help and inspiration. The girls gave a dinner party in her honor at the Colonial Tea Room.

The chapter is anticipating the celebration of Founders' Day with much interest. It is planning to have an early morning service and a banquet in the evening.

Florida B is proud to be able to send its first delegate to convention to bring back inspiration, by which the chapter may benefit and begin work next year with renewed interest and enthusiasm.

The Hillsdale College has just received a bequest of $15,000, $10,000 of which goes to the endowed David Marks professorship, and $5,000 to the work of the women's commission. A large residence has recently been purchased to be used as an annex for the women's dormitory.

Among future events are the annual May fête, the presentation of Come Out of the Kitchen by the college dramatic society on April 27, and the third annual J-Hop which comes the next night.

Marion Hall will give an illustrated lecture on Japan under the auspices of the Hillsdale alumnae club, in the near future, for the benefit of the Settlement School.

The chapter gave a formal dancing party on February 5. About one hundred were present.

Ten girls were initiated into Michigan A March 24, and the annual initiation banquet was held that night. Among the out-of-town guests at the banquet were Grace Higbee Mark, '90, of Michigan A; Ruth Mallory Carpenter, Michigan A; Mary Tranter, Indiana B; Ellen Burns, Indiana A; Anna Robinson Nickerson, Grand Vice-president, was a guest at the time of initiation. Her presence was an inspiration to all.

Michigan A has been taking active part in campus activities. The president, secretary, and treasurer of one of the women's literary societies, the vice-president of the other literary society, the vice-president, secretary, and treasurer of the senior class, the secretary of the junior class, the secretary-treasurer of the sophomore class, the vice-president and treasurer of the freshmen class, the president and vice-president of East Hall council, the treasurer and the under-graduate representative of Y. The chapter is still maintaining its high place in scholarship among the various campus organizations.

In February came examinations, the junior hop, and initiation February 24. Margaret Reineke, as Dr. Coué, was toastmistress at the banquet, and the speakers had as subjects of their toasts phrases from Coué's teachings. Miss Patch and the house committee worked very hard re-decorating the sun parlor in time for initiation. They made new curtains and covered the cushions of the gray wicker furniture with a lovely cretonne of black, blue and orange.

Mrs. Nickerson, who recently visited the chapter, gave the inspiration and greater interest in the fraternity as a whole, which a national officer always arouses. The local alumnae club and representatives from the other women's fraternities were invited to meet her at an afternoon tea, and the alumnae entertained her at a luncheon.

The junior play was well received by the general public, to whom it was opened for the first time. $\Pi B \Phi$ was well represented, as Helen Delbridge was assistant general chairman, and every other junior had some share in cast, chorus, or committee work.

The senior play is to be a pageant, Sherwood Forest, for which all the seniors are trying out.

The interest of the women of the campus is still centered in the campaign for the new women's building, and all the fraternities are earning money for it. Under the auspices of $\Pi B \Phi$ a local company will give a clever puppet show, and as the expenses are small, the girls hope to contribute a large sum for their share this spring. At the recent annual women's banquet, of which Lucile Whitney, '24, was chairman, the announcement was made that Mrs. Hugh Cabot would give a large share of the profits of her Cosy Corner Tea Room to the fund. As Mrs. Cabot is a patroness of the chapter, and has $\Pi \Phi$ girls to assist her in serving, some credit for this is also given to them.

At the election of next year's officers of various campus organizations the chapter is well represented on the list of nominees, for three members are candidates for the three highest positions which women may hold at the university. $\Pi B \Phi$ has been very active in basketball this winter, and has won a number of interfraternity games, the next one in which they play deciding the championship. Elizabeth Lauver, '24, and Olive McKay, '25, were chosen on the all-star team which was picked from the various class teams.

During the time until graduation besides Founders' Day, there will be the annual spring dance, an "apple blossom" bridge party which the chapter and alumnae club are giving for the benefit of the Settlement School, and the week-end of May 18 a house-party, at which the girls' mothers are to be the guests. Plans for their entertainment include the May festival, Cap-night celebration, a formal dinner, and an afternoon bridge tea.

Michigan B has two new pledges, Catherine Coryell, '26, of Junction City, Kan., and Geraldine Truscot, St. Joseph, Mich.

Julia Coe, '23, from Maryland A, who is at Michigan this year, recently gave the chapter a beautiful davenport table for the living-room, and the parents of Helen Porter, '25, are presenting a lamp for it. So the chapter house is more attractive than ever before. The plan of a house committee has made someone definitely responsible for the little repairs which mean so much to the appearance of the house.

The year will be remembered as a pleasant one by the girls of Michigan B, due to the wonderful improvement of the university under President Burton, the chapter's active participation in campus affairs, and the great congeniality and happy companionship of the chapter life. Immediately following the close of the university, a number of the girls are leaving to attend convention. Elizabeth Lauver, '24, is the delegate, and in addition five girls are planning to buy a car and tour to Estes Park.

Indiana A announces ten initiates and also the following three new pledges: Julia Faucett, Morgantown, Ind.; Lucile Neufeldt, Green Bay, Wis.; and Janice Jopling, Princeton, Ind.

II B Φ has made a success of the house and, together with other organizations, Indiana A has received the permission of the college authorities to maintain a house next year.

Members of II B Φ have three parts in the play for which the dramatic club is now practicing. Frances Klyver won the Franklin College oratorical contest and represented the college in the state contest. Helen Forsythe has been initiated into A X A, and Lella Kelly and Clara Godwin have been pledged by that organization.

Indiana A is making money for the loan fund, fellowship fund, and the Settlement School by having a market. It has already made some money by selling motion picture tickets for The Masquerader.

Both actives and alumnæ enjoyed the visits of Mrs. Nickerson and Mrs. Spiegel and considered themselves fortunate in having both these officers in Franklin at the same time. An officer's visit is always a source of inspiration and Indiana A felt doubly inspired by theirs.

Except for the Friars banquet in honor of the football and basketball teams college activities have been few. In fraternity, II B Φ members are anticipating the Founders' Day luncheon in Indianapolis, where they expect to meet the Grand President.

Thoughts are turning toward convention. Several of the chapter hope to be at Estes Park.

At the beginning of the second semester Indiana B pledged three fine girls: Frances Milliner, Ligonier, Ind.; Dorothy Eisenhard, Culver, Ind.; Elsie Stevens, New Harmony, Ind.

On February 24 the chapter gave a reception for the faculty and for its chaperon, Mrs. Martha George.

The chapter was happy to have Mrs. Spiegel here for a few days, and her visit was extremely enlightening and helpful.

The memorial campaign for funds for new buildings for the college was put over with great success again this year. The $\Pi B \Phi$ house was among those on the campus whose pledging was one hundred per cent. At midnight on the final day the full amount pledged was reported to the students assembled on the campus amid blazing red lights and fireworks. The faculty awarded the students a two days' vacation as recompense for the loyalty displayed.

The freshmen entertained the chapter with a matinee dance the same weekend.

Initiation was held at the chapter house March 24, after which fifteen girls were happy to wear their arrows for spring vacation the following week. Several alumnae guests were present for the occasion.

The alumnae held a sale the day before Easter at which baskets from the Settlement School and Easter eggs were sold. The money is to be added to the house fund.

Indiana University is growing steadily, as witnessed by the past year's progress. There has been a boom in athletics and with "Bill" Ingram as football coach and the recent inclusion of athletic fees in tuition there is promise of even more spirit and participation of all students.

The chapter announces the initiation of three girls and the pledging of Mary Frances Ogle, Helena Sieloff, and Dorothy Dill.

Mrs. Spiegel, Province President, visited Indiana Γ during the early part of April and her splendid ideas have been of great value in the development of the chapter. She succeeded in bringing before it a broader fraternity outlook.

Sunday, April 6, $\Pi B \Phi$ entertained at the chapter house some unorganized girls and several ΔZ national officers who are interested in organizing a chapter at Butler College. This chapter was much pleased with the idea, because it feels that the college should have several more national fraternities and it is willing to do all it can to help.

Chapter activities have continued to progress. Mary Frances Ogle and Marjorie Chiles, two freshmen, received parts in a play, Honor Bright, which is to be given in April. Irma Dykes was chosen as a member of the Scarlet Quill, a local honorary inter-fraternity club, and the three new pledges are members of the dramatic club. Constance Forsythe was elected to the Y. W. C. A. cabinet; and Margaret Kellenbach is chairman of the senior class day, president of W. A. A., and a member of the preliminary committee for the school endowment campaign.

Laurel Cissna has received a scholarship at Columbia.

On Friday, April 27, the alumnae and active girls will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of Indiana Γ . All are anticipating that and the state luncheon and dance April 28.

On April 4 the chapter initiated thirteen girls, making an entirely active chapter at Purdue. A number of the alumnae were present for the initiation, and the banquet, which was held in the College Inn of the Fowler Hotel.

Spring brings with it the usual round of outdoor sports with tennis and hiking as the main ones among the girls. Already six Indiana Δ girls have been awarded "Ps" by the Purdue women's athletic association. This organization gave a sweater hop recently to defray expenses of sweaters to be awarded to seniors, and those receiving the required number of points in athletics.

The annual Harlequin Show, George M. Cohan's George Washington, Jr., is to be given April 26, 27, 28, at which time the junior prom and fraternity house-parties will be held. Faith Otten, '23, has a leading part in song and several other Pi Phis are in the song hits. The show will travel to Indianapolis.

The chapter held its annual formal dance at the Colonial Hall, March 23. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Spiegel, who were visiting Purdue at that time, and Carol Meiks, Indiana A. Definite steps were taken at this time toward a $\Pi \Phi$ corporation and the chapter hopes that some future issue of THE ARROW may contain the picture of Indiana Delta's new home.

A benefit candy and bridge party for the Settlement School was held at the chapter house.

The new home economics building held its official opening April 12, at which time an opportunity of seeing each department in operation was given to the public. An interesting feature of the evening was the fashion revue, showing costumes of all periods.

Marjorie Schutt, '23, is in charge of the May Day pageant this year and Faith Otten, '23, has been chosen as one of the eight attendants.

Indiana Δ is anticipating the time when Pi Phis will be gathered to talk of things that interest all and it is glad that those who cannot go will have the opportunity to learn all that takes place each day. Its wish is that each may enjoy convention to the fullest.

Convention is invading the very atmosphere at Minnesota A. It is the most popular topic of conversation, as plans are being made for the journey West this summer. The large number of girls who are going are anticipating with great pleasure the joys of convention and the forming of new friendships in $\Pi B \Phi$.

Minnesota is in a state of transition, as elections for all of the campus organizations are to take place during April. $\Pi B \Phi$ is well represented in the nominations.

During January the players' club, a dramatic organization, presented the comedy Dulcy; Octa French, a $\Pi B \Phi$ freshman, played the leading rôle.

$\Theta \Sigma \Phi$, the honorary journalistic fraternity, is giving a Matrix banquet to be held at the Minnesota Club, to which are invited fifty-six girls who are most representative of Minnesota and its organizations. Members of the faculty will also be present, and under strict secrecy questions of campus interest will be discussed, and a new and better understanding between faculty and students will be gained. Leonore Andrist and Ruth Howard already belong to $\Theta \Sigma \Phi$, while Andrea McKinnon, Adelaide Stenhaug, Lazelle Alway, and Leonore Alway have had the honor of being invited.

It seems that the alumnae club and mothers have worked especially well during the last quarter. The alumnae gave a lovely dinner party just before the end of the winter quarter, and the mothers' club is giving a bridge this week, the money to be used for the house.

The chapter has recently purchased a grand piano. The freshmen gave $100 toward it, and the chapter is raising the rest by monthly taxation.

Minnesota A has received the good news that the Grand President will be with it in a few days and all are looking forward to her visit as a wonderful opportunity to know Miss Onken personally, and to receive guidance and inspiration from one who can so admirably give both.

Wisconsin A is closing a successful year. The annual formal initiation banquet was an occasion which will long be remembered. Thelma Blossom, '24, presided as toastmistress. The recognition pin for the highest pledge grade was awarded to Mary Haven, '26. Two other pledges had averages almost as high.

Due to the efficient management of the house mother and patroness, Mrs Louise Selles Stites, the chapter has been able to re-decorate the dining-room and build a sleeping porch which will be completed by May.

Pi Phis at Wisconsin have been active on the campus this year. Marian Metcalf, '24, was elected Y. W. C. A. president; Dorothy John, '25, vice-president; and Rosamond Nolte, '24, undergraduate representative, besides being on W. A. A. board and varsity bowling team. Anita Haven was elected president of Outing Club and is S. G. A. district chairman; Elizabeth Griffing, '25, pledge F A E, home economics fraternity, and is a member of Euthenics club; Mary Blair, '25, is vice-president of the inter-collegiate club. Florence Fox, '24, Mary Blair, '25, and Margaret Wegener, '26, made basketball teams and Jane Treusdall, '25, made indoor baseball team.

The chapter went to the varsity Jamboree as the characters in Mother Goose Rhymes and won the first prize, a beaten silver cup. Jessie Morton won second individual prize as "Puss in Boots."

Wisconsin has been successful in athletics this year and tied for the championship with Iowa in basketball. Plans are being made for spring formal, the big social event of the year, which many parents and alumnae will attend.

New plans for the membership campaign have been made for next year. The parties begin a week before college opens in the fall.

Wisconsin A has been invited to spend Founders' Day with Wisconsin B at Beloit. The chapter is anticipating its visit from Miss Onken, Grand President, and at her request is planning an informal cooky-shine in order that she may meet the alumnae and the girls who live outside the house.

Beloit activities, which were suspended last spring quarter on account of the all-college pageant, have been taken up again and the student body is making up for lost time. May 5 has been set for the annual high school day. At that time high school seniors who are trying to choose a university will be guests of the college and will be given the opportunity of inspecting the campus. Many Pi Phis are active on committees having charge of entertainments and the chapter is planning to entertain several girls who may attend Beloit next year.

Wisconsin B has initiated twelve splendid girls this year; initiation banquet was held on April 13. The chapter is now making plans for Founders' Day. It has invited Wisconsin A to celebrate with it and is anticipating the day with great pleasure.

The formal dinner dance was given at Hotel Hilton. The annual girls' formal will be given on April 21. All the girls in college attend this party, the big event of the year.

Miss Onken is planning to visit here April 18-20.

The following offices on the campus have been held by members of $\Pi B \Phi$ this year: president and treasurer of the women's self government association; secretary of the entire student body; treasurer of the women's athletic association; undergraduate representative of Y. North Dakota A was delighted to receive special permission to initiate a graduate, Gladys Jacobson, who is now head of the expression department of the Frances Shimer School at Mount Carol, Ill. She was very active in $\Psi \Omega \Psi$ and the chapter welcomes her into $\Pi B \Phi$. Erma Nelson, who has been out of college for a year and a half is attending the university this semester. The chapter pianist, Mildred Odell, is secretary of $\Sigma A I$ and assisted in the installation of the chapter at Minneapolis on April 4, 5, 6. Lucile Wagner has been elected to the Y. W. C. A. cabinet. Lulu Scott is playing on the senior girls' volley ball team.

Mrs. Laurence made her annual visit on February 12 and 13, but a North Dakota blizzard conspired with the chapter and it had a delightful four days' visit with her. Mrs. Laurence gave many helpful suggestions, as well as new enthusiasm and purpose for work. The chapter is anticipating with pleasure the middle of April, when Miss Onken is to visit it again.

The annual senior promenade was held on April 6, and on April 28, a formal reception for the local chapter $A A P$ which on April 27-28 was installed as a chapter of $\Sigma A E$. On February 6 the $\Pi B \Phi$ formal was held at the Hotel Dakota. The favors of the evening were bronze picture frames with the Greek letters $\Pi B \Phi$ in the corner.

The latter part of April the chapter chartered a local theater to raise money for the benefit of the Settlement School.

North Dakota A is anticipating its first convention. Mildred Odell is to be delegate, and although she graduated this year, she will return next year as a postgraduate, to bring back to the chapter the convention enthusiasm and spirit.

The new courses added to the college curriculum this year have received hearty support. During the second semester a horseback riding class was started. In inter-collegiate football and basketball Lombard has won great victories, and in the new debating work some success has been made. Since the establishment of a radio station last fall Lombard talent has been sent abroad under the W. R. A. M.

Some of the Illinois B girls are practicing for the annual campus pageant given Commencement week, and others who belong to the $\Lambda \Phi \Delta$ fraternity are preparing for the plays of the season. Three girls made the honorary varsity basketball team and two the honorary hockey team. Ruth Owens, '23, who is not in college this year, has been honored by the inscribing of her name on the college Panhellenic cup, as Panhellenic honor student for 1921-22.

$\Pi \Phi$ is in the midst of preparation for a Panhellenic banquet and for the Founders' Day banquet. Stunts are being worked up for each of them. The monthly association meeting for March was held in the Illinois B bungalow March 10. At six o'clock Illinois B entertained the Knox chapter and the alumnae of both chapters at a bungalow cooky-shine. Early in the spring the Galesburg chapter and the alumnae club raised \$200 for the Settlement School by a benefit dance at a city club.

Mrs. Nickerson spent a few days in Galesburg about the middle of March. Unfortunately for Illinois B, spring vacation came just at the same time, so that only the few girls whose homes are in the city could meet her. It was with great regret that the chapter found itself deprived of this pleasure and benefit.

With thirteen new members in the chapter, most of whom expect to return next year, and with an inspiring convention just over, next September will begin another happy year. May Estes Park give better aims and higher ideals to all chapters wherever they may be.

Illinois Δ has been fortunate in having visits from Mrs. Laurence, Province President, and Mrs. Nickerson.

Knox College is planning to build additions to Whiting Hall, the women's dormitory, which will include chapter rooms for the women's fraternities. A radio has been installed in the recreation room, where the girls have been able to hear many splendid concerts.

The dramatic club produced two plays this year, Why Marry? and Come Out of the Kitchen. A $\Pi B \Phi$ was in the cast of each. Adeline McCulloch made the cast in the freshman play, A Full House, given April 14. The physical training department will give a May fête in which Illinois Δ will be well represented.

The girls' glee club has six $\Pi B \Phi$ members. A $\Pi B \Phi$ was pledged to $\Theta \Sigma \Phi$, honorary journalistic fraternity. Two members are in the W. S. G. A. Helen Christy, Aileen Snively, and Kathryn Noble made the Student staff. Helen Christy is also on the debating team. The Gale board has four members: Eugenia Maxwell, Bonita Urban, Aileen Snively, and Jean Zearing. Seven members of $\Pi B \Phi$ were on basketball teams.

A Panhellenic party was held April 14, when the chapter gave a stunt. $\Pi B \Phi$ stood second in scholarship the past semester.

The Northwestern University endowment fund is well under way. The class of 1923 has set a precedent by voting that its class gift to the university shall be an annual life subscription to this endowment fund from every member of the class. The associate alumnae of Northwestern University are opening a tea room near the campus for the benefit of the woman's building which Northwestern hopes to have before long.

Illinois E was pleased to receive a visit from Mrs. Nickerson March 21-23.

Margaret Shippen has been elected undergraduate representative of the Y. W. C. A. for next year. Esther McDonald was a delegate at the conference of students and industrial workers held in Madison in March.

The Pen and Ink Club, of which Miriam Simons is a member, has been granted a charter by $\Theta \Sigma \Phi$, national journalistic women's fraternity. Betty Heathcote has been appointed to the feature staff of the Daily Northwestern.

Kathryn Crush, a pledge, had the leading part in one of the plays given by the Prentice Players in March. There are ten members of $\Pi B \Phi$ in the W. A. A. musical comedy, Milady's Bandbox, which will be given on May 5.

Helen Nash has been elected to membership on the W. A. A. board; she is to be head of girls' tennis next year. Dorothy Coleman, a pledge, was on the freshman basketball team which won the interclass championship. Three of the junior girls who have been recommended by Mortar Board for the junior honor roll, are: Jean Burns, Louise McDonald, and Virginia Wadsworth.

March 10 the chapter held initiation for six girls, followed by a banquet at the North Shore Hotel.

Illinois E has received thirty pounds of candy this year, meaning six engagement announcements, among them that of Betty Heathcote, an active member, who announced her engagement to Harold Barner Taylor, $\Sigma A E$, Ohio State University, '15.

$\Pi \Phi$ is making preparations for a formal party to be given May 19.

This spring many long anticipated improvements are evident at the University of Illinois. On the south campus a large new agricultural building is nearing completion. A new gymnasium with adequate room for spectators and a swimming pool will soon be ready for the women of the university also. The most noteworthy enterprise, of course, is the stadium, a memorial to all the fallen war heroes of the state of Illinois, which is to be finished in time for the football season next fall. Work on it has progressed quite rapidly, the gigantic steel structure increasing in size almost daily. A plus campaign for stadium pledges has recently begun. Mary Elizabeth Hangar, '23, assisted in organizing the business staff and several of the girls are solicitors.

Illinois Z has entertained the transfers at a cooky-shine and the alumnae and patronesses at a tea. In order to extend the spirit of coöperation in the university as well, the chapter has been entertaining the faculty at Sunday dinners. Only a few are asked each time so that they may become acquainted with the chapter and the girls with them.

Illinois Z has continued campus activities. Helen Barrett was elected junior representative of the Y. W. C. A. In dramatics, Mary Monahan had a lead in a short play written by a university student, and is to play the ingénue in Dulcie, the Mask and Bauble spring production. Ellen Holton and Alice Rock, '25, are to take part in the women's league pageant. In athletics bowling has continued to be the chief interest. Maeotta Divelbiss, '25, Betty Phillips, '24, and Florence Webster, '23, made class teams and the latter was also chosen as a member of the honorary varsity team.

Mrs. Nickerson's visit in March created added enthusiasm for convention since she was able to outline the particulars of the trip and visit at Estes Park. Illinois Z expects to have a large representation at convention this June.

Helen A. Hayes, B.S., in Household Arts, Owensboro, Ky.

The year 1923 has been a splendid one for J. M. U. The English club, under the direction of Dr. Grace Patten Conant and Professor Caroline Lutz (Maryland A), has made it possible for students and townspeople to enjoy Tony Sarg's Marionettes, Myra Reynolds, Dallas Lore Sharpe, James Harvey Robinson, and other worth-while lecturers.

The Millikin Conservatory of Music has offered an unusual program this winter, not only of foreign artists, some of whom are Edna Swanson Verhaar, Gladys Swarthout, the Hilger Trio, and Vera Poppe; but also of conservatory students, who have given some of the most enjoyable ones. Kaeuper Hall holds a spot in every real Millikinite's heart, just as do Professor Olds and his glee club.

The chapter was well represented in intra-mural athletics by Nellora Houghton, '26, who is also on the all-star team. In dramatics $\Pi \Phi$ is represented by Clarissa Flenniken, '26, Helen Crowder, '24, Geneva Tucker, '24, and Idelia Davis, '24, Decatur, Illinois, the last of whom was pledged March 12, On the Y. W. C. A. cabinet are: Thelma Scott, '24, and Helen McDonald, '24; while Zelma Scott, '26, is on the freshman commission of the Y. W. C. A. In student council are Helen Hayes, '23, Helen Jones, '24, Vida Thompson, '23, and Zelma Scott, '26. Thelma Scott, '24, is editor of the yearbook, the Millidek, and has been voted the most popular Millikin girl. The one $\Pi \Phi$ senior, Helen A. Hayes, is editor of the Decaturian, the weekly, and has a prominent rôle in the senior play, Dulcy. A scholastic average of 2.962 again entitled $\Pi B \Phi$ to first place.

One of the brightest spots in the year was Mrs. Nickerson's visit, which was the very first to this chapter. Though it was unfavorable weather and enough to make anyone uncomfortable, Mrs. Nickerson was so gracious that the girls forgot the out-of-doors entirely and thought only of Little Pigeon and convention. They hope that this is just the first of many visits to Illinois H.

On the calendar of the nine weeks left of this college year, are already the following: card party at the Hotel Orland, April 6, house fund benefit; Founders' Day banquet; formal dinner dance at the Decatur Country Club May 19; and the annual June breakfast, given by the alumnæ.

All are thinking and talking convention, and are waiting to exchange greetings with you on June 25 at Estes Park!

Annual initiation banquet was held at the home of an alumna, Mrs. C. G. Gloeckler (Mattie Stearns, '87), on March 24. Immediately after the banquet, initiation was held at the home of Mrs. E. Lines (Fanette Okell, '93). The chapter was pleased to have a large number of alumnae present at the initiation ceremony, which brings to every $\Pi \Phi$ a great realization of the high ideals and purposes of the fraternity.

March 1 the pledges gave, at the Brazelton Hotel, a dinner party for the active chapter, at which the marriage of Helen Baldrige, '25, to Marshall H. Lines, $\Phi \Delta \Theta$, was announced.

Iowa A is well represented in campus activities, as the March elections indicate; Margaret Sisson, president of the women's student council; Edith Davidson, Y. W. C. A. president and member of the board of control of W. A. A.; Edna Van Syoc, also a member of W. A. A. board of control and secretary of Y. W. C. A.

The chapter is anticipating the visit of Agnes Wright Spring with great pleasure.

Simpson is in the midst of a great endowment campaign for $2,000,000. The administration building has been turned into a veritable business house and is filled with busy people who are aiding in the work of the campaign.

Simpson has made some good records this year. Her enrollment was greatly increased; she won the conference championship in basketball; her orator won the state contest and placed fourth in the inter-state contest; and her debate team has just completed a trip to the Pacific coast, during which victories for Simpson were sprinkled liberally through the defeats.

Π Β Φ has done her best to make this year a success for Simpson and for the chapter. Neither scholarship, outside activity, nor fraternity life has been neglected.

Eloise Wright is president of W. A. A., the national athletic association; Catharine Carpenter is the editor-in-chief of the Zenith, the college annual, for next year; and four Pi Phis are in the cast of the annual junior play. Ruby Glasscock went with the girls' glee club as reader.

Several social fraternity meetings have been held this semester. The chapter life seems more complete when the girls have these good times together. Before initiation the pledges entertained the actives at a clever theater party, the actors being the talented pledges. The proper atmosphere was created by evening dresses, paper opera glasses, and programs. The theater was followed by refreshments and a dance and nothing could have been more fun.

Initiation was held at the home of Mrs. F. C. Sigler (Sarah Eikenberry), national historian. Before the initiation dinner was served by the alumnae.

Iowa B is anticipating with pleasure the visit of Agnes Wright Spring and the celebration of Founders' Day with the alumnae.

The spring formal and the alumnae breakfast at Commencement time are still to come, and then many of the girls hope to leave for convention.

With the exception of Dorothy Harriman, Beatrice Olson, and Florence Todd, who graduated March 16, all members returned to college spring quarter. Yolandi Prosperi, who has not been in college this year, has returned, as has Barbara Stanton, after attending Mills College in California.

Iowa State has had a very successful year, with an enrollment of 5,500. New buildings and fraternity houses are constantly being added to the campus.

During winter quarter discussion groups were held once a week with a faculty member as leader. Fraternity study was supervised by several alumnae and the upperclassmen have given a course of systematic fraternity study to the pledges at their weekly meetings at the house. Initiation date will be some time in May.

Dorothy Kenworthy, Illinois Δ , and Ruth Meyerhoff, Iowa B, have been affiliated by Iowa Γ .

In April Mrs. Spring paid the chapter a very delightful visit from which it received much inspiration. The active members entertained the alumnae and faculty members at a tea for Mrs. Spring, and the alumnae gave a luncheon at which they had an opportunity of becoming acquainted with her.

The pledges gave a luncheon and bridge party for the active girls at the Sheldon Munn Hotel, February 17. On February 24, the active girls and pledges held an informal dance at the chapter house. A picnic dance is being planned for May 11, at the country club.

On Founders' Day the alumnae will entertain the active chapter at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. C. F. Curtiss (Olive Wilson).

Iowa Γ members are exerting their best efforts to maintain the prominent place which $\Pi B \Phi$ holds in student activities. Twelve are participating in Veishea, the all-college spring festival, which will be celebrated May 17-19. The fraternity was represented by six girls in the annual home economics

The college has recently had distinctive honors bestowed upon it. The legislature matched the two and a quarter million dollars which the Rockefeller Foundation gave the university, thus carrying out one of the provisions of the grant. The money is to be used for new medical buildings which will be of the finest in equipment and architectural beauty.

Iowa Z has also been distinctly honored. Frances Williams, '24, has been selected as the Iowa entry in the Big Ten Conference representative women's beauty contest. Her picture has appeared in newspapers all over the country, and will be in the Hawkeye. Gail De Wolf has been elected chairman of the social committee of the Y. W. C. A.

The freshmen presented the chapter with a gift of a dozen silver knives and forks engraved with $\Pi B \Phi$. They also entertained the active chapter at a lovely tea-dance.

The Old Gold basketball team tied with Wisconsin for the conference championship.

Iowa Z has enjoyed visits from Olive Hawkins and Mrs. Archer T. Spring.

The chapter started a fund for a new house, and hopes before long to be in its own home. Δ Γ is building next summer, Σ N moved into a beautiful new home just recently, and other fraternities are planning to build in the near future.

This year Missouri has played a successful part in college activities. In the recent elections, Estelle Robnett was elected president of sophomore women for next year, Virginia Gardner, junior woman representative on council, and Parilee Stewart, senior woman representative. This means three council members from II B Φ. Marjorie Harbaugh has been elected secretary-treasurer of the student body for 1923-24, and will be the first woman to hold this office. Amelia Foster has been elected vice-president of the Y. W. C. A., president of the woman's parliamentary club, president of Γ A X, and delegate to the world advertising convention, in Atlantic City. Sally Lacy has been appointed to serve as chairman of the finance committee of the Y. W. C. A. Ruth Belcher has been chosen as one of the beauty queens for the annual.

Jeanette Asbury is head of the health program committee, working with Dr. Matzke in the interest of the health campaign conducted among university women. As their part in the work the Π Φ girls have had regular daily exercises. They feel greatly indebted to Dr. Matzke, and regret that she will not be here next year.

In dramatics, Muriel Eastman starred in Blood and Sand given by the Harlequin Players; Laura Clark, Aline Hutton, and Marjorie Newton were in Bambino, the annual journalism musical comedy; Virginia Gardner directed the annual journalism fashion show.

Missouri A was delighted to have Miss Onken with it the last of February. It feels greatly benefited by her visit and much closer to national Π B Φ .

During the last months the chapter has been busy socially. The Valentine dance was declared the best party of the year. A tea for Miss Onken; a supper honoring Mr. Ganz, director of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra; a luncheon for Exie Gray, whose marriage to Thomas Wood Parry took place March 29; and a bridge party for Miss Plank, the chapter chaperon, have been part of the calendar. At Founders' Day banquet Missouri A hopes to have Olive Hawkins, Zeta Province President with it.

This year Washington University is in the midst of a period of expansion. The new building of the school of law, begun last spring, is nearly completed, and a recent gift from a friend of the university will make possible the erection of a building to house the department of geology.

The organization of a graduate school, the first of its kind in any American university, with the preparation of men for public service as its specialized aim, has been announced. It will be linked with the Institute of Economics and the Institute of Government Research in Washington, D. C., and the third year of the course will be given there, where a $100,000 residence, to be called the Residence Foundation of Washington University, has been purchased and presented to the university by the president of the corporation. The university has also recently complied with the terms under which its medical school obtained an endowment of $1,250,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation, and this now becomes permanent.

There is regret among many of the students at the abolishment of the honor system by vote of the student council, and some feel that this would not have occurred had a general vote of the students been taken.

Missouri B has tried to live up to the expansion of its university and its fraternity in every way during the past year, and continues to hold a high place in college activities. Doris Maull, '26, a pledge, was elected Beauty Queen of Washington University by an artist who chose from among the ten girls receiving the greatest number of votes of the students; Alice Clifford, '25, Hilda Schroeter, '23, and Margaret Steele, '24, have leading parts in the May Day play to be given soon; and Dorothy Snodgrass, '25, is a member of the cast of the annual production given by Thyrsus, the dramatic society. She and Hilda Schroeter, '23, also were in charge of the costumes of the Thyrsus Mellerdramer given in March. Virginia Gorin, '25, and Margaret Steele, '24, have been elected to represent their respective classes on the council of the women's self government association.

The chapter recently enjoyed a health talk given by Dr. Schaaf, the aunt of one of the members. The chapter is anticipating the Founders' Day banquet, when it hopes to have Miss Onken present.

Missouri Γ moved into its new home, 426 1-2 E. Center, February 1, and has found it to be a most convenient and delightful place. There is one very large room, a kitchenette, and a dressing-room. A shower for the rooms was next in order, and everything from a gas stove to water tumblers found their way into the new home. The pledges gave a beautiful mahogany clock that just puts the finishing touch to the mantel. The alumnae club made and hung fringe-trimmed pongee curtains.

On March 10 the alumnae were guests of the active chapter, and new friends were made and old acquaintances renewed.

Mary Carpenter, '25, Walnut Grove, and Katherine Jezzard, '25, Springfield, have been pledged recently, making four pledges, since two girls of the freshmen were not initiated.

March 19 the chapter held open house to which all Drury students, the faculty, and many friends of the chapter were invited.

The third annual Panhellenic banquet was held at the Sansone Hotel, March 19. Louise Pate, president, was toastmistress. $\Delta \Delta \Delta$ won the scholarship cup, $\Pi B \Phi$ ran second, $Z T A$ third.

The Drury semi-centennial pageant is under way. The chorus and the orchestra have been working since the first of the semester. All speaking parts have been assigned, and the cast is at work. Shrubs have been planted, and careful attention is given to that portion of the campus just back of Burnham Hall, which is to serve as a stage. Those alumnae and friends of the college who are planning to return for the celebration will see a masterpiece, both from a technical and a literary standpoint.

A number of Missouri Γ girls are planning to come to convention. Every active girl is looking forward with the greatest pleasure to the time when she can give to the chapter all the new ideas and inspiration she will receive there.

Miss Onken's visit is the outstanding occurrence of the last half of the college year. Her kindly suggestions have done much toward making chapter and college life happier and more satisfying. The days she spent with Nebraska B were an inspiration and a delight long to be remembered.

The week-end before spring vacation the chapter gave a benefit bridge breakfast for the Settlement School. It was a new type of entertainment, and all were rather anxious over its success. However, it was well advertised and the crowd was far larger than anyone had dared to hope. The profits were a pleasing reward for the hard work. The chapter is planning to make it an annual affair.

Initiation was the following week, when all the freshmen were eligible. The next day was the first of the spring recess.

Return from vacation was followed by the visit of Mrs. Scott, Province President. It was a pleasure to know her and to receive her helpful criticism.

The chapter is anticipating the impetus which convention will lend to the coming year.

The second semester opened for Kansas A with the pledging of Sara Albright, Leavenworth, Kan.; Louise Utter, Denver, Colo.; Caroline Waldron, Kansas City, Mo.; and Aliene Winchester, Hutchinson, Kan. Washington's Birthday was celebrated with initiation of ten pledges, followed by a cooky-shine; and Josephine McDonald, who was ill at that time, was initiated at a special ceremony on March 15.

In early March, Miss Onken paid the chapter a visit which was only too short. Even a tea given in Miss Onken's honor could not prevail upon her to stay longer. At this time Miss Onken found the chapter very proud of two seniors, Leona Baumgartner and Ruth Ohmer, who had been announced as members of both $\Phi B K$ and Torch, which corresponds to the Mortar Board of other universities. Two other seniors, Nestor Moore and Mary Helen Hamilton have been leaders in the department of physical education; Nestor Moore as president of the women's athletic association, and Mary Helen Hamilton as manager of basketball.

At the spring carnival in which the whole university took part, $\Pi B \Phi$ won the prize for the most successful performance: The Fotygraft Album, which was directed by Frances Wilson and Nadine Irwin. Frances Wilson and Elizabeth Sifers have recently played in Mr. Pym Passes By, in several towns besides Lawrence. Frances Wilson took the leading rôle. She is also on the first cabinet of Y. W. C. A. Elizabeth Sifers and Evelyn Lowman are both members of $M \Phi E$, women's honorary musical fraternity.

On the campus much blasting and digging announce the erection of a union building and dormitories and a new library to take the place of the overcrowded Spooner library.

An addition on the campus will be the stone bench which the members and alumnae of Kansas A, are giving to the university in honor of the chapter's fiftieth anniversary.

Dorothy Churchward, B.S., 1128 N. Topeka Ave., Wichita, Kan.

One of the most pleasant events that has taken place this year was the visit of Miss Onken. While here she conducted initiation services for twelve pledges. Her visit was a wonderful inspiration.

Kansas B has pledged Ruth Holton, Manhattan, Kan., who is the daughter of Mrs. E. L. Holton (Maryland A).

The alumnae club and the active chapter gave a silver musicale for the benefit of the Settlement School, in Recreation Center to which the women of the town were invited. At the close of the program, given by members of $\Pi B \Phi$ only, tea was served by the alumnae, patronesses, and town mothers, assisted by the active chapter. Baskets from the Settlement School were sold. The silver offering amounted to seventy-five dollars.

Faith Martin placed third in the annual popularity contest.

The girls are all practicing tennis, baseball, or swimming and it is hoped that $\Pi \Phi$ will be represented when the teams are chosen.

Kansas B is delighted with gifts received recently from the Kansas City, Mo., alumnae club, a black satin pillow with a table runner to match, for the sun parlor. Mrs. Noel (Mary Churchward, Kansas B) also sent a lovely pillow to match the others.

The annual spring party has been planned for May 4. The guests will be girls from various places who are planning to come to K. S. A. C. next year.

The alumnae club and the active chapter will celebrate Founders' Day with a formal banquet.

Since convention is to be held so near this year, a great many of the girls are planning to attend, and are eagerly anticipating it.

Wyoming A is rejoicing over the recent purchase of a new home, a modern bungalow, wonderfully located near the campus. The girls feel very fortunate in getting this house already furnished and since freshmen are not allowed to live in the house, it accommodates the upperclassmen comfortably. However, the freshmen are here for three meals a day. Wyoming A is very grateful to Dr. Hebard and Mrs. Wilbur Hitchcock, who have worked so faithfully for the best interests of $\Pi \Phi$ and have made the new house possible. During National Better Homes movement week the chapter was asked to open its house as one of the four model homes to be exhibited to the public.

The chapter gave a successful card party recently to raise money for the Settlement School.

Wyoming A held open house for the university faculty and students. It was pleased to have so many friends come to see and approve of its purchase.

During tournament week the alumnae who returned were: Mrs. Sam Neff (Nora Banner), Mrs. Floyd Buchanan (Susan Breisch), Gladys Hasbrouck, Virginia Miller, Frances Ferris. A cooky-shine was given in their honor and the chapter was happy to have Alice Sedgwick, Nebraska B, here at that time.

Ruth Kimball and Rowena Hasbrouck will serve for the coming year on the new Y. W. C. A. cabinet. Rowena Hasbrouck was also elected to membership into $\Phi \Upsilon \Theta$, professional home economics fraternity.

This year the university girls have organized a women's athletic association. A number of Pi Phis have been elected to membership. Those who have been chosen as officers are: vice-president, Nancy Jones; treasurer, Helen McWhinnie; and heads of sports, Maud Morrow and Constance Chatterton.

The University of Wyoming has had an unusual record in debating this season, having won twelve consecutive debates.

students a new wing has been added to the west side of the library. The foundations for a new gymnasium have been laid, but due to labor troubles, work has stopped, and the building cannot be completed before next year. A new pipe organ, the largest and finest instrument west of the Mississippi, has been installed in Macky Auditorium, and will be dedicated with an organ recital by Dr. Chace, head of the music school, on May 19. Landscape gardeners have been employed to beautify the whole campus, and new shrubbery and trees have been planted.

Π Β Φ, inspired by the coming of spring and the general air of progress about the university, has entered into activities more enthusiastically than ever, with the result that: Mary Larrick, '24, was elected queen of the May fête, an honor which has been received by Π Φ for three successive fêtes: Edith Eklund, '25, was elected to Hesperia, junior women's honorary society; Ruth Lannon, '24, was initiated into Ι Σ ΙΙ, honorary chemical fraternity; Mary Larrick, '24, was initiated into Κ Δ ΙΙ, honorary educational fraternity; Elizabeth Kohler, '24, was elected vice-president of Y. W. C. A.; Isabelle Keating, '26, and Mary Causey, '26, were appointed on the freshman commission. In addition five of the eighteen attendants of the May queen are members of Π Φ while fifteen others take part in the dances.

During the quarter the chapter enjoyed a visit from Mrs. Archer T. Spring and the Province-President, Mrs. Fraser. On Saturday, April 7, a bridge party, the first of a series, was given to raise money for the building of a new chapter house.

Colorado A is proud to have eight seniors graduating with honors.

Colorado B is eagerly anticipating convention to be held here in Estes Park. Practically the entire chapter is planning to attend.

The $\Pi B \Phi$ bungalow is at present in the process of refinishing and re-furnishing. The walls have been calcimined and the floor has been revarnished and waxed. There are new curtains and drapes and new furniture of Old English style.

Anna Pifer, '23, is pledged to Kedros, women's honorary senior fraternity, thus making two of the four $\Pi B \Phi$ seniors members out of a Kedros membership of six girls.

The University of Denver is working hard on its annual circus and May fête. $\Pi \Phi$ is well represented in each of these undertakings. The drama club's semester production, The Rock, has just been presented, Margaret Tulley, '23, taking the lead. $\Pi B \Phi$ also has a share in the cast of the senior play.

During the second semester Colorado B has pledged one girl, Charlotte Biggs, '26.

The chapter is busy with plans for the spring faculty, mothers' and high school teas.

Uppermost in the minds of all members of Oklahoma A is the visit of the ARROW Editor, Mrs. A. W. Spring, who gave many practical and encouraging suggestions.

During the second semester this chapter has pledged four splendid girls: Eleanor Jordan, '25, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Dorothy Pyeatt, '26, Pauls Valley, Okla.; Della Revard, '26, Kansas City, Mo.; and Lucille Shelton, '24, Tulsa, Okla.

Catherine McKinney and Clara B. Waltrip have been pledged to $\Phi M \Gamma$, national women's honorary dramatic fraternity. Elinore Ittner is on the social service committee of the university Y. W. C. A. Georgie Loving has been pledged to $\Gamma E \Pi$, national honorary commercial fraternity. Mabel Leahy is on the junior burlesque committee and Eloise Wilson is treasurer of the senior class. Eloise Wilson is also a member of $\Phi B K$, and ΠA , petitioning group of Mortar Board. Clara B. Waltrip appeared as herald in the Y. W. C. A. pageant and is also to have a prominent part in The Loving Cup, a play to be presented by the dramatic art department of the university.

$\Pi B \Phi$ is making a good record in athletics this year. Juanita Jones is now a member of Ducks' Club, an organization composed of expert swimmers. Mabel Leahy is a guard on the junior class basketball team. The various women's fraternities have become interested in basketball this year dividing the fraternities into leagues, and playing for a cup. $\Pi B \Phi$ has not lost a game so far, and has only one more game to play in the league, which gives it great hope of winning the cup.

The chapter will celebrate Founders' Day in conjunction with Oklahoma B and the alumnæ, with a banquet at the Lee Huckins Hotel, Oklahoma City.

The chapter feels that this year has been unusually successful. The girls who have come into the fraternity are already recognized leaders on the campus. The chapter has been reduced in size somewhat since last year, and twenty-eight is an ideal number for both external and internal development, and coöperation with alumnæ and college authorities.

Oklahoma B's letter is written on the eve of the departure of Mrs. Archer T. Spring, ARROW Editor, who brought much help and many valuable suggestions to the chapter. A reception for other groups and women students was given in her honor. She was also the principal guest at a cooky-shine. Gladys Madigan, a charter member of Oklahoma B, made a short visit at this time.

Recent additions to the activity chart which hangs in the chapter house are: two Y. W. C. A. officers for next year, Bernice Stewart, vice-president, and Carolyn Bagby, secretary; a new member in K Δ II, education fraternity, Cecelia Bouquot; and in Θ Α Φ, dramatic fraternity, Josephine Hale. Madeline Bradley was selected by a vote of the student body as all-college favorite for the popularity section of the '23 Redskin. Mildred Maroney competes with three other colleges in May as a member of the girls' debating team. Π Φ hopes to place at least one honor student in the coming Φ Κ Φ elections.

Final evidence has proved that Π Φ ranked first on the campus in scholarship by having the highest general average for the first quarter, although the cup was first awarded to another group on the basis of another average. As this is the third successive time that Π Φ has won the cup, the chapter may keep it, according to Panhellenic ruling.

An alumnae letter was mailed in March to rehearse for the alumnae, the progress of work in the chapter. Lucille Glazner is writing a history of Β Φ, now Oklahoma B of Π Β Φ.

Initiation in February introduced eight happy girls to the work of the fraternity. A diamond recognition pin promised to the pledge who proved the best scholar was awarded to Eunice Peterson.

Billie Owen will go to convention as the official delegate. Others from the chapter who have announced definitely that they will go are Ruth Jones, Ina Mae Bakhaus, Mrs. Sundell, and Caroline McConnell.

Ina Mae Bakhaus, Gladys Holliday, and Mildred Austin returned to college the third quarter. Irene Bass, who was called home at the end of the winter quarter, will return next year.

The ninth Oklahoma legislature handsomely remembered Oklahoma State College, appropriating $450,000 for buildings, besides large amounts set aside for salaries and maintenance for the next two years. For the first time Oklahoma State College shares fifty-fifty with the state university. The institutional program now rests with the gubernatorial veto which will probably be exercised only on the smaller schools. Bonds to the extent of $500,000 will probably be issued soon for the purpose of building four new dormitories.

Nearly every course has undergone improvement. The enrollment has been greatly increased every year, and the college is growing so splendidly that a brilliant future is predicted for it.

Although Corinne Holmes, Myrtle and Mable Raith, and Pauline Rice are not in college this quarter Arkansas A has pledged two more girls, both of whom have been initiated. They are Adeline Pate and Erma Abbecrombie. Pauline is now in school at Oklahoma Normal at Tahlequah.

The chapter has been well represented on the campus in various activities during the past term. Doris Gladden, Wealthy Johnson, and Erma Abbecrombie are charter members of A T, an honorary literary fraternity which has just been installed. Vera Slaughter is president of the home economics club. Adeline Pate has been taken into II K, honorary journalistic fraternity. Several of the girls have prominent parts in the Agri Day play. Doris Gladden and Gertrude Miles are on the winning hockey team. Alice Maxfield is bible study chairman and Margaret Earle is finance chairman on the Y. W. C. A. cabinet for the remainder of this year and next year.

Girls interfraternity basketball games were an addition to the usual athletic program this year. Although the games were necessarily played without any regular practice, they were very interesting and helped to bring about a closer relationship among the various chapters.

Three members are on the honor roll, both first and second term. They are Marceline Campbell, who holds first place in the junior class, Mary Elise Mulkey, and Doris Gladden.

Plans are being made for the annual state convention in Fort Smith just as soon as college is over. It is near enough for practically all of the active chapter to attend and there will be a larger alumnae attendance. A number of girls are also making plans to attend national convention and the chapter expects to derive great benefit from their reports next year.

The chapter feels that it has learned many things to help it during the coming year. It is anxious to establish even closer relations between the chapter and the pledges. Last week there was a joint meeting of pledges and upperclassmen to discuss this matter, when suggestions were made for improving the relationship. Hereafter the pledges will feel a greater responsibility for chapter work.

Relations with the local alumnae are exceptionally satisfactory. The twenty-five alumnae in Austin help and encourage the girls personally as well as through the club. They have inaugurated a system to encourage the chapter to enter more student activities. Every club officer, committee chairman, etc., receives a certain number of points which are added at the end of the year. The girl receiving the most points is given a piece of fraternity jewelry. On Founders' Day the alumnae are giving a picnic, which all are anticipating.

The last of April four girls are to be initiated. The spring tea for the patronesses will be given in May.

The whole student body is much grieved over the resignation of President Vinson, who will go to Western Reserve University.

All of the girls are anticipating returning next year and making it full of pleasure.

Texas B is unusually happy, for it has initiated the eight girls named above. As it has been over a year since the chapter had held initiation services, the girls were impatient while the pledges were finishing the two terms of college work, which they must pass with a C plus average before they may be initiated.

The occasion turned out to be an unexpected homecoming for Texas B, as a number of out-of-town alumnae came to be present at the ceremony, together with those who live in Dallas.

Southern Methodist University has recently been given $100,000 to erect a theological building. It will be a needed improvement, for the student body is far too large now to be adequately cared for in the present buildings.

The university is enthusiastic over the new president, Dr. Chas. C. Selecman, who lived in Los Angeles, Cal., previous to his residence in Dallas. Dr. Barton, who was selected to fill the presidency last fall was unable to accept because of previous business connections. Dr. Selecman, Σ A E, upholds the fraternities in the university, and has the hearty cooperation of all the students.

Texas B and the alumnae club in Dallas are planning a large cooky-shine, with the customary stunts, to be held on Founders' Day. Instead of the usual joint luncheon at one of the hotels in the city, it was decided that something more informal, where everyone could become acquainted, would be better. About sixty will be present.

The chapter is still talking convention! In fact, as the time draws nearer it is becoming more and more enthusiastic. The girls are determined to win back the cup, which Texas B lost at the last convention.

March 31 marked the end of the third quarter and also the beginning of Easter holidays and the Easter house-party, given on the coast at a lovely place in Bay Saint Louis. Several other fraternities also came to the Bay and everyone had a wonderful time.

The following week-end was the junior prom, which was announced as a Spanish Dance; the juniors turned the gym into a veritable Spanish courtyard with a charming running fountain at one end. May Day, Field Day, and other events are still ahead. Elections began the last week in March with $\Phi B K$ announcements. $\Pi B \Phi$ is delighted to claim three of the nine Newcomb seniors elected: Rose Burgess, Dorothy Felker, and Wilmer Shields. The following week $A \Sigma \Sigma$, honorary senior fraternity, announced its elections. Eight juniors were elected, two of whom are Pi Phis: Perrine Dixon and Ula Milner.

The general student elections which have thus far taken place are: Perrine Dixon for next year's student government president, Ula Milner for student council president, and Dora Greenlaw, ΦM , for dormitory president.

The college has been busy with many entertainments. The French Circle presented two interesting plays: La Petite Parisienne, which was written by a senior; and Le Jeu de L'Amour et du Hasard. $\Pi \Phi$ held parts in both plays: Edwa Stewart, '23, Alice DeBuys, '23, Maxine DeBuys, '25. The greatest play of the year is the senior class play during Commencement week. The title is, of course, a deep secret but everyone knows who is in it; there are six Pi Phis and only ten parts altogether.

In the inter-class debate, in which the sophomores won the cup, Helen Hughes, '25, was on the team. In the inter-collegiate debate between Agnes Scott, Randolph-Macon and Newcomb, held on March 23, four of the six on Newcomb's debating teams were Pi Phis: Wilmer Shields, '23, Virginia Butler, '23, Ula Milner, '24, Beatrice Adams, '25. Ula Milner also won the twenty-five dollar prize given the best speaker at the varsity debate preliminaries.

It has been a very happy year for Louisiana A and the chapter feels it has accomplished something. The general Panhellenic situation has undoubtedly improved; there is little if any fraternity rivalry or feeling. This pleasant condition of affairs is due perhaps to the plan of sophomore pledging.

 Alice Moody, B.S., Home Ec., Bozeman, Mont.

The spring quarter has opened with the usual activities and especial interest in spring athletics. The new gymnasium is finished and is now being used for regular gym and swimming classes.

The college is planning to put on a musical comedy, The Honeymoon Trail, in May. There are three Pi Phis in the cast and six in the chorus. Tormentors, dramatic club, has just returned from a trip through the state playing The Truth, a four-act comedy. Eleanor Marston and Alice Moody were with the cast.

Mrs. Beck, who was here in February, made the chapter feel as never before the true national feeling in $\Pi B \Phi$.

April 7 the chapter gave a rummage sale, the first one ever given here. It proved to be a success.

Initiation was held February 24 with a formal dinner afterwards. The chapter is planning to initiate again soon.

Everyone is looking forward to Founders' Day. Letters will be sent to all Pi Phis in the state asking them to come. Each class will put on a stunt in the afternoon and a formal dinner will follow in the evening.

Living so close to Estes Park, Montana A is especially interested in convention and several are planning to be there, including a number of alumnæ. Though it is not new to Montana A to spend vacation in the Rocky Mountains, it hopes that all the other chapters will like them as well as it does.

This spring the active chapter and the alumnae are centering all efforts toward the completion of a new house, to be erected by next fall if possible. The plans, in Italian style of architecture, were drawn by an alumna, Jenness Bonnell. Although the present home is comfortable, it does not fulfil all the requirements of a chapter house.

$500,000 was appropriated to the University of Washington for a new library at the last meeting of the state legislature. The building, to be erected this spring, will complete a quadrangle, the other buildings of which are home economics, philosophy and commerce, and education halls. The buildings, in Gothic style, will make a very imposing group on the campus.

All Washingtonians are looking forward to the annual crew race with California, April 21. Washington expects a wonderful showing from her crew on account of the victory over California last year and the record made at Poughkeepsie.

The women's league of the University of Washington has been expanded and reorganized to the women's federation, which includes all phases of women's activities such as athletics, dramatics, etc. Doreen Aldwell, a Washington A girl was recently elected vice-president of the organization. Other girls participating in campus activities are Ruth Hecht, who was pledged to associated university players, Bonnie McAnally, who served on the junior prom committee and who will serve on the campus day committee, and Helen Garretson, who made varsity basketball. Jean Stiles will also serve on the campus day committee and Dorothy Brassington was recently elected to serve on the Y. W. C. A. cabinet.

The chapter will initiate thirteen girls April 11. Founders' Day will be celebrated by a banquet at the women's university club.

The chapter has been very fortunate in having an active alumnae club and an active mothers' club. They are both vitally interested in the chapter and recently they gave the house an entire set of silver and dishes. They are now working energetically for a new chapter house.

Washington B has made considerable progress toward attaining the aims it set for itself at the beginning of the year. $\Pi B \Phi$ received a scholarship cup for making the highest average of any organized group on the campus.

Leila May De Mers was recently elected president, and Helen Campbell, secretary of women's league. Leone Webber played the leading rôle in Madame's Career, a dramatic production recently given. Lillian Espy, Aileen Linney, and Ida Louise Anderson have been pledged to membership in Euradelphian, national literary society. The girls' glee club has just returned from a tour of the state. $\Pi \Phi$ was represented by four girls.

Gladys Gue made the freshman basketball team; Helen Campbell, the sophomore team; Lillian Espy, the junior; and Mildred Perry, the senior team. Marion Hackett played on the junior baseball team. Helen Campbell is treasurer of women's athletic association.

Pi Phi has six members on first cabinet of Y. W. C. A.

Mortar Board, national honorary senior women's fraternity is to be installed on the Washington State College campus May 6. $\Pi \Phi$ has two senior girls, Irene Oliver and Mildred Perry, in this organization.

On June 2, twelve colleges of the Pacific Coast will compete in a track and field meet on Washington State campus. It is expected that this will draw the biggest crowd ever assembled here. Campus week-end is to begin May 4, at which time Washington B hopes to have a large number of alumnae return.

Washington B is planning a Founders' Day cooky-shine, when the chapter will enjoy meeting all the alumnae living in this vicinity.

The center of interest at Oregon A is the new chapter house it expects to begin building in April. During the Easter vacation the Portland alumnae club and the Portland mothers' club sponsored a bridge tea and a dance at the Portland Hotel. They were able to turn about $200 into the building fund. Ethel Gaylord, a member of the building committee, has just edited an attractive booklet to send out to all alumnae and parents. It gives a picture of the new house, an account of the financial situation, and other items of interest. Everyone is responding to the call for payment of pledges and loans on the second mortgage notes.

At the end of the winter term, Oregon A pledged two girls. Katherine Watson, a sophomore, is prominent in campus dramatics, is on the Daily Emerald staff, is a member of Pot and Quill, a writers' club, and of Dial, a discussion group, and has just been elected treasurer of the Y. W. C. A. Mabel Madden, the other new pledge, a freshman, is making wonderful progress in the school of music where she is studying piano and violin.

Kwama, a sophomore honor society, pledged three freshmen in March. They are: Janet Wood, Catharine Lyon, and Mabel Madden.

Φ B Π is being installed on this campus this month. Among the Pi Phi to be initiated are Mary Watson, Frances Shoemaker Gregg, Anna Landsbury Beck, Alice Thurston. Mortar Board is also installing a chapter here this spring. Bernice Alstock and Felicia Perkins will be initiated at that time.

Since convention comes during examinations and commencement, it will be possible for but four of the active girls to attend, but several alumnae are planning to be there.

Three new girls have been pledged since the last letter. They are: Rosalia Daus, Portland, Ore.; Jean McClew, Eugene, Ore.; and Kathryn Bramkamp, Fresno, Cal. Two girls, Marcellene Goddard and Louise Squier, were unable to return to college this term but expect to be here next year.

During spring vacation a state-wide campaign was carried on by the faculty and students of O. A. C. to interest high school students in the college. The band toured eastern and central Oregon, giving a series of dances and concerts; an orchestra composed of college men went to the southern part of the State and gave dances for the high school people in the various towns there. In Portland, entertainment consisted of a fashion show, dance in the Multnomah Hotel ballroom, a dinner at the Multnomah and the play Adam and Eva at the Heilig Theater, all of which were put on by the students of the college. The dinner and fashion show were given by the seniors in home economics. Three Pi Beta Phi were in the fashion show, Ruth Dorn, Faye Montgomery, and Irma Scritsmier. As a result of this campaign, a much larger enrollment is expected next year.

The new \$225,000 commerce hall was dedicated with a business show held March 30 and 31. Thousands of people saw the show and were agreeably surprised at the marvelous performance of such office appliances as mimeoscopes, mimeographs, and book-keeping machines, which were demonstrated by many companies throughout the United States. Helen Snyder, senior of Oregon B and vice-president of $\Phi \Theta K$, women's national honorary commercial fraternity, was in general charge of the second floor of the new building.

Many of the girls have entered campus activities this year, holding positions of vice-president of classes, secretaries, and various kinds of work on publication staffs. Ann McPherson is assistant editor of the 1924 Beaver annual.

Junior week-end is scheduled for the middle of May. The canoe fête is one of the most interesting events at that time. Every fraternity will enter a canoe and compete for prizes. $\Pi B \Phi$ is busily at work on its canoe.

In order to make it easier to meet the payments on the home this term, the girls decided not to have the formal dance and to use the money usually spent for that to apply on the debt. With the wonderful help the alumnæ have given, it has enabled the chapter to meet the payments quite promptly.

The chapter is giving a bridge tea for the benefit of the Settlement School.

Mrs. Springer, a patroness, is giving a dance for the chapter this term.

Miss Onken's visit has been an inspiration and help through the entire year and, with the daily guidance of Mrs. Stewart, the house mother, the year has been a very happy and successful one.

Both in campus athletics and dramatics $\Pi B \Phi$ has been well represented this quarter.

Marion Potter has resigned this month from Y. W. C. A. presidency after two years of faithful and successful service on the Y. W. C. A. cabinet.

The new system of membership which has been installed this year, having the year season with pledge day on May 15, has necessitated many new rules and regulations. All are anticipating pledge day.

During spring quarter many improvements about the house will be made. The side porch will be glassed in as a gift from the house association. The chapter will buy new reed furniture and grass rugs for it. All the bedrooms will be repapered, the ceilings retinted, and floors painted or relaid if necessary. The house association with the help of the generous alumnae are making possible all of these improvements.

California A was glad to welcome back this quarter Gale Thompson, who has been three months in Honolulu.

Geraldine Watt will represent California A at convention and several other girls are planning to attend.

California B is nearing the end of her spring semester with three months of vacation ahead.

Berkeley delighted everyone with an early spring this year. The hills turned green and the blossoms were out before they were thought of, with a resultant more than usual interest in out-of-door pleasures. The protecting hills behind the campus have become very popular for the pretty walks they offer. Picnicing has furnished a great deal of enjoyment.

There was so much enthusiasm over the bright weather that the freshman class took it upon itself to plant flowers in the garden.

The new freshmen are Eleanor Coburn, Helen Cowan, Jane Darlington, Ruth Snyder, and Mary Wilson.

The grading system has again been raised. Each mark is raised to the value of the one just immediately higher, so that which is a B used to be an A. This caused considerable discouragement at first. It did not seem as if one could get what one deserved.

Mrs. Helmick honored the chapter with a visit one Monday evening on her return from Honolulu. She told something of the Settlement School, which gave it a very personal touch.

The Stephen's Memorial Building, recently dedicated, has proved to be the center of activity on the campus. There are two whole floors devoted to lounging rooms, one for the women students, and the other for the men. Then there is a tea room and cafeteria, but the most popular place is the soda fountain counter.

The chapter is represented in a number of activities. One of the leads of Parthenia is taken by one of the girls, while others are in the cast. Some are working on the staffs of the Occident and the Daily Californian. $\Pi B \Phi$ is represented in the English club, and economic honor society. Prominent work is being done in Y. W. C. A. and the various drives.

California B is anticipating the convention at Estes Park with much interest and enthusiasm, and hopes to have a number of members there.

California Γ pledged Dorothy Machomich in February, and has affiliated Helen Lyter of Washington A.

Before initiation the pledges gave a Dutch treat matinee luncheon for the active chapter, who enjoyed not having to plan the party. Initiation was followed by a cooky-shine given by the alumnae.

At one of the most distinguished ceremonies ever inaugurated by the university, the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Jan Ignace Paderewski, who graciously responded, telling of his life, and saying that he would remember the occasion especially because it was the first time he had been given the opportunity to speak under similar circumstances. Among the guests of honor were Tamaki Miura, Alice Gentle, and Colonel Sobieski, the last descendant of the kings of Poland.

The $10,000,000 endowment fund campaign for the University of Southern California was launched by an enthusiastic student campaign, of which Evelyn Griffin was vice-chairman. Eight other members of the chapter had an active part on committees. This is the most important thing which the university has ever undertaken and in its success will come the realization of a long-hoped-for greater university.

The following national fraternities have come to U. S. C. this year—K B II. law; M Φ E, music; Φ M A, music; K Ψ , pharmacy; and A Γ Δ , Panhellenic is being organized into a more efficient and stronger body.

Recently at the Π B Φ house, the Y. W. C. A. gave a reception, with Mrs. Von Klein Smid and Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond in the receiving line. The chapter has managed several candy sales for the Y. W. C. A. to raise money for one of its funds.

In campus activities, the girls are particularly interested in athletics. Frances Vale and Grace Kelley made the swimming team. In addition Frances Vale is manager of varsity baseball and Grace Kelley is manager of varsity tennis. Dorothy Haldeman is manager of sophomore tennis.

The annual Founders' Day banquet was widely attended by all Southern California Pi Phis. The usual spring house-party at Balboa Beach was a great success.

Each of the graduating seniors this year has an unusually good record for her college career. Dorothy Rogers was a member of the Spanish club, sociological society and varsity baseball team, and was a delegate to the Π Φ convention in 1921. Grace Kelley is president of the tennis club, manager of varsity tennis, a member of the W. A. A. executive committee, Δ Ψ K, national physical education, delegate to the Δ Ψ K convention in 1922, Amazons and the sociological society. Evelyn Griffin is the president of Panhellenic, chief big sister, vice-president of the student endowment fund campaign, and has been the social chairman of the Y. W. C. A., vice-president of the sophomore class, organizations editor of El Rodeo, associated student body executive committee, and is a member of Torch and Tassel, senior women's honor society, Spooks and Spokes, junior honor society, and Amazons.

Mrs. Wood, Province President, was a great inspiration and gave much practical advice. She left everyone with a great desire to go to convention with the chapter delegate, Dorothy Haldeman, and as many as possible will be there.

Arizona A started the second semester with renewed life and enthusiasm. There were some very good incentives for this: first, the pledging of three most attractive girls; Dorothy Coburn of Prescott, Ariz., Katherine Hoppaugh of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Mary Blanche Napier of St. Johns, Ariz.; second, the visit of the Province President, Mrs. Wood, who was a source of help and inspiration; and third, the winning of the Solomon scholarship cup for the second time. This meant that Arizona A had the highest scholarship rating of all organizations on the campus for the first semester.

The altruistic work for the second semester consisted in giving a Mexican supper and vaudeville entertainment for the benefit of the Settlement School. This supper made over one hundred dollars and gave the patrons and the girls a great deal of enjoyment.

All of the girls have taken part in campus activities and many of them have become leaders in their special lines. Helena Karns, Helen McDonald, '25, and Dorothy Coburn, '26, have been elected to lead in the dance drama, to be presented in the spring pageant. Helen McDonald, '25, has been elected treasurer of the woman's self-government association and was active in organizing the university players, of which body she is a director. Emogene

Mercer, '24, is taking part in the annual junior play, The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary. Helena Karns and Helen McDonald have been elected to the women's athletic association, and Catherine Fowler, '24, has been chosen one of the two delegates to the W. A. A. Conference at Stanford. Several of the girls took part in the inter-class baseball tournament and Catherine Fowler made the all-university honor team.

Arizona A is enthusiastically anticipating convention and nearly all of the girls are planning to be there.

The great day of the university year is April 14. On Mackay Day, celebrated annually in honor of Clarence Mackay, who gave the athletic field to the university, the student body, alumni, and faculty meet for the purpose of nominating student body officers for the ensuing year.

Other future events are the celebration of Founders' Day by a Founders' Day banquet, and the annual waffle breakfast given for the benefit of the Settlement School.

EXCHANGES AND COLLEGE NOTES

Delta Delta Delta announces the establishment of Delta Rho chapter at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky., on March 16.

THE PANHELLENIC CREED

We, the Fraternity undergraduate members, stand for good scholarship, for the guardian of good health, for the wholehearted coöperation with our college ideals for student life, for the maintenance of fine social standards, and for the serving, to the best of our ability, of our college community. Good college citizenship as a preparation for good citizenship in the larger world of alumnae days, is the ideal that shall guide our chapter activities.

We, the Fraternity Alumnae members, stand for an active, sympathetic interest in the life of our undergraduate sisters, for loyal support of the ideals of our Alma Mater, for the encouragement of high scholarship, for the maintenance of healthful physical conditions in chapter house and dormitory and for using our influence to further the best standards for the education of the young women of America. Loyal service to chapter, college, and community is the ideal that shall guide our fraternity activities.

We, the Fraternity officers, stand for loyal and earnest work for the realization of these fraternity standards. Coöperation for the maintenance of fraternity life in harmony with its best possibilities is the ideal that shall guide our fraternity activities.

We, the Fraternity women of America, stand for preparation for service through the character building inspired in the close contact and deep friendship of fraternity life. To us fraternity life is not the enjoyment of special privileges, but an opportunity to prepare for wide and wise human service.

CONVENTION IMPRESSIONS IN KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Impressions of convention are expressed by two delegates, living in the same city, one from a college chapter, the other an alumna:

The alumna's remarks are quoted. "I shall never again say Theta type, there is no such thing. Of that I am convinced. Among the five hundred present at that convention was present every imaginable type from the most admirable to the least, baby vamps included. One of the convention jokes was that the Southern delegation couldn't understand the Canadian and they were finally driven to conversing in French. This, of course, is exaggerated but it serves to show how digressive and divergent our chapters are."

The college delegate's outstanding impression was the importance and number of alumnae, managing, officiating and planning. Alumnae are now an active perpetuating and directing force to this delegate, persons to be held in considerable esteem.—Sigma Kappa Triangle.

The Sigma Phi Epsilon Journal says:

There is rarely much value in the membership of the man who drops out of school the year after his initiation and thereafter never returns. Occasionally, it is true, there is an exception to this statement—and chapters desiring a one-year man are prone to believe that man to be an exception.

To make a good, loyal, willing-to-sacrifice, year-in-and-year-out member of the fraternity there is needed four full years of fraternity experience. In four years habits and traditions take root. There is inculcated a love for the institution that, if it be genuine, will continue to grow for a life time.

In a recent number of the Chi Phi Chackett we find that:

For the first time in the history of the annual congress of the Chi Phi fraternity, the members sat comfortably in a banquet room and listened to an address made by a brother who was more than 500 miles away. This was the novel experience of the recent Congress at Columbus, when the members listened to a regular address, listed among the others on the banquet program, which address was delivered into a radio instrument in Washington, D. C., by the Honorable Hiram W. Johnson, California, '88.

Follow this example if you wish to keep in touch with your alumnæ:

Beta Zeta has a postal shower every week for one of last year's graduates.
Aglaia of Phi Mu.

The editor of the Kappa Alpha Journal gives the following explanation concerning his fraternity:

Kappa Alpha is not a national fraternity, strictly speaking, never has been, and does not wish to be. It very much prefers to remain a regional fraternity, maintaining itself on Southern soil, its birthplace and its true home. We are not national; we are Southern.

FRATERNITY

A Fraternity is an obligation,
A necessity, an introduction,
A recommendation, a passport,
A lesson, an influence,
An opportunity, an investment,

MASONIC CLUBHOUSE

The University of California is to have a $100,000 Masonic clubhouse. The plans call for a Masonic library, clubrooms, pool tables, committee rooms, dance salon, and banquet hall. The building will be erected adjoining the campus. It will be the rallying point for all students who are Masons or who are masonically inclined.—Grcek Exchange.—The Tomahawk.

The Alpha Gamma Delta Quarterly prints the following from The Crescent of Gamma Phi Beta:

There are at present 592 active chapters of Congress fraternities, situated in 112 colleges, which are located in all but four of the states of the Union. About 17,000 girls belong to these chapters.

Out of the 592 chapters belonging to the eighteen national fraternities, 323 live in houses. Of these houses 137 are owned, and 186 are rented. Of those owned, forty-seven were built by the fraternity, the others were bought and remodeled. The smallest percentage of chapters of one fraternity living in houses is thirty-seven, the largest is ninety-two, the average is fifty-eight. Most fraternities have funds which are used to help finance new houses. An alumnae corporation usually buys or builds the house, which is then rented from them by the active chapter. These houses cost from $10,000 to $30,000, rarely more.

This international federation now embraces the following countries: The United States of America, Great Britain, Canada, France, Spain, Holland, India, Norway, Sweden, Australia, New Zealand, Austria, Belgium, Tzechoslovakia, Denmark, Finland, and Italy. In the Kappa Alpha Theta, Ethel Toevs writes:

"Hello Walk" at the State College of Washington is the place on the campus where every student "greet a body" when he passes him. It is the broad walk about one block long from Bryan hall (library and Auditorium building) to the Administration building, and it is much used. At each end is a small gray signboard lettered in crimson (college colors) which designates it as being officially selected by the associated students of the college as a place where democracy and good-fellowship are to be manifested by a cheerful "hello" to all we meet.

TEA ROOM MANAGEMENT

Helen M. Woods, after a long experience as Employment Manager in New York hotels, has opened the Tea Room Training Organization at 33 West 42nd St., New York City. Intensive courses in tea room, cafeteria, and coffee shop management are given in day and evening classes, or by correspondence. She aims to help the woman who has the fundamentals of cooking at her finger's end, but lacks business training, since she believes that it is one of the best fields open to-day both for the woman without training in commercial life as well as for the one who has had business experience.—The News-Bulletin.

THE HONORARY

The vote was black; around the shrouded hall
 A smile of smug approval might be seen;
 The boy was good enough, but very green,
 Alert no doubt, but not "our kind" at all.
 Within his room across the campus yard,
 A Georgics unregarded in his lap,
 The lad was sitting, dreaming what might hap,
 And planning mighty things, and hoping hard.
 Then fleet, forgetful years! And he meanwhile
 Had made his mark alone; and now there came Boys asking that they might enroll his name
 Fraternally. They did not read his smile.
 It was the same old story, now as then,—
 The chapter out to honor self, again.

—From The Signet of Phi Sigma Kappa.

Ohio Wesleyan University has removed the ban against sororities which has been effective since the year 1884. Prior to that year K K I and K A \Theta had chapters there for a very brief period. Several local societies are preparing to petition for national existence. The men's fraternities are: B \Theta II , ΣX , $\Theta \text{K } \Psi$, $\Delta \text{T } \Delta$, $\Phi \Gamma \Delta$, $\text{X } \Phi$, $\text{A T } \Omega$, $\Sigma \text{A E}$, $\text{A } \Sigma \Phi$ and $\Sigma \Phi \text{E}$. $\text{B } \Theta \text{II}$ was the first to be established in 1853 and $\Sigma \Phi \text{E}$ the latest to enter the lists in 1915.—Delta of Sigma Nu.

WHEN ARE WE EDUCATED?

Not to assume that high scholarship though essential, is all that characterizes a successful college career, let us reflect upon Margaret Calder Leib's discussion of Education in the Alpha Gamma Delta Quarterly:

"We proudly go about proclaiming the fact that we as college graduates are educated. But—do we ever stop to consider that no amount of "cramming" of books, names, dates and theories can make us educated? Education as the word signifies—a leading out—is a development of ourselves, gradual and with ease. In other words it is the production of the ego of each of us, our personality.

"To be truly educated we should have culture with a C which denotes refinement, poise and elevation of mind."—Aglaia of Phi Mu.

The Trident of Delta Delta Delta is now under new management. The Executive Offices of that organization have been enlarged to include Trident offices and for the present the managing editorship will rest with the Director of Panhellenics, Mrs. E. N. Parmelee.

ALUMNI MEMORIES

As the years go on, I am sure our alumni will come to realize more and more that their fraternity was not the plaything of a boyish hour, but rather is a vehicle freighted with rich memories of the past and with infinite possibilities for the present of human service.—William C. Levere.

LEST WE FORGET

In a letter from my mother, she said, "I'm glad you have time for so many studies and for so much entertainment, but I wonder if you give as much time to God as to the other things." That was all she said, but it was enough to cause me much meditation. So I made a New Year's resolution to attend church every Sunday, no matter how many of my friends go to see Thomas Meighan or Constance Talmadge. There has been only one Sunday so far this year and I have kept my resolve, for which I am glad. For now I can impart to you something that was brought to my mind by the most excellent minister. In quoting he said something to the effect that, after all the glitter of wealth is gone, after all the glory of fame has faded away, there is but one thing that remains. It is character!—Chapter letter, Lyre of Alpha Chi Omega.

THE FELLOWS WHO MIGHT HAVE BEEN TAUS

The Texas Contributor

When the banquet was over and drunk were the toasts,
 A stranger arose from his place;
 Though none of the group had seen him come in,
 Each seemed to remember his face.
 "My friends," said the stranger, "please don't be afraid
 When I say I'm a ghost—because I am the ghost, the composite shade
 Of the Fellows who Might Have Been Taus.

"You all know me well; I've been with you in class
 And rooted beside you at games;
 On the campus I see you each day as you pass;
 We all rush the very same dames.
 Yet you boys were bid, and I was left out—
 Though I longed for a bid, too, because
 I thought you were best, and I wanted to wear
 The cross of the true Alpha Taus.

"You can't ask us all; but I want you to think
 Of the fellows who have to be left;
 Our eyes are all on you, when one of you fails,
 It hurts us; we, too, are bereft;

For in failing your bunch, you have failed us as well!

Boys, uphold your fraternity's laws;

You owe it to us, as well as yourselves:

The Fellows who Might Have Been Taus."

—The Palm of Alpha Tau Omega.

Five hundred college and university men were applicants for the thirty-two Rhodes scholarships. This was the largest number ever competing.—The Delta Kappa Epsilon Quarterly.

According to Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, the only American universities which are purely national in the sense of having a stronghold outside of their own sections are Yale, Cornell, Harvard, Michigan, Chicago and Columbia.—The Delta Kappa Epsilon Quarterly.

A. R. Warnock, B © II, Dean of Men at Pennsylvania State, emphasizes the following points in writing of the most desirable type of fraternity freshman.

First of all, scholarship. Second, character. Third, ability, reliability and possibility. It is useless to try to make a chisel out of a lettuce leaf or a salad out of fine steel. It is also useless to try to make a fireman out of a man who can't hear an alarm clock when he is asleep. And it is not altogether useless, but it is rather wasteful, to try to develop even a talented man beyond his possibilities.

Of these three qualities, reliability is as important as any. Its possession will give a man a distinct advantage over his fellow students. For reliability, to paraphrase Roy Cohen a bit, is what most college students have everything else but. To take a job, to do it up brown with brains, energy, and enthusiasm, and to get it done on time is for some reason or other well nigh impossible for the majority of college students. . . . A new chapter or a new fraternity will in my opinion get its prestige sooner if it emphasizes training average freshmen rather than picking stars.—Laurel of Phi Kappa Tau.

CLOSING THE ACADEMIC DOORS

Those persons who were struck almost with consternation by the opening address of Dr. Ernest Hopkins, President of Dartmouth, suggesting that too many of our youth were entering college, may rest more easily on hearing the strongly contrasting words of Dr. Josiah Penniman, Acting Provost of the University of Pennsylvania: "To shut the door in the face of the eager, aspiring, earnest youth who has set his heart on coming to college and who is of good character and who has qualified academically, by telling him that we are very sorry that we have no room for him, is a serious thing." Dr. Penniman's words very well express what has been for a long time the attitude of Columbia, that a university is an institution which "exists to preserve, to disseminate, and to increase human knowledge." And that, rather than by restricting the number of its students, a university may best fulfill its function by adding to its teaching staff and its equipment and accommodations.—Bulletin of Columbia Institute of Arts.
