THE REARING OF Pi Beta Phi

Pi Beta Phi Alumnae: Cultivating Our Future

Message from...

Philanthropy, broadly defined, means love of humanity. It serves a dual purpose: to alleviate suffering and to improve the quality of life. Philanthropy encompasses many pursuits, such as community service, voluntary giving, fund raising, grant making and other forms of stewardship. It has long been a hallmark of North American culture.

In the 1830s after a trip to the United States, French statesman and philosopher Alexis de Tocqueville wrote:

"These Americans are the most peculiar people in the world. You'll not believe me when I tell you how they behave. In a local community in their country a citizen may conceive of some need which is not being met. What does he do? He goes across the street and discusses it with his neighbor. Then what happens? A committee comes into existence and the committee begins functioning in behalf of the need."

With such altruism already prevalent, it is small wonder that our twelve Founders, thirty-some years later, included as an objective in the Preamble of I.C. Sorosis "... and promote the happiness of humanity." Those simple words are as relevant today as they were one hundred and twenty-seven years ago. Now, in 1994, members of Pi Beta Phi honor and encourage that objective by volunteering time and money in service to benefit both society and the Fraternity.

On almost every campus where there is a chapter of Pi Beta Phi, members devote time and energy to support the chapter's local philanthropies as well as those of other Greek groups. For example, at Lafayette College, Pi Phi co-sponsors with Kappa Delta Rho a dance marathon to benefit the Children's Home and the Spring Garden School. Not long ago, the chapter was notified that the Home was honoring the groups by naming parts of its building the Pi Beta Phi and Kappa Delta Rho Wing. Simpson College Pi Phis have an "adopt-a-grandparent" program and visit and interact with lonely older people. These are but two of the varied activities by which chapter members "promote the happiness of humanity."

Alumnae also contribute in a variety of ways to the betterment of their communities. With profits from the Sign of the Arrow Shop, the St. Louis Club has contributed many thousands of dollars to area social agencies. The Dallas Club is purchasing and renovating a structure to become the Pi Beta Phi Art and Literacy House of St. Philip's School and Community Center. The Nashville Club's Christmas Village has raised over $1 million since 1961 for the Bill Wilkerson Hearing and Speech Center. Both the Houston and Southern Fairfield County Clubs have established and are maintaining libraries in local children's hospitals. Other clubs and individual alumna participate in equally impressive projects.

In addition to their community service, Pi Phis also contribute financial support to the Pi Beta Phi Foundation and Fraternity philanthropies, which, in turn, benefit the membership and society as a whole.

Since its incorporation on February 21, 1990, the Pi Beta Phi Foundation has achieved prominence among Greek philanthropic foundations. Much of this early success is the result of the bequest from Grand President Emeritus Marianne Reid Wild. During the past year, the Foundation made substantial grants to the Fraternity to fund the "Links to Literacy Programming Guide," the revision of the "Friend to Friend Alcohol and Other Drugs Awareness Program" and a video entitled "Sex, Alcohol and Self-Esteem"; sponsored convention and leadership workshop speakers; awarded scholarships and fellowships of greater dollar value than ever before; assisted with the Campaign for Arrowmont; conducted informational events in various cities; and participated in fund raising.

The Fraternity's major philanthropy, Arrowmont School of Arts and Crafts, is fulfilling its mission of "enriching lives through art." Annually, the School enrolls in a variety of courses nearly 2,000 students of all ages and levels of ability. At the present time, the School is in the final phase of a capital campaign to raise $2.3 million. Response to the campaign, under the direction of former Grand President Jean Wirths Scott, has been positive, and the results are exciting. A new dormitory is completed. New painting, drawing and wood studios will be constructed. The Children's and the Artist-in-Residence Programs and the Gallery have received funding. The School, the Foundation and the Fraternity are deeply grateful to those who have already responded to the Campaign's requests. There are still giving opportunities available and a challenge grant of $352,500 to be met.

Arrow in the Arctic, under the Canadian Philanthropies Committee, makes yearly gifts to the Yellowknife Library in the Northwest Territories and the White Horse Library in the Yukon for the purchase of otherwise-unaffordable "extras." The Committee periodically awards a Canadian Arrowmont Awareness Scholarship.

Holt House, a memorial to Pi Phi's founding, is rich in fraternity heritage. Open to visitors weekday afternoons and other times by appointment, the House is used by surrounding chapters for pledging and initiation and by local alumnae and the community for meetings, wedding receptions and other small gatherings.

Links to Literacy, started in 1989 as a literacy service project, has experienced phenomenal growth. At the last count, 100 chapters, 77 clubs and uncounted individual members are volunteering to build a more literate society. It has been determined that over 100,000 children and adults benefit from the efforts of Links to Literacy volunteers.

Student loans are available to both graduate and undergraduate members of Pi Beta Phi at a favorable interest rate. Students needing financial assistance for their education are urged to investigate a Pi Phi loan.

The Fraternity is justifiably proud of the many contributions its members are making in their communities and to Pi Phi philanthropies. Please remember that Fraternity philanthropies depend upon the generosity of the membership, because only Pi Phis contribute to Pi Phi philanthropies. Every gift is deeply appreciated, because each one is an investment in the difference these philanthropies are making and in the results they are achieving.

Philanthropy enriches an individual's life beyond measure. As Albert Schweitzer said:

"...the only ones among you who will be really happy are those who will have sought and found how to serve."

Pi Beta Phi Alumnae

CULTIVATING

our Future

The roots of Pi Beta Phi's alumnae department began to grow in the late 1800s, when delegates to the 1893 Convention approved the organization of the National Alumnae Association, the first organization of its kind to be formed by any national women's Greek letter fraternity.

rom its inception, it was apparent that the alumnae department could not merely mimic the collegiate experience on a campus. Former Grand President Emma Harper Turner, leader of the alumnae movement, saw a great future for an alumnae department through the formation of alumnae "clubs." Miss Turner felt that an alumnae "chapter" was not suited to the needs of the older woman.

Indeed, Emma Harper Turner was correct. Over the years Pi Beta Phi adapted its alumnae programming and activities to meet the needs of its members, as well as to accommodate the trends of the times. A good example of this flexibility took place in the war stricken 1940s. The Century of Friendship in Pi Beta Phi gives this account of those years. "With all Americans mobilized for war the alumnae contributed enthusiastically to our country's wartime needs. Clubs and individual Pi Phis bought and sold war stamps and bonds, knitted thousands of afghan squares, mufflers, and helmets, and served in army hospitals and U.S.O. posts. In fact, there was no phase of war activity wherein the name of Pi Beta Phi could not be found."

As we rapidly approach the 21st century, members may ask if Pi Beta Phi is prepared to meet the needs of today's women. Where does the Fraternity fit in with the likes of "Baby Boomers" and "Baby Busters"? How does it identify with the twenty-somethings of "Generation X" and women in the "Sandwich Generation" caring for children and parents in tandem?

Can Pi Beta Phi be relevant to women in the corporate world where 60 hour work weeks are fast becoming a norm; among day care centers, civic centers and retirement centers; between careers and carpools?

The answer is a resounding yes! Pi Beta Phi is adapting to the changes in our society. This is a two-step commitment- first on behalf of the international Fraternity to adjust; and second on the part of the member to participate. The Fraternity will continue to cultivate its relationship with alumnae, as members take advantage of the world of opportunities before them. In 1990, a Task Force on Alumnae Programming was formed to study alumnae membership and evaluate existing programs and future trends in order to recommend methods to enhance, encourage and strengthen alumnae participation. The following areas were identified as the goals of the alumnae department:

Communication Service to collegiate chapters Service to community Networking Help for members in need Interest in the fraternity Membership records Financial support

From the Task Force came many recommendations on how to better educate and inform our members of the opportunities awaiting them.

Alumnae Recruitment and Retention Guide

To foster growth, suggestions for reaching out and touching a group of women whose profile includes recent graduates and Golden Arrows; full-time career women and professional volunteers; international residents and small town retirees were included in a new Alumnae Recruitment and Retention Guide. The guide was introduced at the Alumnae Regional Leadership Retreats this spring and contains ideas and examples of how to recruit and retain members. From outlining recruitment goals, to describing available resources, to the "how tos" of recruitment and retention, the guide expands upon many of the same principles and membership recruitment skills learned as a collegian and used daily in social situations. This new communication tool will be a key in bringing new members to alumnae clubs and keeping current members involved and interested in the Fraternity.

Alumnae Regional Leadership Retreats

Providing additional leadership training for alumnae in non-convention years was one of the recommendations of the Task Force. In the spring of 1992, a pilot program of two Alumnae Regional Leadership Retreats was instituted. This spring, the effort was launched around the country. Between mid-February and mid-April ten Alumnae Regional Leadership Retreats were held, in which two to four alumnae provinces were grouped together. "Focused on T.E.A.M. (Together Everyone Achieves More) Spirit," agendas were specific to the needs and desires of provinces involved. The retreats afforded alumnae an opportunity to discuss concerns and suggestions with a Grand Council member, alumnae director, province officers and alumnae club representatives from surrounding provinces. Open interaction and exchange of ideas was a priority, allowing plenty of time for sharing.

Expansion of Directions Program

Since 1985, hundreds of Pi Phis have received job networking assistance through Pi Beta Phi's Directions Program. The Alumnae Task Force proposed that the program be expanded to allow greater participation, be more comprehensive and include mentoring. Through Directions, Pi Phis who are making job changes, location changes, looking for their first position or are reentering the job market are given the opportunity to communicate with other Pi Phis in the same field. In addition, Pi Phis who are new to a city or simply want information for a given locale can connect with other Pi Phis to find out more about their community, various neighborhoods and school districts, as well as make contacts for medical needs, real estate, community service projects and more. The new focus of the program widens the communication channels between members, while providing a valuable service.

Pi Phi Forever... Count On It! Video

Planting the seed of alumnae involvement needs to begin early. Today's graduating seniors are offered a picture of alumnae life through the videotape, "Pi Phi Forever...Count On It!" In this presentation, a diverse group of women with different vocations, backgrounds and ages presents a panoramic view of alumnae life. Proposed by the Alumnae Task Force, funding for the video was approved because Grand Council concurred that nothing was more important to the future of the Fraternity than increasing the involvement of new graduates. Videos and written support materials are presented each spring to encourage a life-long involvement with Pi Phi.

Currently the Fraternity recognizes 337 clubs, 11 junior and evening groups, 38 pockets and four Carnation Circles. For the twelfth year, Pi Beta Phi honored 75-year members, bringing the number of those recognized to 388. The total number of the Order of the Golden Arrow 50-year members climbed to 13,462. There are several international alumnae extension contacts, and Pi Beta Phi is participating in a Panhellenic effort to establish Alumnae Panhellenics on military bases abroad.

Alumnae Regional Leadership Retreats, the new Alumnae Recruitment and Retention Guide, "Pi Phi Forever...Count On It!" video are all valuable tools which communicate the benefits of lifetime commitment to Pi Beta Phi. Once the decision to be involved in Fraternity activities has been made, choices are plentiful.

Club Involvement

When the alumnae department first began 101 years ago, Emma Harper Turner wrote an article entitled, "Why Should Alumnae Remain Active in the Fraternity?" In it she commented, "Wherever a sufficient number reside let them organize an Alumnae Association that they may keep better informed of the fraternity's condition, put themselves into intimate contact with the organization and in every way spread its reputation and influence."

Today there are junior and evening groups as well as special interest groups within existing alumnae clubs. In areas or communities where there is an absence of a chartered alumnae club and where there are three but not more than thirty resident alumnae, Pi Phi pockets may be formed. In 1989 carnation circles were established for Pi Phis who have expressed a desire and willingness to meet together in retirement areas.

Chapter Involvement

Each year hundreds of Pi Phi alumnae volunteer to work with our collegiate chapters as members of an Alumnae Advisory Committee or House Corporation Board. These women serve as advisors, wearing any number of hats which might include counselor, problem solver, evaluator, listener, teacher, role model and friend. They offer the benefit of their college and Pi Phi experience to a new generation of undergraduates. Serving the Fraternity in this way is an extraordinary opportunity to work along with the bright, young women of today. At the same time, alumnae experience the joy of returning what others have given to them.

If an alumna does not live in close proximity to a collegiate chapter or does not have the time to contribute to an AAC or HC, there are other ways to assist collegians. Providing information on potential members is one way to assist chapters, thus playing a vital and active role in the continual growth of the Fraternity.

Community Involvement

Pi Beta Phi is a vehicle for women to serve others. Within alumnae circles, members of Pi Beta Phi are impacting their communities. Clubs sponsor an array of philanthropic events each year from telethons to walk-a-thons, book drives to clothing drives and blood drives. From the tens of thousands of dollars raised for large charitable organizations to the holiday gifts collected for a local needy family, Pi Beta Phi continues to offer a means for women to get involved in their community. Clubs have embraced Pi Beta Phi's international service project, "Links to Literacy," by donating time, supplies and facilities needed for literacy efforts. Through altruistic work. Pi Phis, as individuals and as a whole, make a difference in the society in which they live.

Assistance in Time of Need

By supporting Pi Beta Phi, alumnae are investing in the future of the Fraternity and its members. In the coming academic year, 49 women will benefit from financial aid offered through scholarships, fellowships and loans.

Twelve women were recipients of gifts of love from the Emma Harper Turner Memorial Fund during 1993-94. Women who found themselves in extreme financial distress through the loss of a spouse, catastrophic illness of a child or other tragic circumstances were given assistance. Financial support is either in the form of a one-time gift, or monthly payments for a one-year period. It is the hope of the Emma Harper Turner Committee that the checks will be of some assistance and make life a bit easier.

Friendship

Reaping the greatest benefit of membership Pi Phi alumnae thrive on ties of friendship. Through the years, the opportunities available to members have evolved and changed, programs have come and gone, but the one constant has always been the friendship offered. The genuine love and concern for one another, the sense of belonging, mutual support and guidance will always be extended to each member of the Fraternity.

The Pi Beta Phi experience goes beyond college days. As a matter of fact, college is just the beginning, when the seed of this tremendous encounter is planted. Pi Beta Phi alumnae cultivate and nurture the ongoing relationship with the Fraternity and see the rewards blossum before them.

Cultivating Pi Beta Phi's Future Through Alumnae-At-Large

Annual alumnae dues ensure that Pi Beta Phi will continue to provide the friendship, leadership and scholarship it has for more than 127 years. Pi Beta Phi alumnae in a club area are given the opportunity to pay alumnae dues through their alumnae club. For alumnae who live in an area without an alumnae club, dues may be paid directly to Central Office through a new program called Alumnae-At-Large. Members will receive:

- * Fraternity Focus, alumnae newsletter

Eileen received the coveted Oscar, the motion picture industry's highest award, for her performance in "Butterflies Are Free" and the Golden Globe Award and an Oscar nomination for "The Bad Seed."

On the Broadway stage she was recognized for her performance in "Picnic" with a Tony nomination, the Theatre World Awards and the Outer Circle Award. Her work in "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs," earned a Tony nomination and the New York Drama Critics Award. She also received a Tony nomination and the Donaldson Award for "The Bad Seed."

Eileen Heckart Yankee

The Broadway production of "Butterflies Are Free" brought her a Tony nomination, the Aegis Award and the March of Dimes Award.

Eileen received television's top honor, the Emmy, for "Save Me a Place at Forest Lawn" and two Emmy nominations for her role as "Aunt Flo" on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

She has honorary doctorates from The Ohio State University, Niagara University and Sacred Heart University. Other honors include: the Ohio Governors Award, the Ohio State Centennial Award and the Sylvania Television Award.

The Arrow of Pi Beta Phi

Jane Grimmer Baker

Indiana Delta Purdue University San Mateo, California Community: Civic Leader

Jane served the city of San Mateo, California as a member of the Council beginning in April 1973. She was the second woman in the city's history to run for the Council, and was the first woman elected mayor. She served five terms on the City Council (20 years) and was mayor of the city six times. Upon her retirement from City Council, she was honored by the establishment of an American Association of University Women's (AAUW) Educational Foundation International Scholarship endowment of $100,000 in her name and that of another woman retiring from the Council at the same time.

She is currently representing the cities of San Mateo County on Metropolitan Transportation Commission and State Job Training Coordinating Council. Her position as Chairman of the MTC has Jane working with representatives from the nine counties comprising the San Francisco Bay area as the Commission plans the coordination of all rail and bus transportation throughout the area. In addition to chairing the Commission as a whole, she also chairs the SFO Airport Extension subcommittee. On the State Job Training Coordinating Council, Jane chairs the Marketing Work Committee.

In addition, Jane is a foundation member and former director of California Elected Women for Research and Education, past president of San Mateo Branch of AAUW, and director of the Advisory Council of the National League of Cities.

Jane attributes her interest in community service and much of her ability to work with a variety of people to her years as a Pi Phi collegian at Purdue. Her fellow Indiana Delta members encouraged her to enter a debate contest which she won. This gave her the confidence to speak on future occasions when she was convinced of the value of an issue or viewpoint. She has continued to speak out with the courage of her convictions, offering practical solutions to community concerns or problems.

Ruth Henderson Walsh McIntyre

South Carolina Alpha University of South Carolina Profession: Broadcast Journalist

In her 35 years as a television broadcaster, Ruth McIntyre has achieved milestones. Not only has she won almost every award in her field, but she was one of the first women to do on-air work in a male dominated profession. Ruth paved the way for women broadcasters when she anchored the first Columbia, South Carolina announcement on President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

She has interviewed five Presidents of the United States, earned eight Emmys in documentary work as well as news reporting, interviewed three heads of state, and covered two national political conventions. Ruth's list of broadcasting awards is extensive, including an Excellence of Media Award, more than 20 Sigma Delta Chi honors, several Golden Mike Awards, the Washington State Women's Press Award and the State Spokesman Award. She also was selected as one of "100 Newsmakers of the Year" in Time Magazine's feature on Seattle.

A South Carolina Alpha, Ruth received her B.A. from the University of South Carolina. During her spare time, Ruth is working on her master's degree in international communications and her second undergraduate degree in German. She is also earning credentials for teaching "English as a second language" and "English as a foreign language" in third world countries.

Ruth shares her time with countless charities. For the past 12 years, Ruth served in various positions for the Washington State Bar Association, a position appointed by the Washington State Supreme Court. For 25 years she has raised funds for Muscular Dystrophy, United Cerebral Palsy and the Variety Club. During her career, she has hosted 15 telethons for these organizations. She dedicates her time to more than 13 boards and memberships, one of which is the National Task Force on Prison Reform– a Presidential appointment.

Ruth Collins Sharp Altshuler

Texas Beta Southern Methodist University Community: Civic Leader

Ruth Altshuler's string of "firsts" reveal her pioneering spirit at a time when women's roles were still evolving. Ruth is the first woman ever elected to the board of the Salvation Army. From 1983-1987 she was Chairman of the Dallas Advisory Board. She is currently vice chairman of the National Advisory Board. A board member of the United Way of America, she was the first woman Campaign Chairman for the United Way in 1986. The first woman ever elected to the Board of Goodwill Industries, Ruth is also the first woman elected to the board of Dallas Citizens Council.

A Texas Beta, Ruth is a graduate of Southern Methodist University. Among her numerous awards, Ruth was given the Distinguished Alumna Award by her alma mater and was recognized as Outstanding Trustee in the Nation by the Association of Governing Boards of Colleges and Universities for her service to the Board of Trustees of Southern Methodist University.

In July of 1991, she was honored by the Texas State House of Representatives for her volunteer work throughout the state. In 1993 she received the Public Citizen of the Year Award by the Dallas unit of the National Association of Social Workers and the Susan G. Komen Award for Private Philanthropy. An outstanding member of her community, Ruth is the 1982 recipient of the Linz Award for Dallas' most outstanding citizen. The Dallas Women's Chapter of Dallas Business and Professional Women's Club named her Humanitarian of the Year in 1985, and in 1987 she was elected to Texas Women's Hall of Fame.

For all her nationally recognized leadership accomplishments, Ruth has a warm, approachable manner and generously shares her time, wisdom and other skills and resources with a variety of groups. She is asked to travel to all parts of the country to deliver her inspiring and motivational message on the importance of volunteering and community service.

The Illinois Fox River Valley Alumnae Club celebrated fifty years of friendship in Pi Beta Phi. This year, all of their scheduled meetings and events have revolved around their anniversary theme. In the fall, an anniversary celebration was held in honor of their fiftieth year as an alumnae club. The evening reunited Pi Phis who had joined the club shortly after its founding in 1943.

The Houston Alumnae Club was very pleased to host Susan Garrett Baker, wife of former Secretary of State James Baker, at their February meeting. Addressing a record number of Pi Phis, this Texas Alpha delighted her audience with personal and poignant reflections and observations of world politics during the Reagan and Bush administrations.

Chocolate, valentines, balloons, a program about the importance of angels and a serenade of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," all helped make the February 14 Golden Arrows' Valentine Luncheon a very special event for Tulsa Alumnae Club members. Except for event chairman Benita Elliott Adams and three other hostesses, the luncheon was a Golden Arrows only affair. The luncheon was held at The Garden, a Tulsa tea room.

The Orlando-Winter Park Alumnae Club added a few of their own ideas to the Founders' Day program developed by Georgene Iles Robb of the Cedar Rapids Alumnae Club. Their table decorations were pictures of the Founders joined in a circle and surrounding a candle. Twelve undergraduates acted as Founders and dressed in appropriate attire with an alum acting as the presentday Pi Phi. Each of the twelve actives wore her Founders' name badge. After the program, Founders sat in reserved seats at separate tables and could talk about themselves to table mates. The philanthropy program was part of the club's May meeting and small gifts were given to alumnae who answered questions about the Founders.

Each year, the Cleveland East Alumnae Club adopts a family during the holiday season. Kim Svette Earley, chairman of this project, worked with Health Hill Hospital, selecting a family from the hospital's "Family Cheer" program. This year's family was comprised of a woman struggling to care not only for her own daughter, but also her eight nieces and nephews. The alumnae club raised more than $1,200, which was used to purchase food (for Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter dinner), toys and books, clothing and a Christmas tree with all the trimmings. Donations also included bikes for all the children, a dryer and a microwave oven.

Missouri Beta Madeline Payne Longstreet is the subject of a ten-page article featuring her silkscreen botanical fern series in subscribers' copies of the May issue of Better Homes and Gardens. Readers may order the fern botanicals through the magazine. Madeline uses her suburban St. Louis home as a studio. Madeline also held a private showing of a new wildflower series in her home in April.

Twenty-four Texas A&M graduate teaching assistants were honored by the university for their outstanding classroom skills. New Mexico Beta Rebecca Pollard, who is working on her Ph.D. in educational psychology, was one of the recipients who received $500 through the McDonald's Awards program. Rebecca is a member of the Brazos Valley, Texas Alumnae Club serving as president from 1991-93.

The Manchester, Connecticut Area Alumnae Club President Laurie Dailey compiled a brilliantly colored 14-page yearbook full of Pi Phi historical updates, schedules, and other information. Membership and attendance increased significantly due to her public relations approach to the mailing. With the theme for the year, Alice in Pi Beta Phi Wonderland, the club held several theme activities such as Alice in Arrowmont, raising $440 for the Founders' Floor, and Christmas in Wonderland at a member's historic home artfully decorated in a Victorian angel theme with a cookie swap. At year's end, University of Connecticut seniors were welcomed into the club and presented with recognition pins and a rousing program of "What Alumnae Club Means to Me!"

The Kansas City, Missouri/Shawnee Mission, Kansas Alumnae Club has been sponsoring theater tours for more than 30 years. This past May, the club sponsored a London Theater Tour. The trip included three nights in the village of St. Ives (Cornwall) and five nights in London at the Grosvenor House Hotel on Park Lane, as well as the best of London theater. Trips are open to all, not just Former Grand President and proud grandmother Sarahjane Paulson Vanasse participated in the initiation of her granddaughter Melissa Anne Vaux (third from left). Other family members in attendance included Alumnae Province President Joy Vanasse Goodenough, Sara Goodenough Vadset, and Melissa's mother Julianne Vanasse Vaux. All five women are initiates of Washington Beta.

Pi Phis. This October, the club is sponsoring a New York Theater Tour. The package includes four nights at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, tickets for four Broadway shows, and an optional three day extension. The proceeds benefit Arrowmont as well as local philanthropies. For more information, contact tour chairman Ann Angle Booth Wilson, 9216 Pawnee Lane, Leawood, KS 66206.

Elizabeth Lang-Miers, Missouri Alpha, was elected chair of the Dallas Bar Association Board of Directors for 1994. A member of the board since 1987 and former secretary-treasurer. Elizabeth most recently chaired the ad hoc "Meet Your Judges" Committee as a new program in 1993. She also served as chair of the Lawyer Referral Service and Media Relations Committees. Elizabeth chaired the Lawyers as Parents Committee for the Dallas Association of Young Lawyers and Texas Young Lawyers Association. She is a fellow of the Dallas Bar and Texas Bar Foundations and member of the Dallas Women Lawyers Association. She belongs to the Missouri Bar Association, and the American Bar Association's Section of Labor and Employment Law/Employee Rights and Responsibilities Committee. A member of Leadership Dallas and Leadership Texas, Elizabeth chaired the Advisory Board of the Women's Resource Center last year and served on the board of the Metropolitan YWCA, chairing the Family of the Year Luncheon. She has also been active on the board of Way Back House and in the Dallas County and Texas Medical Society Auxiliaries; she has chaired the physicians' malpractice and litigation support committee.

Last December, at the age of 88, Nebraska Beta Mary Hall Robinson became the oldest student ever to earn an undergraduate degree at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Mary attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1923. She left college after her junior year, leaving her 25 hours short of graduating. After reading an article last year about an older man who finished his degree, Mary decided to finish her degree also. She has done a variety of volunteer work, including three years at the Nebraska State Historical Society and at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Lincoln. Some of her volunteer work, as well as an extensive genealogy project, is being allowed as credit toward her bachelor of arts degree. Mary is a longtime member of the Lincoln, Nebraska Alumnae Club.

After being elected to her second term as a member of the Girl Scout National Board, West Virginia Alpha Sally Porter Roberts was featured in the News Register, a Wheeling, West Virginia newspaper. The national board of the Girl Scouts consists of 50 members elected at-large. The board is selected to represent the broadest possible array of cultural, geographic and racial diversity, ensuring that all females are seen, heard, involved and supported at every level of scouting.

The Tulsa, Oklahoma Alumnae Club held their third annual Hot Tamale Hoe-Down fund-raiser in February. The evening included a southwest-style dinner and music. A silent auction, consisting of a wide variety of items, and a live auction that included a trip to San Antonio courtesy of Southwest Airlines were held. Approximately 80 percent of the profits raised from the Hot Tamale Hoe-Down were contributed to The Little Light House. Tulsa Pi Phis have given generously to The Little Light House for nearly 20 years. The Little Light House, a development center for handicapped children, was co-founded in 1972 by Pi Beta Phi alumna Marcia Mobley Mitchell. The balance of the profits earned were given to Pi Beta Phi philanthropies.

The San Mateo County, California Alumnae Club held their annual Cookie Shine in February. During the event, the club presented California Beta Kelly Werner with a scholarship. The scholarship is awarded by the club on the basis of need, service to the chapter, grades and community service.

Last summer, Louisiana Beta Lynn McCary Thomas participated in a marathon that took her to the top of Pikes Peak. Lynn participates in a group of women runners who call themselves Marathon Moms. The group has participated in such popular marathons as Boston and the Goodwill Games in Seattle. On behalf of Marathon Moms, Lynn took the Pike's Peak challenge. Called America's Ultimate Challenge, the 26.3 mile race started at 6,000 feet, climbed 13 miles to 14,110 feet and then back down the mountain. Adding to the difficulty of the race was the rugged terrain the runners had to navigate, with much of the race taking place on trails rather than roads.

Tennessee Beta Nancy Fawn Wilkerson Diehl and her husband Joe traveled to Papua New Guinea last August. Nancy, who has ventured around the globe, shares slides and lectures about her travels to various groups.

This heritage quilt was made by Iowa Beta Mary Pemble Barton and won first prize at the Iowa State Fair. Some of the fabrics used in the quilt are 100 years old. They were pieced together to tell the historic migration to Iowa. This quilt took Mary seven years to finish. Mary is a beautiful quilter and a well-known researcher of quilts. For two decades she has gained a national reputation for dating quilts and determining where the quilts were made. She recently donated 67 guilts of her collection, hundreds of fabric samples, laces and trims, quilt patterns, images of quilts, fashion pictures, household hints and old advertisements to the Des Moines, Iowa State Historical Museum. The museum recently designed an exhibit called "Patterns of Learning: from the Mary Barton Quilt Research Collection." Her generous donation of historic items, dated 1840-1950, will give quilters a unique opportunity to learn how to determine the approximate age of old quilts they own, and to learn about quilt history. Experts claim the exhibition will be the most complete and comprehensive source of information of historic quilts and textiles in the United States.

Last fall, Idaho Alpha Bonnie Burns Fisher was named the University of Idaho's Vandal Booster President, the first woman to be given this title in the university's athletic support organization. She had previously been honored by the university in 1990 as the National Vandal Booster of the year, again a first for a woman. Gender equity in sports is one of Bonnie's projects. She also sits on the Foundation Board of Directors for the University of Idaho.

Nashville Club's Philanthropic Efforts Continue

The Pi Beta Phi Rehabilitation Institute at the Bill Wilkerson Center in Nashville, Tennessee, marked five successful years of service in October. An open house celebrating the event was host to over 150 staff members, patients, former patients and members of the Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club. Started in January 1988 with major support from the Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club of Nashville, the Rehabilitation Institute provides an intensive, individualized treatment program for persons with brain injuries caused by accidents or strokes.

Services at the outpatient facility include physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech and language therapy, counseling and a wide range of "cognitive" therapies including attention, concentration, memory, categorization, judgement and problem solving skills. Therapists help patients learn strategies to help them return to work, school, or more independent home living.

Indiana Delta Lolitia Beaty Bache, Louisiana Alpha Cassie O'Neill McWilliam and Indiana Beta Lynn Deninno Doering were part of a team representing the United States in a long-distance running competition in Japan. Lolitia was team manager and Cassie and Lynn were part of the U.S. team selected to compete. Each of the six team members ran a portion of the 26.2 mile course in the 1993 International Chiba Ekiden (Ekiden is a Japanese word for marathon relay). The U.S. team finished fourth among the 16 countries competing.

Approximately 15 to 20 patients are enrolled in the Rehabilitation Institute at one time. The program has seen 159 patients in its five years of service and has sent 42 percent back to work, 28 percent back to school, and 27 percent home with increased living independence. Ninety-five percent of the clients who were discharged from the Institute intending to go back to work are still successfully on the job. A full 100 percent of the clients who went back to school after their discharge are either still in school or have graduated.

In 1961, Christmas Village was created by Nashville Pi Beta Phi alumnae as their major philanthropic effort. The Bill Wilkerson Hearing and Speech Center is the primary beneficiary of Christmas Village. Since inception, the Village has raised over $1 million to support the Center's efforts in improving the quality of life for the communicatively handicapped.

More than 250 merchants participate in Christmas Village. A variety of seasonal and gift items are offered, including Christmas ornaments and stockings, toys, wreaths, baskets, children and adult clothing, plants, jewelry, foods, ceramics and pottery and other artist crafts.

Kentucky Beta Dr. Mary Hume Neal, Michigan Beta Betty Eaton Thum and Michigan Beta Hazel Storz Eaton, three generations of Pi Phis, gathered at the christening of Katherine Neal last summer.

The Oklahoma Alpha class of 1962 held their first reunion at the Pi Phi house at the University of Oklahoma where all ten attendees celebrated their 50th birthdays.

Christmas Village is organized and operated solely through the volunteer effort of the Nashville Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club to benefit the Bill Wilkerson Hearing and Speech Center and other Pi Beta Phi philanthropies. Through the years more than $200,000 has been donated to Pi Beta Phi's nationally recognized Arrowmont School of Arts and Crafts in Gatlinburg.

Nancy Martin Tice, vice president and Judy Fingerle Simmons, president of the Nashville Alumnae Club with Santa.

The University of Utah Alumni Association bestowed its highest honor, the Distinguished Alumnus Award, this year to Utah Alpha Sally Rich Burbidge. Sally has been very involved with the Salt Lake City Alumnae Club and the Utah Alpha Chapter for many years.

Alberta Alpha Alice Payne served as the 1992-93 president of the Canadian Society of Petroleum Geologists. A senior geologist with Gulf Resources, Alice was the first woman to serve as president of the CSPG since its founding in 1928, reported Charlene Yarrow in the Summer 1993 issue of "New Trail," the University of Alberta's alumni magazine. In her position as president, Alice was responsible for overseeing publications, continuing education programs, field trips, awards, conferences and symposia that help geologists in the petroleum field achieve excellence. Last June, the CSPG hosted 6,000 visitors to the American Association of Petroleum Geologists' convention in Calgary. Alice is an active member of the Calgary Alumnae Club.

Alaskan Pi Phi Aids in Bird Rehabilitation

The Alaska Raptor Rehabilitation Center, located in Sitka, Alaska, was formed in 1980 by a group of dedicated, caring volunteers interested in returning injured birds to the wild. Although the center's beginnings were extremely modest, committed volunteers have helped the center grow. The ARRC is a private, non-profit organization specializing in the care of injured birds of prey, primarily the bald eagle. More than 150 volunteers of the ARRC give of their time and talents and are dedicated to bird preservation through treatment, education and research.

Montana Alpha Vicky Vosburg is the staff veterinarian for the ARRC. She graduated from Montana State University with a degree in biology and received her D.V.M. from Colorado State University. Vicky's responsibilities at the center include performing surgery, keeping records and planning the care for each bird. She also spends time giving tours and telling people about the medical side of the center. Educating the public is an important step toward saving birds and other wild animals. In her spare time, Vicky enjoys whale watching and cross country skiing.

Over the past thirteen years, the ARRC has helped hundreds of birds return to the skies over Alaska. Many more have been restored to health and placed in educational and captive breeding programs. These birds had sustained injuries so severe that restoring the physical excellence required for life in the wild was not possible. Although they are not free, these birds will perform valuable jobs such as raising young who will be released into areas where populations are dwindling. Some will also help their fellow feathered friends by educating people about themselves and the effects humans have on their lives.

There are now more than 50 bald eagles, the primary patient, treated each year at the center. The rate of rehabilitation is at 70 percent of their patients. In 1992 the ARRC successfully treated and released 15 bald eagles, a red tailed hawk, a sharp-shinned hawk, a northern goshawk, a great horned owl, two western screech owls and many non-raptor species. The ARRC also placed six non-releasable bald eagles at other wildlife facilities around the country in education and captive breeding programs.

The center hopes that the knowledge shared from working with the birds will awaken people to the significance of raptors in the environment and to the impact that civilization has upon them.

ARRC's three-part mission includes treatment of injured birds, education of the public concerning bird habitat and ecology, and the support of research pertaining to the ecology and medical treatment of birds.

Montana Alpha Vicky Vosburg holds Buddy a five-year old American bald eagle with a very unique injury. His life has been patterned after humans rather than eagles. All indications are that Buddy was illegally taken from his nest as a chick and raised by humans who probably did not realize that all young birds "imprint" on their care giver, permanently. His "parents" were people, so Buddy naturally came to think of himself as a person and did not learn to be an eagle. Buddy's home today is the Alaska Raptor Rehabilitation Center. In order to educate people about human activities that harm birds, the ARRC takes Buddy on the road for school visits and other events. Buddy is a very valuable tool in educational presentations and has already visited Georgia, California, Florida, Washington, Massachusetts, South Carolina, New York, Maryland, Illinois and, of course, Alaska.

ARROWMONT

Stoney Lamar is Challenge Consultant

Internationally known wood sculptor Stoney Lamar has been named as Challenge Consultant and is traveling the country to help Arrowmont raise $352,500 for its proposed wood studio.

The money is being raised to match a Windgate Foundation challenge grant which was awarded in late 1993 and must be matched by December 1994.

Stoney resides in Saluda, North Carolina and is familiar to many woodturners. It is his knowledge of the field, his professionalism, and his long association with Arrowmont that prompted Arrowmont Director Sandy Blain to invite him to act as consultant.

Stoney began his relationship with Arrowmont as a student in 1982, was in attendance when the American Association of Woodturners (AAW) was founded at Arrowmont in 1985, and has lead numerous workshops at the School since 1988.

Despite a busy schedule as Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Southern Highland Handicraft Guild, Stoney manages to squeeze in time for his own studio work. The Smithsonian Institution's Renwick Gallery gave his efforts its stamp of approval by inviting him to lecture about his artwork in December 1992. by Cynthia Huff

A guardian angel rests on the head of "Man With Protection," a ceramic sculpture by Debra Waddell Fritts of Roswell, Georgia. The sculpture and "Treasure the Dream," a weaving by Sharon Marcus of Portland, Oregon were part of "Myths: New Form, New Function."

Myths: New Form, New Function

t has been said that when myth meets myth, the collision is very real. Arrowmont explored that theory by presenting an exhibition about old and new myths and their shape and meaning in today's society.

On view February 25 through May 14, "Myths: New Form, New Function" was juried by Jane Kessler of Charlotte, North Carolina. According to Kessler, "Myths have been used to explain what is otherwise unexplainable and to describe natural and mystical forces by naming them and giving them form."

The 68 works in the national exhibition illuminated numerous myths from the sacred to the suburban – St. Anthony shared the spotlight with St. Nicholas.

In her juror's statement, Kessler noted that a surprising number of artists successfully incorporated ancient mythological figures into contemporary events. "The fact that there were so many responses – 799 entries by 300 artists – indicated to me that contemporary artists are extremely interested in expressing their ideas about myths, beliefs and ideologies."

His 1993 engagements included exhibiting at the Chicago International New Art Forms Exposition and participating in the prestigious Philadelphia Craft Show.

Stoney's artistic output will undoubtedly be lessened in 1994 due to his many speaking engagements on Arrowmont's behalf. "I made four presentations to five Florida AAW Chapters in March, and the response was very favorable. At every place I visited," Stoney said, "there was someone who had studied at Arrowmont and could give a testimonial about how great it was." As consultant, Stoney is sharing information about Arrowmont's wood program with woodworking groups, collectors, galleries, interested individuals and woodworking supply companies. Upcoming commitments include meetings with collectors in Washington, D.C., a gallery presentation in Atlanta, Georgia, appearances at the National AAW Conference in Colorado, and regional AAW conferences in Maryland and Arizona.

Children's Lives Enriched Through Art

The closing reception of "Children's and Young Adult Art Exhibition" February 19 marked the formal end of the 1994 children's classes program.

High levels of energy were evident in each of the six classes that met on Saturdays, January 15 through February 12. Ninety students ranging in age from 4 to 18 participated in painting, pottery, clay, sculpture and cyanotype classes taught by resident artists Lisa Bare, Mary Perry, Brad Cantrell, Ed Lockett, Anne Smith, Rosalie Spice and Winnie Utterback.

Now having completed its tenth year, Arrowmont's children's classes are firmly established in the Gatlinburg community and routinely attract students from five surrounding counties. Many area children are veterans of the program, and more than a few received their Arrowmont class as a Christmas present. This year 15 students attended with full scholarships provided by funds from Kevin and Janice Kincaid Clifford and the Gatlinburg Kiwanis Club.

Assistant Director Bill Griffith began his tenure as coordinator of children and young adult classes in mid-1987. "We've grown from three classes and 30 students in 1988, to approximately 90 students in seven classes," Bill pointed out.

"The thing that I find most interesting about children's classes, after being involved with them for seven years, is that I've seen students return for five years. It's fun to watch them grow up in Arrowmont's program and move into other classes," he said.

The ultimate example is one student who started coming to Arrowmont before he could drive, at age fifteen. "His grandmother would drive him. He continued to come to Saturday morning classes for several years, and then went into our summer classes for adults. After a few summer classes for adults. After a few summer classes, he participated in our work study program. This year he came and volunteered to be a teacher's assistant for children's pottery classes, so the circle is complete. That's very rewarding for me," Bill said.

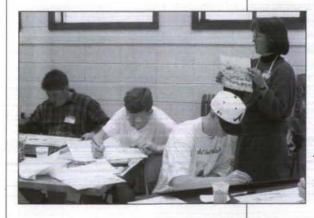

Students executed five paintings in five weeks during "Adventures in Creative Painting" taught by children's classes instructor Ed Lockett.

A young student prepares to dip a wheel-thrown pot into a bucket of glaze. "Clay and the Potter's Wheel" continues to be the most popular of Arrowmont's children's classes.

Instructor Lisa Line guides Gatlinburg-Pittman High School students through a linear drawing assignment. The one-day class was part of nine "Outreach Grant Workshops" organized by Arrowmont Resident Artist Mary Perry. Between January and May 1994, more than 400 students, grades 2-12, participated in the outreach program.

Campaign

Wood – The Campaign's Challenge

The excitement of a $352,500 challenge grant from the private Windgate Charitable Foundation for a new wood studio has created a "campaign within a campaign" and provided new challenges for the Arrowmont Campaign Committee. As the overall $2.3 million Campaign for Arrowmont advances toward its goal, the Committee is determined to match the wood challenge by raising the needed $352,500 designated for that purpose by the challenge deadline, December 1, 1994.

The wood studio has been a component since the inception of the overall campaign...but on a much smaller scale than what now is intended. No longer a remodel of existing inadequate facilities, plans call for a new, larger and more diverse facility. The wood complex will be constructed at a projected cost of $808,000 in what now is a parking lot facing the front entrance to Arrowmont's main classroom building.

From one existing, narrow, 1700 square foot room, physical facilities will expand to a 8900 square foot complex that will include three wood studios, finishing room, auditorium, gallery, faculty office, studio for an artist-in-residence and two center courtvards. From the one crowded classroom accommodating a maximum of 14 students, studio space will increase to provide for three larger classes held simultaneously. From a program supporting student emphasis on lathe-turned utilitarian pieces, the new studio design opens the door to accommodate other artists whose interests lie in exploring other forms of the vessel and in creating larger, sculptural pieces or furniture. Director Sandra Blain, Arizona Beta, says, "We will have facilities and a comprehensive program for wood artists and craftsmen of all interests, skills and age levels."

Historical Perspective

Earliest formal wood instruction at Settlement School can be traced back to 1914 when Caroline McKnight Hughes, Minnesota Alpha 1893, set up the school's industrial work department with five woodworking benches. Fifty-two men and boys from the mountain community enrolled in these early wood classes.

In 1929, O.J. Mattil "...fitted up an old barn near the school building as a shop...and employed from one to five boys to refinish old furniture and reproduce crickets, bookshelves and tables. An ARROW article states, "There is no doubt but that this has had a great influence on the furniture makers of the community, for they are now bringing in [to be sold at Arrowcraft] better furniture than ever before."

According to former Arrowmont Director Marian Heard, Tennessee Gamma, classes during the summer workshop program in the '40s and '50s focused on toy making. In 1973, the Staff House garage was converted to a woodworking building and the first classes in wood relief were taught. The building was renovated in 1981-82, and a small outside covered workspace was added soon thereafter.

As the founding site of the Association of American Woodturners in 1985, as a learning center for wood students from around the world, and as a host to an internationally known faculty whose work is exhibited at the Smithsonian's Renwick Gallery, the woodturning Center in Philadelphia and in known wood and other visual arts galleries and museums around the world, Arrowmont will carry on the School's traditions in wood and expects to enter the last half of this decade with a wood program and facility of unequaled stature.

Athelia Sweet Clingan, Kansas Beta

"...faculty and staff have a keen sense of student needs."

From a student of snorkeling, to outdoor survival experiences, to health and fitness, to decorative metal, to woodturning...Athelia Sweet Clingan, Kansas Beta, is a five-time connoisseur of Elderhostel programs at various locations. As a former member of the Arrowmont Board of Governors (1985-91), she agrees to being biased toward the Arrowmont facility and says, "Studying at Arrowmont, with its outstanding faculty and friendly on-site personnel, is just like going home and back to family. Both faculty and staff have a keen sense of student needs."

Two bowls and several small wooden Christmas ornaments are the physical evidence of Athelia's time spent in an Arrowmont woodturning class, but more important to her is her newly acquired admiration for the techniques of the craft and for the skills of the artists. She describes the experience as "humbling."

Athelia says, "My father was in the lumber business and, as a child, I toured the redwood forests and the lumber mills in the Northwest. Wood has always been an important part of my life." Her curiosity about woodturning led her to Alan Lacer's class in 1992. "It was a full and crowded class of 14 students, with no room to create a piece of any size and little room to arrange chairs for the teacher's demonstrations," she says. "Oh, if we'd only had the luxury of what is planned for the new studio building!" Looking at the architect's drawing, Athelia is especially focused on the auditorium. She says, "The potential for an assembly of students to hear a lecture or see a demonstration by a teacher from another class certainly will expand the learning process."

Merry-Beth Noble, California Delta

"...there is so much to learn; one interest leads to another."

Traditionally, wood is known as an art medium of interest to males. The ratio of female to male students in an Arrowmont wood class supports this. Women average less than 20 percent. Merry-Beth Noble, California Delta, was the only woman in Ray Ferguson's Laminated and Staved Turned Vessels class.

"In my profession," Merry-Beth says, "I don't even think about being a female. I must have the self confidence to fight the stereotype if I am to survive in the field." By vocation, Merry-Beth is a set designer for feature films, television and theater productions. She designs, she drafts, she builds. "There very definitely is a place for women in production design," she says. "It takes getting in there and doing it. I love my job! "

The daughter of Pi Beta Phi Director of Pledge Development Ruth Neel Noble, California Delta, Merry-Beth's undergraduate major while at UCLA was art, with an emphasis in mixed media, sculpture and performance art. Her reason for taking Ray Ferguson's class was "...to branch out from my conceptual training into something more construction oriented." In her profession, whether she creates or she communicates with builders and others who will do the creating, the able to

Merry-Beth knows she must be able to talk knowledgeably about every material, every method of construction and every tool to be used. "I cannot stop taking classes," she says. "There is so much to learn and one interest leads to another. Every movie and every movie set is different."

Merry-Beth's interest in decorating fuels her interest in large, three-dimensional sculptural pieces and in furniture design. To take another class at Arrowmont is a logical next step. Someday, Arrowmont's wood program will have played a part in her success when she walks to the Academy Awards stage to accept her Oscar for Best Art Director.

Renee Henry, Washington Beta

"...pride in Pi Beta Phi for furthering educational opportunities in the arts."

"I wish all Pi Phis could see Arrowmont from the inside out as I have," says Washington architect Renee Henry, Washington Beta. "Arrowmont is an incredible art facility."

Renee was a student in Liam O'Neill's woodturning class where, she says, "I was not hindered by any preconceived notions, bad habits or prior knowledge of woodturning. I just listened and learned. It was a friendly environment." Renee enjoyed the camaraderie among students and says, "I appreciated other art forms and what students were doing in other classes like quilting... but, they went home with small pieces of a much larger project. I went home, set four completed bowls on the shelf, stepped back and was able to say, I made those." As a Pi Phi and Arrowmont student, Renee says she "...felt pride in myself for what I was able to accomplish, pride in the quality of the Arrowmont program and a tremendous pride in Pi Beta Phi for furthering educational opportunities in the arts."

From her Collegiate Province President mother, Nancy Heglar Henry, Washington Beta, and then as a Pi Phi collegian, Renee "grew up" with Arrowmont. It was only natural that her love of art be furthered in the Pi Phi facility. Her first experience in wood came as an eighth grader when she boycotted the traditional-for-girls home economics class and selected wood shop. Later, through the Arrowmont experience, her appreciation for wood grew to include a respect for the creative process itself and for the amount of patience it takes to transform an object from a fresh cut, moist piece of wood to the designed and aged completed project.

Renee is excited about plans for Arrowmont's new wood studio and is intrigued by the design that incorporates three functionally different studios into one complex. She easily sees herself in the Large Object Studio learning new techniques as a furniture designer...or maybe she will take another class from Liam O'Neill in the new Lathe Studio...or perhaps she will create other functional pieces in the Carving Studio. One thing is certain, she will find a way to repeat her Arrowmont experience in wood.

Jane Houchens Tuten, Tennessee Beta

"...an exceptional rapport between faculty and students."

As part of her 1983 spring officer visit to Arrowmont, Former Grand Vice President of Philanthropies Jane Houchens Tuten, Tennessee Beta, joined a class carving household kitchen items – everything from trays to serving plates to utensils. Jane made a large wooden serving spoon. She says, "I was so proud of my accomplishment that I showed it to anyone who would look. I even took it for show and tell on my Pi Phi chapter visits."

Now, eleven years later, Jane says, "Every time I use the spoon, I think of Arrowmont and the exceptional rapport between faculty and students. For a week, the studio was home to artists with a wide range of levels of skill. I'm sure I was at the bottom, but I was never made to feel like the neophyte."

"The freedom to create was an enjoyable outlet," says Jane, whose background was in computer training for IBM. Why did she select instruction in wood? "It was not something readily available at home and it was a way to experience Arrowmont as a student, not just as a Pi Phi officer."

When discussing plans for Arrowmont's wood studio, Jane credits Sandy Blain, Director, with the vision to reach out in new directions to incorporate new trends in Arrowmont programming. "The new studio will provide an opportunity for a broadened selection of class offerings. It shows a responsiveness to student needs and a continuing commitment to Arrowmont's purpose... a credit both to the School and to the Fraternity," Jane says.

Pi Beta Phi Foundation

Friendship Fund Transfers to Foundation

ook carefully at your next Friendship Fund mailing. The return address will say Pi Beta Phi Foundation not Pi Beta Phi Fraternity. This change will be significant to Friendship Fund donors.

The Pi Beta Phi Foundation qualifies as a public charity under Internal Revenue Service Code 501(c)(3) making the entire amount of your Friendship Fund donation tax-deductible to the full extent of the law. In addition, many corporations will match employees' charitable gifts made to a public charity.

Responsibility for the Friendship Fund is one of the last steps for the Foundation in becoming the funding arm of Pi Beta Phi. The Foundation has already accepted the existing endowments for scholarships and will soon receive the Emma Harper Turner Fund from the Fraternity.

The familiar format of the Friendship Fund will be continued by the Foundation. All prior gifts made to the Fund as well as future gifts will be included together in the cumulative giving levels that are reported annually in The ARROW.

The Friendship Fund, Pi Phi's annual solicitation of alumnae, was begun in 1980. In the ensuing years nearly $1,000,000 has been raised for scholarships, fraternity service to clubs and chapters, leadership training for collegiate and alumnae officers, extension to new campuses and expansion of year-round scheduling at Arrowmont.

With the advantage of tax-exempt donations to the Foundation, the Fraternity and all members will benefit from the building of an endowment to Pi Beta Phi Foundation Board of Trustees. Front: Ann Dudgeon Phy and Adrienne Hiscox Mitchell. Back: Mary Ann Behlen Hruska, Jo Ann Minor Roderick, Betty Blades Lofton, Carolyn Helman Lichtenberg. enhance all aspects of programming which qualify for Foundation funding.

The Foundation plans to increase alumnae awareness of the opportunities for supporting fraternity programs. The young women active in chapters are selected for their scholastic and leadership potential. Pi Beta Phi training in leadership skills, discussions of ethics and values and community service activities help them to fulfill their potential and are important to their success as the future leaders of our communities. Foundation funding of eligible programs through gifts to the Friendship Fund is essential.

Granting scholarship awards to actives and alumnae is something Pi Phi has in common with other Greek organizations. The Foundation's goal is to increase both the number and the dollar amounts of awards given annually. This year, the Foundation has awarded 40 undergraduate scholarships, increasing each award from $500 to $750. Five Alumnae Continuing Education Scholarships at $1,000 each and four graduate fellowships at $2,500 each were also awarded. Until the Foundation is able to increase endowment funds for scholarships, partial funding of these annual awards must be supported by the Friendship Fund.

Arrowmont School of Arts and Crafts will continue to receive support through the Friendship Fund. Arrowmont carries on the tradition of Pi Beta Phi Settlement School begun in 1912 with a community outreach that provides art education programs in area schools and brings local children to the campus for classes.

As one of the top private schools of arts and crafts in the United States, Arrowmont annually enrolls nearly 2,000 students of varying levels of expertise from the U.S. and many foreign countries. In addition, Elderhostel classes are offered both spring and fall and a special Pi Phi Arts Weekend for members is held the first weekend of May each year.

The Foundation mission states we are "committed to fund programs which promote the intellectual, ethical and leadership development of members of Pi Beta Phi Fraternity and, through its philanthropic efforts, to benefit the larger society."

Scholarship awards and educational programs promote the intellectual development of members. Values and ethics are a part of all Fraternity programming. Biennial conventions and regional workshops provide collegiate and alumnae officers with leadership training applicable for success in any careet or volunteer endeavor.

Your generous gift to the Friendship Fund will sustain Pi Beta Phi's efforts in all of these areas. Supporting the educational needs of Pi Phi women is a smart investment in the future.

Foundation Selects ACE Scholarship Recipients

The Pi Beta Phi Foundation and the Alumnae Committee for Continuing Education are pleased to announce that five alumnae have been awarded Alumnae Continuing Education Scholarships. Each of these winners is an active alumna member of Pi Beta Phi, has been out of school at least two years and is working to enhance her career qualifications through a particular course of study.

Mary Estelle Dickey, Tennessee Delta, Memphis Area Alumnae Club, has been on the Tennessee Delta Alumnae Advisory Committee for four years. She is currently employed as a second grade teacher and is going to school part-time to complete a master's of education in curriculum and instruction.

Michelle Laub Griffin,

California Gamma, North Woodward, Michigan Alumnae Club, currently serves her club as president and has held other positions such as vice president for membership and programs. An active community volunteer, Michelle has participated in projects involving literacy and abused women and children. Michelle is attending Wayne State University full-time and anticipates receiving a bachelor of fine arts degree with an emphasis in interior design and architecture in May 1995.

Tamie Pachek Lancaster, Montana Alpha, has returned to school to obtain a master's degree in teaching at Washington State University/Tri-Cities branch. Although there is not an alumnae club close by, Tamie participates by providing rush information on area collegians and looks forward to the day that she is near a club. She has been an energetic community volunteer participating in efforts to benefit children and her church.

Karri Lynn Rensel, Kentucky Alpha, Louisville, Kentucky Alumnae Club, is currently completing her master's degree in clinical psychology at Spalding University and is applying to doctorate programs. Her goal is to have a career as a psychologist. As an undergraduate, Karri held various chapter offices including Chapter President and Vice President of Social Advancement.

Martha Walton, Arizona Alpha, Phoenix Alumnae Club, is a former member of the Tucson Alumnae Club where she was on the Arizona Alpha Alumnae Advisory Committee for two years. Martha is a candidate for a master's degree in psychology at Northern Arizona University. Martha has participated as a volunteer for her church, the March of Dimes, drug awareness and prevention programs, and programs to help the needy.

Graduate Fellowships Announced

F our Pi Phis will receive graduate fellowships awarded by the Pi Beta Phi Foundation for the 1994-95 academic year.

Tracy Lynne Cane, New York Gamma, graduated from St. Lawrence University in 1990 with a bachelor of science in biology. She is currently enrolled at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute as a candidate for a master's of science degree in biology. Tracy plans to become a secondary education teacher of biology.

During her college career, Tracy participated in chapter activities in a variety of positions including Assistant Vice President of Mental Advancement, Historian and ARROW Correspondent. Since graduation, Tracy has served Pi Phi as a member of New York Epsilon's Alumnae Advisory Committee and was most recently employed as the chapter's House Director. She has been working as a biology teaching assistant for the past five years and her studies currently focus on micorbial ecology.

Wendy Ruth Gottlieb,

Connecticut Beta, is a 1992 cum laude graduate of Yale University with a bachelor's of art degree in philosophy and is currently in her second year of school at the University of Virginia School of Medicine. She anticipates receiving her M.D. in May 1996.

As an undergraduate, Wendy participated in service projects through her chapter as well as independently. She helped to build houses through Habitat for Humanity, participated in events to upgrade and promote the local community center, was a tutor at an inner-city high school and assisted in the administration of science programs and science clubs at various local elementary schools.

Today Wendy is an active community volunteer participating in projects involving a high school, a clinic and a nursing home. She also counsels Connecticut Beta collegians who are applying to medical school programs.

Carolyn L. Whitford, Nevada Alpha, received her bachelor's of arts degree in journalism with high distinction from the University of Nevada, Reno in 1990, and is currently in her second year of school at the University of Nebraska College of Law. She was in the top 20% of her class at the end of her first year of law school and anticipates receiving her degree in May 1995.

Carolyn served her chapter in a variety of ways as an undergraduate including holding the position of Vice President of Mental Advancement. Upon graduation she was involved with the Las Vegas Alumnae Club as the fund-raising coordinator and plans to participate in the Lincoln, Nebraska Alumnae Club.

Jennifer Lee Wright, North Dakota Alpha, graduated this year with a bachelor of fine arts degree in ceramics from the University of North Dakota as well as with an art history minor and a secondary education degree. She is pursuing her fine arts interest through a master's in visual arts

Your Ports of Call:

HONG KONG Vibrant Hong Kong is the most dynamic city in the Orient. From the harbor teeming with junks, sampans and ultra-modern hovercraft, to the heights of Victoria Peak – it's a bargain hunters paradise.

TAIPEI, TAIWAN Formerly called Formosa, Taiwan has blossomed into an international force in the world of finance, commerce and industry. One of Taipei's many attractions is the National Palace Museum, which houses over 250,000 Chinese treasures.

SHANGHAI, CHINA Sprawling Shanghai shows the treasures of Chinese Art at the Shanghai Museum. A second day is spent touring the charming rural towns of Wuxi and Suzhou where Ming emperors spent their summers.

NAGASAKI, JAPAN Japan's welcoming "window" to the world has thrived since its devastation in World War II. Here you'll see Glover House, the site for "Madame Butterfly" and the inspiring Statue of Peace.

PUSAN, KOREA Known for its gorgeous temples, you may see one of the most ornate – the fabled Pomosa. This exotic town is also a good place to shop for bargains especially distinctive Korean crafts.

YANTAI, CHINA This delightful Shandong Peninsula town, a famous port of the opium wars, is renowned for its lovely beaches and for its delicate rose-petal wine, a popular export.

BEIJING, CHINA Your 3-night stay in one of China's finest hotels allows you to truly explore the wealth of wonders in this mighty city. A full-day trip will carry you to the Great Wall and the ming tombs with their avenue of huge statues. The 9000-room Imperial Palace is the former Forbidden City, containing the Dragon Throne and other priceless treasures. There's also the zoo with its endearing pandas and the lovely Summer Palace.

How Alumnae Can Help

- Fill out a Rush Information Form (RIF) on any prospective rushee you wish to sponsor for membership in Pi Beta Phi. See form on page 33 in this magazine. The form may be copied or additional forms are available from Central Office, 7730 Carondelet, Suite 333, St. Louis, MO 63105.
 - a. Do not call the family or the young woman (rushee) for information.

- b. Do use the information gathered by the alumnae panhellenic group in your city. If the rushee has not filled out a panhellenic information form, please encourage her to do so.
- Return the completed form directly to the Chapter Membership Chairman of the appropriate chapter. All Chapter Membership Chairmen are listed in this issue of The ARROW beginning on page 34.
- 3. Please send the RIF early. Be sure it is completed. Send a picture of rushee, if possible.
- 4. Although only one RIF is needed for each rushee, letters are welcome from all alumnae who may wish to write.
- 5. If you know of a legacy going through rush, please fill out a Legacy Introduction Form found on the bottom of this page. The Legacy Introduction Form DOES NOT take the place of a RIF.

Community Service

California Alphas Sarah Mather, Kristina Aberg, Karen Hertz, Dana Silbiger, Kristen Sidell and Susan Urstein from Stanford participated in the Race for the Cure, an annual run to raise money for breast cancer research. This year's 5K run took place in October in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park.

Each Tuesday a group of Arkansas Alphas from the University of Arkansas play with children from the Richardson Center, a local school and day care center. Arkansas Alphas held their annual spaghetti dinner fund-raiser in November. Some of the proceeds were given to the Arkansas Children's Hospital.

Florida Epsilons at the University of Central Florida have been involved in several community service projects. The chapter held an Easter Egg Hunt for children of alumnae and local school children. Members volunteer at the Coalition for the Homeless reading bedtime stories to children. The Orlando Rescue Mission also benefits from Pi Beta Phi as members volunteer to feed the homeless.

In addition to their Women's Wheels, in which volunteers assist campus women needing rides during evenings, the Indiana Beta Chapter at Indiana University has developed two new community service projects. Chapter members are now going to the Bloomington Boys and Girls Club where they tutor and play games with the children and the Hoosier Hills Nursing Home where chapter members visit with the residents.

Virginia Deltas at Old Dominion University helped raise money for a fellow student who underwent a bone marrow operation. The student's family needed money to cover recovery costs, so the chapter placed fund-raising cans around the campus allowing all students the opportunity to donate money. The chapter also got involved in a community service project, Angel Kiss, a program set up to raise money for children born with blood pathogenic diseases. The chapter volunteered to help raise money through a carnival for the children.

Three Michigan Alphas received scholarships from Hillsdale College to begin or help with programs in the community. Jennifer Courdrey established a big sister/big brother program at Key Opportunities, a business that employs mentally and physically handicapped adults. Becky Hamm volunteers her time as a Girl Scout leader and is a helper in the "Kids Need Moms" program in which she helps transport and oversee kids visitation with moms who are in prison. Brittiney Stanger has decided to take her job, working with Special Olympics, one step further by establishing a big sister/big brother program for the Special Olympics children.

Virginia Thetas Kim Schooley and Laina Ewan give 24 hours a week to the Lexington Rescue Squad working as certified Emergency Medical Technicians. Megan Fernstrum has applied her horseback riding talents to a program called Ride with Pride. She helps disabled individuals learn and participate in horseback riding. Julie Ayres and Tricia Coughlin are big sisters in Lexington. The Washington and Lee Chapter adopted a family and provided them with food for the holidays. In the spring, the chapter helped build Kids' Playce, a local playground for Lexington children.

For Halloween, the New Mexico Beta Chapter had trick or treaters down the hallway of the Pi Phi house at New Mexico State University. The children and their mothers are staying at La Casa, a shelter for battered women. The chapter also participated in a semester-long philanthropy for the Gospel Rescue Mission, a homeless shelter. Every three weeks, during interest group night, members brought two to three items to donate to the mission. During one interest group meeting, the chapter held a coat and blanket drive to help the mission prepare for the cold weather season.

The California Alpha Chapter at Stanford University held a fundraiser for the Stanford Rape Crisis Council. The 1994 pledge class sold tickets for a spaghetti dinner, and they put on their chef hats to cook the meal. The Stanford Rape Crisis Council received a check for more than $800. The chapter also created a weekly clothing drive for the homeless in Palo Alto, California. In April, California Alphas participated in the March of Dimes WalkAmerica.

Wisconsin Alpha Heather Sander, a student at the University of Wisconsin, volunteers at Emerson Elementary School with the CASPER Program. CASPER stands for the Collaborative After School Program of Education and Recreation. The kids involved in this program have no homesmany of them live at the YMCA. After their regular school day, they come by bus or taxi to enjoy an afternoon of fun and learning. For five years Wisconsin Alphas have been leading Brownie Troop #866 in Madison, Wisconsin.

The 1994 pledge class of Texas Zeta spent a great deal of quality time with children from the Methodist Home, a home for youths with troubled backgrounds. Molly Christopher and Emilie Johnson scheduled a trip to Galiana, Mexico for spring break. The two Baylor University Pi Phis worked in an orphanage washing clothes, cleaning, cooking, gardening, and helping children with their English skills.

Alabama Alphas held their first ArrowSpike volleyball tournament at Birmingham-Southern College in April. Money donated by sponsors and obtained through the sale of T-shirts was given to Arrowmont. Chapter members also participated in a campuswide Outreach Day, volunteering for several different community projects.

Beth Wood picked up trash for Project Pride while Sondra Nixon, Allyson Fertitta, Johanna Crowe, Adrianne Simon and Elizabeth Ellis gave the interior of the Birmingham Humane Society a much-needed paint job.

The Pennsylvania Etas at Lafayette College serve as role models in a program called Girl's Talk at the Easton Girls and Boys Club. Neighborhood preteen girls come and meet with Pi Phis and discuss various selected topics and interests.

Members of the Illinois Iota Chapter participated in an Adopt-a-School program providing tutoring, enrichment programs, study hall monitoring and many different games as after school activities for local schools. Another program members were involved in was Into the Streets. Pi Phis at Illinois State University helped at homeless shelters, nursing homes, and other community organizations.

This spring, Oregon Gammas held their annual Teeter-Totter Marathon involving a 24-hour attempt to keep the Pi Phi teeter-totter going. The proceeds benefited a non-profit youth camp in southern Oregon for children who have cancer. The Wilamette University Pi Phis also held an Arrowspike volleyball tournament raising over $800 for the Salem, Oregon Literacy Project.

In March, Virginia Zetas from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University paired with Sigma Alpha Epsilon to sponsor their first Hoopfest. They organized a three-onthree basketball tournament as a fundraising event for Arrowmont.

This past spring, Missouri Betas from Washington University cosponsored a Hair-Cut-a-Thon with the members of Kappa Sigma Fraternity. The proceeds were donated to a young St. Louis boy in need of an organ transplant. The chapter also co-sponsored a Twister Tournament with the members of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity. The proceeds from this were donated to the young boy and to Arrowmont.

The Wyoming Alpha Chapter's annual highway clean project takes place early in the year, and involves almost every Greek organization on the University of Wyoming campus adopting a two-mile section of local highway and maintaining it.

As a chapter, the New Jersey Alphas have renovated a public park, helped local high school students raise money for the YWCA at their annual fair, spent time with senior citizens talking and playing games, and landscaped homes with Habitat for Humanity. Pi Phis also provided child care at Communiversity, Princeton University's annual town spring fling. Carol McLaughlin, a member of the Student Volunteer Council Board of Directors, was involved in prison outreach, Wee Care, a young mothers help program, and Big Brothers/Big Sisters. Melissa Hawes and Kristi Rowan have directed a teenage shelter project.

Auburn University Pi Phis cohosted a party for Project Uplift children and their sponsors. Alabama Gammas also delivered Valentines to a local retirement home and visited with the residents.

Washington Betas held their annual Pancake Feed to raise money for Pullman's Habitat for Humanity. The Washington State University Chapter was able to raise more than $2,000.

Pennsylvania Thetas from Villanova University volunteered at the Special Olympics as both athlete escorts and chaperones. Regina Crawford is co-chair of Balloon Day, a fair given for physically and mentally handicapped children. The AIDS quilt came to campus during AIDS Awareness Week, and members sold ribbons and acted as quilt monitors. Lisa Wadors performed in a dramatic play about the epidemic and the founding of the Names Project.

Florida Alphas held their annual Head Start Easter party with the Delta Sigma Phis. Head Start is an organization devoted to helping underprivileged children. The Stetson Ohio Iotas Meghan Shamon, Sarah Baughman and Ellen Sand volunteered at a United Cerebral Palsy Telethon at the University of Dayton. University Pi Phis also conducted a craft sale during Homecoming weekend. Proceeds went to Arrowmont.

Iowa Betas have started a community service project called Adopt-a-Grandparent. Pi Phis regularly visit a resident at the nearby nursing home and spend time with their new grandparent. In January, the chapter held an all-night dance to raise money for the Chris Street Memorial Fund. Nine Pi Phis helped plan the alcohol-free dance. More than 250 people attended the dance, helping the Simpson College Chapter raise $500.

Last Easter, New Mexico Alphas volunteered their time and participated in a community service project with the Lambda Chi Alphas. Members went to the University of New Mexico Children's Hospital and spent time with ill children by playing the Easter Bunny, painting eggs, and telling stories. For Valentine's Day, the chapter sold raffle tickets for Valentine's Day dinners for two at several nice restaurants. The proceeds went to a homeless shelter in Albuquerque.

This spring, Oregon Alpha continued the traditional Arrow Challenge, a frisbee-golf tournament held on the University of Oregon campus. Adopt-a-Highway is also a part of Oregon Alpha community service. The highway cleanup sparked the interests of members to the Adopt-a-Path program in which the chapter cleans the paths that surround Eugene and the University of Oregon campus.

Iowa Zetas at the University of Iowa were presented the Outstanding Fraternity Award from the Hospice Road Races for raising the most money as an individual chapter.

Each year, the Arkansas Beta Chapter donates funds to the local chapter of Easter Seals through involvement in a Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity-sponsored fund-raiser. Several Arkansas Betas volunteered their time to answer telephones at the 1994 Easter Seals Telethon held in March. Last December, the University of Arkansas at Little Rock Student Government Association sponsored an annual Christmas project. The Association brought students from a local lower-income elementary school to the university to have lunch and spend the day touring the campus with student representatives. Arkansas Betas raised and donated the money necessary for a portion of the transportation expenses. In April, the chapter participated in a bowl-a-thon sponsored by the Make-A-Wish Foundation. Prior to the event, members solicited donations for the cause.

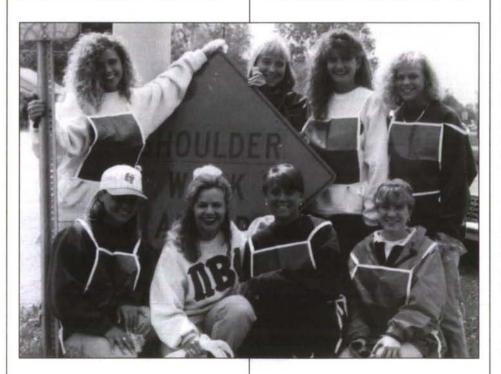

Virginia Etas at the University of Richmond are involved in tutoring at Crestview Elementary School in the afternoons.

Louisiana Alphas organized the fourth annual Rock the CASA, a benefit concert held by Pi Phis and seven other Greek groups on the Louisiana State University campus to raise money for CASA, Court Appointed Special Advocates for Children. CASA is an organization which aids abused children whose cases are being reviewed by the courts. This was the fourth year that Louisiana Alpha was the leader and main contributor in the organization of this event.

South Dakota Alphas sponsored a Halloween fun house for area children. Other projects the University of South Dakota Pi Phis have participated include helping with March of Dimes, trick or treating for UNICEF, beautifying the community through highway pick-up, caring for children during parents meetings for the graduate students and participating in a telethon for the South Dakota Public Television.

Pennsylvania Iotas at the University of Pennsylvania have adopted Dixon House as their local philanthropy. Dixon House is an afterschool facility for South Philadelphia children. Last fall, the chapter raised more than $300 for Dixon House by selling final exam survival kits. Valerie Cashour is active in ACCESS, the Active Coordinated Coalition Efforts Sponsored by Students, a nonprofit organization which encourages unique and innovative community service projects. Judy Tieh participates in TEACH West Philadelphia, a tutoring/mentoring program for Asian refugee children.

Arizona Gammas at Northern Arizona University volunteered at the Los Arcos Health Care Center participating in activities such as decorating the center for Halloween, making and delivering Christmas cards to each resident, and performing rush skits for the residents. The chapter also volunteers at the Flagstaff Women's Shelter.

The second annual Pi Beta Phi Arrow Run was sponsored by Ohio Beta in April. The 5K run was routed through the Ohio State University grounds. Proceeds from the run were donated to Arrowmont.

Each year Illinois Alphas join the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity at Monmouth College on Halloween and trick or treat for the Jamieson Center. Both organizations ask for old clothes and canned foods and give the collections to the community center. This year at least 30 bags of clothing were donated as well as a large quantity of canned goods. Chapter members also participate in Dollar Days, collecting money on behalf of Muscular Dystrophy.

Chapter members of Nevada Alpha at the University of Nevada got involved in a local program called Chums during the 1993-94 academic year. The purpose of this philanthropy was to help underprivileged children in elementary schools. Each week volunteers met with their designated student and tutored them. The chapter also sponsored a book drive to provide reading material for underfunded elementary schools.

A major chapter effort for Tennessee Betas at Vanderbilt University is designed to help the Bill Wilkerson Center for the hearing impaired. The fall philanthropy, Blues Blast, benefits the center. In addition, many Pi Phis volunteer for the Bill Wilkerson Center throughout the year. A number of Tennessee Betas participated in an alternative spring break. Some went to Guatemala and helped build housing and sanitation facilities. Some went to inner-city Detroit to aid the homeless, while other alternative spring breakers traveled to Florida to work on conservation projects.

Each year, Arizona Betas at Arizona State University host Arrowspike. The event benefits Child Help USA, a program for abused children. The chapter is also involved in Greek Week activities with all proceeds benefiting Camp Sunrise, a camp for children with cancer.

Ohio Epsilons from the University of Toledo help keep the community clean with Adopt-a-Highway.

Washington Gammas helped with an after school program at McCarver Elementary School in downtown Tacoma. They spend several hours a week tutoring kids with their homework and helping to find activities for them such as sports, field trips, and a recent Easter Egg Hunt.

North Carolina Gamma is involved in several community service projects at Wake Forest University. Last Halloween the chapter volunteered to set up stands of games for underprivileged children in Winston-Salem for Project Pumpkin. Pi Phis escort the children around the campus to each game stand dressed in costume.

West Virginia Alpha Nikki Tennis volunteers for Big Brothers/Big Sisters and is the vice-president of Circle K, a local service organization that works with such organizations as the Special Olympics. The American Red Cross is aided by Amy Chase who teaches Community CPR and Liz Oliphant, an office volunteer. Liz is also a volunteer for an adult day care center and teaches swimming to children. Robin Miller serves several environmental groups and Jennifer Shifflet is a volunteer member of the Mountaineer Council which serves West Virginia University alumni and their children.

Idaho Alphas participated in their annual Rock-a-Thon in conjunction with University of Idaho's Lambda Chi Alpha chapter. Members rocked a large wooden rocking chair for twenty-four hours to support the Moscow, Idaho Humane Society. In December, during the Christmas shopping season, Pi Phis worked as gift wrappers to support the Hospice of the Palouse. This local organization cares for the home-bound elderly.

Pennsylvania Epsilons participated in the country's largest studentrun philanthropy, the Panhellenic-Interfraternity Council's Dance Marathon at Penn State University. Pennsylvania Epsilons were involved as members of the operations committee, the morale team and as dancers. The Dance Marathon raises millions of dollars each year for the Four Diamonds Fund which benefits juvenile cancer.

The Texas Eta Chapter recently participated in the 3rd annual Aggie Replant, a growing tradition at Texas A & M. Students planted more than 20,000 trees to help replenish the trees used in the Texas A & M bonfire each year. The chapter also participated in the 12th annual Big Event, a 4,500 student service project at the university. The Big Event is an opportunity for the students to give back to the community through 225 various projects.

Dance Marathon is Northwestern University's largest philanthropy, and every year Illinois Epsilon Pi Phis contribute countless hours to make sure it is a success. This year was Dance Marathon's 20th anniversary and the event raised $180,000 for the Leukemia Research Foundation. Junior Mariorie Rosamarin is an active volunteer at the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago. Since last summer, Marjorie has been busy filing animal reports, keeping animal inventories and observing surgical procedures. She hopes to attend veterinary school and later work as a veterinarian for large farm animals.

Mississippi Betas, in cooperation with Students for Environmental Awareness, helped petition for a recycling program for the University of Mississippi and the surrounding Oxford community. A program was adopted by the university in March. The week before Easter, Mississippi Beta members enjoyed themselves serving food and giving Easter baskets to the residents of the Golden Years Retirement Home. The chapter also held their annual King of Hearts philanthropy project from which more than $3,000 was contributed to Arrowmont.

This spring, Memphis State University sponsored Operation Feed, a food drive to help feed the homeless. Tennessee Deltas collected 76 nonperishable items for this cause.

Oklahoma Alpha Emily Chambers spends several days a week volunteering at the Norman Regional Hospital near the University of Oklahoma. She volunteers in the emergency ward, helping patients and assisting the hospital staff in many areas. During Greek Week, Oklahoma Alphas sold shamrocks, collecting more than $600 to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Mary Frances Anderson, Kristi Kretzschmar and Stephanie Lease participate in the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program.

Connecticut Beta is one of many groups sponsoring Communiversity Day, a day-long festival in April when the surrounding community is invited onto the Yale University campus to enjoy hearing bands play, singing groups perform, and to learn about different campus events.

Pennsylvania Zetas at Washington and Jefferson College worked at a haunted house sponsored by the local Jaycees this past fall. In the spring, Pennsylvania Zetas sponsored a Panhellenic Pool Tournament giving the profits to an organization called C.R.Y. Community Resources for Youths.

Kentucky Gammas, with the Easter Bunny in tow, visited the Shriners Crippled Children's Hospital for a party and Easter Egg Hunt. The chapter also adopted Telford Community Center as a local philanthropy. Once a month, Eastern Kentucky University Pi Phis visit the community center and play games with the children.

Seventeen fraternities participated in Missouri Alphas Big Man on the Court, philanthropy and basketball tournament. The king candidates spent time reading stories to children at the local Head Start program. The event raised approximately $2,000 for Arrowmont. The chapter members also joined a campus-wide effort to bring the AIDS Quilt to the University of Missouri.

Each year New York Delta votes on an organization to which the chapter will donate proceeds from each philanthropy. This past spring, the chapter chose Make-A-Wish, an organization that grants wishes to terminally ill children. Make-A-Wish granted a wish to current chapter president Tiffany Bangs several years ago. Tiffany has defeated aplastic anemia and celebrated her fifth year in remission. Last fall she founded Student Wishmaker at Cornell University. An external fund-raising group for Make-A-Wish, Student Wishmakers' aim as an organization is to increase awareness of Make-A-Wish and to aid the Central New York Chapter of Make-A-Wish in their work by providing them with trained student volunteers. Along with two other sororities and three men's fraternities. New York Delta hosted a fund-raising party in early April that benefited Make-A-Wish.

Ohio Theta's major philanthropic event at Bowling Green State University is Mud Tug. This is a Tugof-war between fraternities and sororities over a pit of mud. The chapter raised $2,022 through entrance fees, donations, raffle tickets and sweatshirt sales for the event. All of the proceeds were given to Arrowmont.

Each year at the University of Kansas, a musical revue, Rock Chalk Revue, raises thousands of dollars for the local United Way. In addition to donating money, various Greek organizations donate time. A sorority and fraternity team together to compile as many volunteer hours as possible. This year, Kansas Alpha teamed with the men of Beta Theta Pi to donate more than 1200 community service hours. This accomplishment earned the Kansas Alphas a Gold Award in the contest for Most Charitable Organization.

Several Virginia Gammas volunteered their time in assisting fellow student, Jay Bukzin, in running a community-wide bone marrow drive. Jay's objective was to search for a marrow match for his younger brother, as well as for the many others in need of this assistance. Chapter members at the College of William & Mary donated blood for the bone marrow test and also helped run the drive.

Each year Alabama Betas at the University of Alabama hold their biggest philanthropy, The Arrow Open, a four-man scramble golf tournament, held every fall at a local golf course. All proceeds from the Arrow Open go to Parent Advocates of Down's Syndrome. Prizes are donated by local businesses.

California Kappas at the University of California, San Diego helped the local community raise awareness about keeping the ocean clean for dolphins. The Pi Phis aided in painting storm drainpipes which stated, "Keep our waters clean," along with a stencil of a dolphin. The chapter also had a successful philanthropic event to raise money for Arrowmont. During the final week of winter quarter, Pi Phis sponsored a clothing sale on campus from Apparel Designer Zone.

Montana Alphas participated in a car wash on the Montana State University campus. The donations were given to the local food bank and Big Brothers/Big Sisters organizations. Montana Alphas also have been volunteering weekly in a Young at Heart program, spending time with elders. Some of the activities include water aerobics, arthritis workshops and cardiovascular workouts to improve their overall health and well being.

Tennessee Gammas participated in a philanthropic project on the University of Tennessee campus called On Target. The program pairs a different fraternity and sorority together twice a week to go to Whittle Springs Middle School to be with the kids after school. Instead of going home to an empty house, the kids have the option to stay at school and either get tutored, make arts and crafts or participate in a variety of recreational activities.

Students at the University of Virginia, Virginia Epsilons Elizabeth Guice, Mary Ritchie, Amanda Viles, Marte Barnacle and Jane Hamrick are active participants in the Charlottesville Big Sibling Program.

Indiana Alphas from Franklin College attended a Valentine's Dance at the Todd Aikens Health Center in February. The center cares for elderly people that are in need of medical attention.

Illinois Zetas Sherri Lamb, Epi Martinez and Jan Wenning recently received the Senior 100 Award. The University of Illinois Student Alumni Association gives an award for outstanding excellence in academics, leadership, and community service to the top 100 seniors.

The Greater Baton Rouge Zoo played host to Louisiana Beta's "Big Buddy" program in February. Louisiana State Pi Phis sponsor several activities each semester to spend time with underprivileged Baton Rouge youth.

Indiana Delta held their second annual Arrowgames at Purdue University this past fall. More than $2,200 dollars was raised for Arrowmont. The chapter also participated in a Secret Santa event with Sigma Alpha Epsilon for the second year. The two groups were paired to shop for gifts for needy children in the Lafayette area.

Illinois Etas at Millikin University sponsored a parents night out for Decatur area children. There were movies and games for more than 35 children. All proceeds were sent to Arrowmont.

Jennifer Harmon, Jennifer Stupfel and Diana Bacon, three members of the California Iota Chapter at California State University, Chico were selected as committee members of Chico State's Greek Week. Greek Week allows Chico State sororities and fraternities a chance to give something back to the community. Greek Week helps Chico's Boys and Girls Club through canned food drives, a blood drive, a silent auction and a Fun Without Alcohol Fair.

Former Chapter President of Kentucky Beta, Amy Lorne Rowell has contributed to organizations such as the Hope Center for the homeless and hungry and the Enrichment of the Arts program. She was recently awarded the title of Miss Christmas Seal by the American Lung Association for raising more than $5,000 to help battle the disease, a record amount raised in the contest's 44-year history. The chapter participated in the annual bowl-a-thon to benefit the Growing Together Pre-School in Lexington, Kentucky. The University of Kentucky Chapter raised in excess of $300 in pledges to help fund the preschool, which offers educational/ developmental programs, day care and kindergarten services to over 160 children from the ages of six weeks to six years.

In October, Greeks of Florida State University pulled together as part of Homecoming and built a haunted house for the youth of Tallahassee. The chapter also collected and donated bags of clothing to needy families. Florida Betas donated more than one thousand pounds of clothing.

Illinois Theta's recent work day benefited Peoria area alums and Arrowmont. Alumnae paid for the Bradley University Pi Phis to do household tasks such as painting, cleaning and polishing. All of the money was donated to Arrowmont.

Last fall, California Betas invited the students from Washington Junior High School to the Pi Phi house for lunch, and then gave a guided tour of the University of California at Berkeley campus. This junior high school educates children from low income, high minority areas. Realizing these children rarely continue their education beyond the secondary level, California Beta exposed them to the opportunities that lie beyond a high school education. The chapter also spent time visiting residents of the Claremont House, a retirement facility founded for individuals who must live in a supervised environment.

New York Alphas work closely with the UNPA (University Neighborhood Preservation Association). The chapter planted flower bulbs, and coordinated all volunteers for the Wescot Street Cultural Fair. With the help of UNPA, the chapter at Syracuse University sponsored Kid's Fair with Sigma Chi Fraternity. Other philanthropic events New York Alpha has participated in include serving 140 people meals through Rescue Mission, a Daffodil festival sponsored by Kappa Kappa Gamma which raises money for the Cancer Association, and Green-up which cleans up the university area.

Each class at Pennsylvania Beta has their own designated philanthropy.

As women progress through academic years, they progress through philanthropies. The sophomore class runs errands for the elderly of Lewisburg, doing such things as yard work, house cleaning and grocery shopping. The junior class delivered holiday gifts which were donated by students and faculty of Bucknell University in response to a giving tree. The senior class prepared and served Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners to individuals staying at a homeless shelter. The members go to the shelter in groups of five with a different group going each night for a week during the holiday season.

Philanthropic activities California Zetas at the University of California at Santa Barbara are involved in visiting the Hillside House, a residence and care center for individuals with cerebral palsy, hosting a Shots for Tots basketball tournament, playing with children at the Isla Vista Youth Project, coaching Special Olympics teams, and singing at the Casa Dorinda and Friendship Manor Retirement Homes.

Iowa Etas at Drake University volunteered to serve food to the homeless at a food mission in Des Moines, served refreshments at water stations during a bike-a-thon to raise money and awareness for breast cancer, gathered clothes for the homeless, and joined the Des Moines community in the annual MS Walk-a-Thon to raise money for the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Colorado Deltas from the Colorado School of Mines participated in several philanthropic activities during the school year including a book and clothing drive to aid local families, a car wash to raise money for Arrowmont, and a weekly tutoring program for local high school students. Once a month Texas Gammas from Texas Tech University sponsor a dinner at the Ronald McDonald House. A different pledge class is designated to bring the meal each time.

California Deltas from the University of California, Los Angeles have been involved in a program called Feed the Homeless. Each week, two Pi Phis and two Sigma Pis travel to Santa Monica where they spend an evening serving food.

Kansas Betas are involved in several philanthropic activities on the Kansas State campus and the local community. The chapter donated toiletry items to the Alpha Kappa Alpha Chapter for the Manhattan Women's Crisis Center. Other events in which the chapter participates include the racial ethnic harmony walk, the Delta Tau Delta blood drive, and the Big Brother/Big Sister Christmas party.

The pledges of New York Epsilon hosted a bowl-a-thon at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Chapter members gathered in the bowling alley at RPI's Student Union to "Bowl for Kid's Sake," which benefited the local Big Brothers/Big Sisters Program. The chapter raised more than $450 for the cause.

Washington Alpha Barb Larson interns for the Red Cross as the chairman for the National Red Cross Convention. This University of Washington Pi Phi also oversees the youth program for the Red Cross.

Indiana Zetas at Ball State University teamed up with Habitat for Humanity and built a house in Muncie, Indiana. Habitat for Humanity is a national not-for-profit organization that helps build and support the funding of houses for underprivileged people.

This year, Michigan Betas invited 50 children between the ages of 5 and 15 from disadvantaged environments to participate in their holiday celebration at the University of Michigan.

Virginia Gammas are implementing Links to Literacy through the local Headstart program and through the Adult Skills program sponsored by the College of William and Mary. The Pi Phis tutor children weekly through Headstart, and they assist the program with special events such as Easter egg painting and a pig roast. The Adult Skills program is for adults who have low reading abilities and for nonnative speakers learning how to read, write and speak English.

Montana Alphas incorporate Links to Literacy by donating their time each week to the Child Advancement Program in Bozeman, Montana. The Montana State Pi Phis also tutor students in the local elementary and high schools.

Pi Phis at Oklahoma State University each give one hour a week to tutoring elementary school children. The program is called New Friends and was created by Oklahoma Beta Kerry O'Keefe.

Members of Arkansas Beta have developed a pen-pal program with a local elementary school as their Links to Literacy program. Each University of Arkansas at Little Rock member receives the name of a child with whom they correspond on a regular basis and form a mentor/friend relationship. The pen-pals also have picnics and other activities to become better acquainted.

Colorado Gammas at Colorado State University have established their Links to Literacy program at an elementary school where many of the teachers are members of the local Pi Beta Phi alumnae club and serve on the chapter's Alumnae Advisory Committee. Several times a week, the undergraduates enjoy the opportunity of tutoring first graders in the Fort Collins community and interacting with Pi Phi alumnae.

Featured in the Friends of the Jacksonville Public Libraries newsletter was this photograph of the Jacksonville alumnae presenting their book donation.

The Houston Alumnae Club held a benefit luncheon and style show entitled "It's A Small World" on March 26. Pi Phis, their children and their grandchildren served as models for the show. Richard Sherman, academy award-winning composer and lyricist of "It's A Small World" and many other Disney characters performed during the style show and luncheon. Sherman also entertained volunteers and children earlier that week at the Pi Beta Phi Children's Library at Texas Children's Hospital to commemorate the library's 10th anniversary. The luncheon and style show proceeds of more than $100,000 are earmarked for the Pi Beta Phi Children's Library in Houston and for the Children's Resource Center at Arrowmont. The Houston Alumnae Club is a major supporter of Links to Literacy through the works of their libraries and by sponsoring the alumnae club award for outstanding Links to Literacy programming. The Houston Alumnae Club is also one of five Leadership Clubs within Pi Beta Phi, pledging $30,000 in the Campaign for Arrowmont to establish the Children's Resource Center.

The Jacksonville, Florida Alumnae Club held a potluck for literacy dinner this past year to kick off their Links to Literacy programming. Each member brought a covered dish and a children's book to the club's monthly meeting. More than 100 books were collected and donated to The Friends of the Jacksonville Public Libraries organization.

Gift bags filled with books were delivered by Tulsa, Oklahoma Alumnae Club members to the Domestic Violence Intervention Services, Inc. (DVIS) shelter in Tulsa, Oklahoma, during February. "We specifically chose the month of February for our first delivery to underscore sharing the gift of love with others," Sarah Buvinger Welch, Tulsa Alumnae Club Links to Literacy chairman, said. "The first delivery of 78 bags of children's books marked the starting point of what we believe will be an ongoing project." The Tulsa Alumnae Club's Links to Literacy project for DVIS is two-fold. First, bags of age-appropriate books are prepared as gifts for children who are waiting while their mothers complete paperwork to enter the shelter. New and gently-used books are gathered by the Tulsa alumnae for this purpose. The book collection campaign began in November to celebrate the first Pi Beta Phi International Links to Literacy Week. The second objective is to create an adult library for the women who are living at the DVIS shelter. Members have collected several hundred books to begin building the library, and the first wall of bookshelves has been installed, thanks to the kind donation of club member Molly Rorschach Krumme. "I am thrilled how our club has embraced our first Links to Literacy project," Susan Parks Dornblaser, club president, said. "The project has been fully supported by our entire membership, and our literacy committee is made up of 18 women of diverse backgrounds and ages."

California Deltas participate in UCLA's Project Pancake which stands for People Assisting Non-reading Children and Adults for Knowledge Enrichment. The project was founded by the university's Community Service Commission to take on the serious problem of illiteracy in the Los Angeles area. Pi Phis volunteer their time by becoming tutors and traveling to the Mar Vista Gardens Housing Project, as well as the Watts Public Library.

North Carolina Betas at Duke continue their tutoring program with the Club Boulevard Elementary School in Durham, North Carolina. More than 30 chapter members spent a total of 40 hours per week with the underprivileged children, serving as teachers' aides, individual tutors and after school mentors. Club Boulevard coordinator Tina Clark, a Pi Phi junior, commented that the greatest aspect of her three years with the program was, "personally witnessing the improvement of individual kids over the years, and knowing that I had a part in it."

Colorado Gamma Vicki Andrews tutors a first grade student at the chapter's Links to Literacy site.

Texas Zetas Amy Fenton, Kim Johnson and Adria Alexander planned and organized a new service project for the Baylor Pi Phis called Operation Learn. The women worked with the librarians at the South Branch Library to design a program that would enable children in the Waco, Texas area to have an opportunity to get extra help with their homework from Texas Zeta members. Each Saturday, members were scheduled to be at the library from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. and from 2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. to tutor children.

Several Pi Phis from California Kappa at the University of California at San Diego have served as mentors for San Diego elementary school students through a partners at learning class at U.C. San Diego. Kimberly Mohoney, Michelle Kim, Julie Daignault, Susie Veladi and Dis Thayer have been paired with students who are struggling in school.

In March, members of Ohio Theta and Ohio Epsilon participated in a Links to Literacy event sponsored by the Toledo Area Alumnae Club. The Bowling Green State University and University of Toledo Pi Phis and Toledo area alumnae worked with two classes of third grade children from Oakdale Elementary School. Stations were set up to promote literacy through fun. Activites included unscrambling sentences, rhyming words and learning contractions.

The Dallas Alumnae Club held their 10th Annual Charity Fashion Show and Luncheon in March at the Loews Anatole Hotel. Highland Park Village, America's first shopping center, joined forces with Pi Beta Phi to present an exciting afternoon of spring fashions. This year's luncheon honored and celebrated "The 1994 Community of Angels." Pi Beta Phi alumnae were honored and recognized for their significant volunteer contributions to the civic enhancement of the Dallas community. Proceeds from the event benefit St. Philip's School and Community Center. A gift of $75,000 will purchase and renovate the Pi Beta Phi Art and Literacy House on property adjacent to the St. Philip's campus. Classes in art and literacy will be taught to St. Philip's students and adult literacy classes will be offered to the community.

Texas Gamma Kathy Langston served as chairman of the Pi Beta Phi Angel Library at the Children's Hospital of University Medical Center in Lubbock, Texas. For fund raising, Kathy spent long hours organizing a community book drive, a read-a-thon, and solicited for donations. Kathy collected used books, bought new books and prepared the library for the opening. After the opening, she coordinated 100 Pi Phis at Texas Tech into orientation groups and volunteer schedules.

As part of the Links to Literacy Program, New Jersey Alpha Ashley Kline from Princeton taught prison inmates grammar and reading skills, and Sara Kantrow tutored Trenton High School students in English.

Alabama Gammas at Auburn volunteer two nights each week to help adults learn to read, write and gain other skills needed to receive their high school diplomas.

Julianne Christou, Michigan Gamma's Community Philanthropy Chair, brought Pi Phis and Michigan State University's Student Literacy Corps together. The Literacy Corps teaches reading to people ages 4 - 70 and helps promote literacy in the community. The chapter helped by donating books to the organization. Kristen Sawka, Michigan Gamma's President was involved in a program called Adopt-a-School. She volunteered two afternoons a week to help tutor third graders. This "After School Study Stop," put together by Tower Education Center and Michigan State University's Panhellenic Council, promotes better study habits as well as providing role models for elementary school students.

Arrowcraft

Dear Members of Pi Beta Phi,

The Pi Beta Phi ARROWCRAFT SHOP was established to provide an outlet for regional craftsmen and, through its profit, to be a source of income for Settlement School/Arrowmont.

Proliferation of other craft shops has abrogated its original, unique purpose and for many years the shop has been unable to achieve profitability. In spite of restructuring and drastic cost cutting, cooperation by the Shop staff, diligent efforts by the Arrowcraft Board and support through Arrowcraft sales by alumnae clubs and chapters, the Arrowcraft Shop is unable to function without a continuing infusion of capital from the Fraternity.

In order for the Arrowcraft Shop to be able to continue operations as a quality shop providing a market for regional craftsmen, Grand Council and the Board of Directors of Arrowcraft, Inc. are pleased to announce the opportunity to be associated with the Southern Highland Handicraft Guild serving the craftsmen of the southern Appalachian Mountains. The Guild will lease the Arrowcraft Shop property from the Fraternity, and beginning June 1 it will operate as "ARROWCRAFT, a Shop of the Southern Highland Handicraft Guilds in the country. It operates three very successful retail shops in North Carolina. The Arrowcraft Shop will be the fourth and will open a new market in Tennessee. Merchandise will include "one of a kind," as well as production pieces. Many of the artists we represented will participate in the Guild's shop.

Grand Council and the Arrowcraft Board are delighted to see the Arrowcraft name continued through the association with the prestigious Southern Highland Handicraft Guild. Alumnae clubs and chapters will no longer hold Arrowcraft sales since the Fraternity will not be operating the shop. The Arrowmont School of Arts and Crafts is enjoying tremendous success and will continue to be our philanthropic focus. Both Arrowmont and the Fraternity will benefit from the association with the Southern Highland Handicraft Guild, and the Arrowcraft Shop will be able to continue the original mission of providing a market for regional craftsmen.

Your efforts to help the shop, and your support, especially in the past few years, have been most gratifying and our heartfelt thanks go to all of you. Alumnae clubs, chapters and Pi Phis everywhere can remember with great satisfaction 68 years of proud heritage of the Arrowcraft Shop and the part they have played in its history.

even outstanding young women will spend the next academic year employed by the Fraternity as graduate consultants. Traveling Graduate Consultants Jennifer Feeney, Brooke Helmers, Leanne McManus, Kerry O'Keefe and Angela Van Buren will travel from chapter to chapter across the continent assisting chapters in areas such as membership recruitment, programming and leadership training. Erika Anderson and Lara Swanson, Resident Graduate Consultants, will be based with the Fraternity's two newest chapters, helping them establish a strong foundation on which they can build.

Named Outstanding Greek Woman on Campus, Jennifer is a member of Golden Key, Mortar Board and Order of Omega honoraries. A graduate of Washington State University, this Washington Beta served her chapter as Vice President of Mental Advancement. In addition, Jennifer was elected to WSU's Panhellenic Executive Council as Rush Coordinator organizing the 14 sororities on campus. The Associated Students of WSU also benefited from Jennifer's leadership skills as she served as administrative assistant, senator and on various committees for the organization.

JENNIFER FEENEY

KERRY O'KEEFE

This Oklahoma Beta received a bachelor of arts degree in journalism from Oklahoma State University and plans to pursue a career in sports public relations. Kerry was selected as model pledge at Oklahoma Beta and went on to serve her chapter as Assistant Pledge Educator, Rush Chairman and Vice President of Social Advancement. Founder of "New Friends" mentor program for elementary school children, Kerry enjoyed such campus activities as Greek ambassador, Mortar Board, Public Relations Student Society of America and athletic department intern.

Lara Swanson

BROOKE HELMERS

Prior to graduating from Miami University of Ohio and majoring in speech and language pathology, Brooke enjoyed activities within Ohio Zeta and on the campus. After serving on the chapter's standards board for two years, Brooke was elected Vice President of Moral Advancement. She was a member of Order of Omega and the National Student Speech Language and Hearing Association. An avid horseback rider. Brooke was a member of Miami University's Equestrian Team.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, Lara will spend the 1994-1995 academic year as the Resident Graduate Consultant for Pi Phi's new chapter at Wake Forest University. While serving as Illinois Zeta's Chapter President, Lara was selected as one of four Panhellenic Presidents to lead the University of Illinois Presidents' Retreat. As Vice President of Moral Advancement, Lara organized the fraternity heritage program which was awarded the Frances Rosser Brown Award for Best Fraternity Heritage Programming at Pi Beta Phi's 51st Biennial Convention.

Erika began her collegiate career at the University of St. Thomas in St. Paul, Minnesota where she was a member of the women's varsity soccer team. In 1991, she transferred to Iowa State University where she pledged Pi Beta Phi. A former Chapter President for Iowa Gamma, Erika helped lead the chapter to win the Presidential Award for Fraternal Excellence. Erika was a staff writer for the Iowa State Daily Newspaper and served on VEISHEA Executive Board. A Minnesota all-state student journalist, Erika graduated with a degree in journalism and will spend the '94-'95 academic year as resident graduate consultant at Creighton University.

EANNE MCMANUS

ANGELA VAN BUREN

A former Chapter President and Vice President of Social Advancement, Florida Delta Leanne was a Harriet Rutherford Johnstone Scholarship winner in 1992-93 and 1993-1994. Leanne gave her time and talents to the University of Florida Panhellenic by serving as Fraternal Excellence Revision Chair revamping the Panhellenic point system and as a Panhellenic Judicial Hearing Board member. In addition, Leanne was Director of Camp UF, organizing a weekend orientation for incoming freshman. Leanne graduated from the University of Florida with a bachelor of science degree in political science.

After a year of traveling for Pi Phi, Angela plans to work on a master's degree in international management. She graduated from Simpson College with a bachelor of arts degree. A former Chapter Treasurer, Angela served her chapter in numerous offices as well as alternate delegate to the 1993 Orlando Convention. A member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Angela enjoyed her involvement on campus co-chairing Simpson's Parent's Day, Greek Week and serving as chairman of SNAP (Simpson National Annual Phon-a-thon).

Opportunity for Pi Phis in D.C.

The Washington D.C. Alumnae Club offers a unique opportunity of sisterhood for members who intern or do summer associateships in the nation's capital.

"Those of us who forge a life here remember how important the signs of the life we left behind can be. A smile always comes to my face when I see our letters on the back of a car with license plates from far away states, knowing in my heart another Pi Phi is working on the Hill or gaining valuable experience in a law firm for the summer. I would like to meet these women, in hopes that if they decide to begin their careers here, they will become members of the alumnae club, and find the satisfaction of continuing actively in Pi Phi long after their collegiate days are done."
